Wall Collapse Puts Quarry Search On Hold

Mayor Francis X. McCauley will meet with his advisors Friday at 9 a.m. to decide what to do next in the search for the body of Paul Gooch, 17, of Brockton, who drowned in Swingle's Quarry.

The draining of the quarry in West Quincy ended abruptly about 4 a.m. last Friday when a section of the quarry wall collapsed sending tons of granite down on the pumping equipment.

Two men, a police officer and a public works department worker, were on the site but neither was injured.

McCauley said the original plan to send divers down to look for the body Saturday has been placed on hold pending an examination of the walls.

"We have a real problem now with the danger up there," he said. "If someone had been on the raft or diving in the water when the wall came down, that would have been it. You could forget them."

"We don't want to risk anyone's life down there."

McCauley said members of the Quincy Police Underwater Recovery Unit have been in touch with geologists in an effort to determine what to expect from the walls that are still standing.

Also, said McCauley, there is the problem of the $26,000 pump that was on loan from a company in Woburn. Unless it can be recovered, the city will be obligated to pay for it.

"Maybe it did not go to the bottom," he said. "Maybe we were lucky and it got caught on a ledge. But we do not dare to put anyone in the water right now to look for it."

Library Overtime Account Approved By Council

The City Council last week appropriated $6,000 to pay cash for overtime to employees of the Library, some of whom, said Director Warren Watson, have piled up as much as 10 weeks compensating time off.

"We have situations where we have no choice but to have someone work overtime," he said. "We used to have $20,000 a year in an overtime account. For the past three years we have had no funding."

Watson said the library workers' contract gives them the choice of overtime in cash or compensating time and so far "the staff has extended themselves to cover."

"It would be better to pay them," he said.

Nicastro Seeks To Terminate Golf Course Tax Agreement

City Solicitor Dean Nicastro told the City Council last week that his office is reviewing a 50-year tax-lease agreement with Furnace Brook Golf Club to see if it can be terminated.

The agreement calls for the city to pay the property taxes on the golf course in return for the use of the course by high school students for golfing and skiing.

The problem is that the city has not paid the tax to itself for the past four years due to Proposition 2 1/2.

"We have to issue a tax bill because it is not city property," said Auditor Robert E. Foy III. "But this has been fouled up by the Proposition 2 1/2 limit."

Video Equipment Voted For Fire Dept.

The City Council last week appropriated $11,000 to purchase video equipment to be used on a Quincy Cablesystems channel to train firefighters.

"This will be of great value to the Fire Department," said Fire Chief Edward Barry.

"We are ahead of most cities and towns in the metropolitan area in this and we'd like to stay there."

Barry said the equipment would enable firefighters to watch the training films at their own stations instead of traveling to the Hancock School for classes.

He said the Department has already made some training films with equipment borrowed from Cablesystems.

On Top Of General Dynamics

Multi-Million Utilities Tax Payback Seen

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said Tuesday one of the reasons he is pushing for a Prop. 2½ exemption to repay General Dynamics is that the city is faced with the possibility of another multi-million payback to three utilities.

The personal property tax abatement cases filed by Mass Electric, New England Power and Boston Edison are now before the State Tax Appellate Board. At least one of the cases should be coming down shortly.

"Even a good settlement will require paybacks that could be in the millions," said McCauley. "That is one reason why I want to get General Dynamics' $28 million payback exempted."

McCauley told the City Council Thursday night that he himself would vote for the $28 million Prop. 2½ exemption if the Council approves it for the Nov. 8 city election ballot.

The mayor has proposed the exemption so that the city can repay a property tax overassessment to General Dynamics at $2.8 million a year for 10 years without taking the money from the tax levy.

"The utilities cases compound the problem with General Dynamics," said McCauley. "They are nowhere near the magnitude of the General Dynamics case but they are far above the average abatement settlement."

McCauley said he would not go for a Prop. 2½ exemption to pay any settlement in the utilities cases, adding "I would like to structure it within the tax levy."

The utilities cases grew out of the so-called Tregor case in Boston in which a court ruled that the city had been overtaxing business properties in order to hold down the taxes on residential property.

The utilities filed suit in a number of eastern Massachusetts cities seeking rebates for alleged overtaxation on conduits, pipes and lines running through the communities.

Other cities faced with utility rebates include Watertown, Everett and Somerville.

McCauley said there could be settlements reached in all the cases before the end of the year or early next year.

The Council, sitting as the Finance Committee, did not vote on the General Dynamics exemption at Thursday night's hearing, at which McCauley spoke on the issue for about an hour and a half.

"If you put the exemption on the ballot, I will vote for it," he said. "And I will go out and recommend that the citizens vote 'yes' in the

Bishop Daily Priest At St. Ann's Archdiocese Interim Leader Served Here

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Most Rev. Thomas V. Daily, 55, who was appointed apostolic administrator of the Archdiocese of Boston after the death of Archbishop Humberto Cardinal Medeiros, is no stranger to Quincy.

Auxiliary bishop of Boston, and chancellor of the Archdiocese, he served for a number of years as an associate pastor at St. Ann's, Wollaston.

"St. Ann's was the only parish in the archdiocese where he served," explained Msgr. James J. Scally, pastor of that church, who attended St. John's Seminary with Bishop Daily.

"He came here after ordination in 1952 and stayed until about 1962 when he left to go to Peru," said Msgr. Scally.

Msgr. Scally said Bishop Daily was one of the first volunteers for missionary work in that part of the world as a member of the Society of St. James the Apostle.

Upon his return to this country, said Msgr. Scally, he was reassigned to St. Ann's in 1967 where he stayed until Cardinal Medeiros was installed 13 years ago.

"They were looking for a chancellor who was bilingual," said Msgr. Scally.

"I know him very well," said Msgr. Scally. "He was very highly regarded as a young priest here."

"When he was made a bishop, the parishioners had a huge time for him. They had it at the largest hall they could find, Florian Hall, (in Dorchester)."

While at St. Ann's, Bishop Daily was involved in building St. Ann's School, said Msgr. Scally. He also had a special interest in the elderly.

"He has more energy than any human being I know," said Msgr. Scally.

Bishop Daily will administer the affairs of the archdiocese until a new archbishop is selected by the Vatican.

3 Yet To File

McCauley Tops Election Spending

All but three candidates in the 1983 city elections have filed the required campaign financial reports which were due on Sept. 6, the eighth day preceding the preliminary election.

The delinquent candidates on Tuesday afternoon were City Councillors Leo J. Kelly, Joanne Condon and Stephen J. McGrath.

Of those who filed, Mayor Francis X. McCauley spent the most money with $11,603, a good deal of it in contributions to charitable and civic causes and organizations.

Other big spenders were City Councillor James A. Sheets, $4,832; Stephen Durkin, candidate for School Committee, $4,461.97; William Arienti, candidate for School Committee, $4,181.54.

City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. filed a report that said only "No change", and Election Clerk Thomas Burke said he would ask Lydon to file a more detailed report.

Other candidates, some of whom had balances left over from previous campaigns, reported their finances like this:

Francis X. McCauley (Mayor), $20,419 received, $11,603 spent, $23,052 balance.

James A. Sheets (Council), $5,335 received, $4,832.32 spent, $509.01 balance.

John M. Dunlea (Council), Nothing received, nothing spent, zero balance.

Patricia Toland (Council), $3,615 received, $2,032.42 spent, $2,269.34 balance.

Richard J. Koch Jr. (Council), $2,315 received, $1,245.19 spent, $2,269.34 balance.

Stephen Durkin (School Committee), $5,196.65 received, $4,461 spent, $734.68 balance.

William Arienti (School Committee), $5,695.10 received, $4,181.54 spent, $1,514.46 balance.

Mary Collins (Council), $5,284 received, $2,330.34 spent, $2,953.66 balance. Mrs. Collins also reported a $1,100 loan from her husband, Thomas.

Jens Thornton (Council), Nothing received, $100 spent, zero balance.

Theodore P. DeCristofaro (Council), $2,115 received, $978.46 spent, $3,559.92 balance.

Frank Anselmo (School Committee), Nothing received, $708.75 spent, zero balance.

Frank Santoro (School Committee), $1,639 received, $1,300.44 spent, $338.56 balance.

John Sullivan (School Committee), $750 received, $662.85 spent, $87.15 balance.

$25,000 House Fire In West Quincy

mated $25,000 damage.

There was an estimated $10,000 damage to the contents and $15,000 damage to the building, fire dept. officials said.

The fire Friday night, at a one family wooden house owned by Sally Grogan, was apparently caused when a lampshade on a lamp caught on fire, according to Dep. Chief Thomas Gorman.

The fire extended to the first floor and outside rear of the building, Gorman stated.

"Always the Leader"

HIGHEST EARNING SAVINGS BANK IN MASSACHUSETTS

"Ladies and Gentlemen, our community has come of age!"

With these words, a group of South Boston residents transformed a need into a reality and on September 1, 1863, while a civil war raged, the South Boston Savings Bank opened its doors.

A $50 deposit was made that September day. As we celebrate this milestone, Savings Book No. 1 is still active. The balance, without a penny added or a penny withdrawn, has reached $8,625.00

Today we are the leader, and to earn that distinction we have had to keep ahead of the banking industry for many years.

The South Boston Savings Bank record of paying the highest interest rates available has become legendary. We realize banks don't build banks. People do, one by one. We hope to take the needs of our depositors and turn them into realities. Then, we hope to take them one step further, because at South Boston Savings Bank we believe that once the leader, always the leader.

We've come a long way since the first $50 in Savings Book No. 1.

McCauley Asks Exam For New Police Chief

Mayor Francis X. McCauley has called for a Civil Service examination to select a possible successor for Police Chief Francis X. Finn, who underwent quadruple heart bypass surgery last December.

"Chief Finn has no definite plans to retire," said McCauley following a Tuesday morning meeting with the chief, "but that is subject to change based on what his doctor says."

The mayor said he asked for the exam, which would be held in February, because the deadline for such filing was last Friday and he wanted to be prepared if Finn's health status changed.

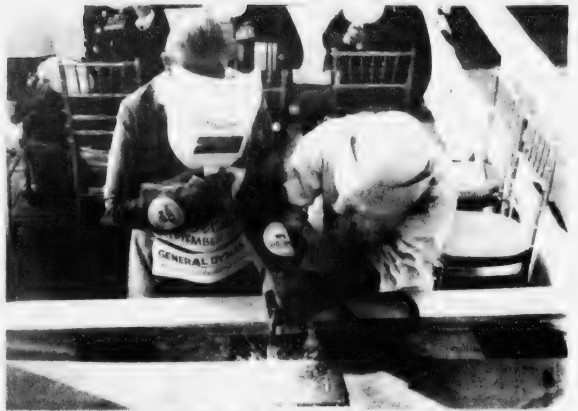

McCauley said even if the exam were given in February it might be sometime in 1985 before a list of those eligible could be cleared for a selection.

If the exam were held in February the five captains and all but two of the lieutenants in the Quincy Police Department would be eligible to take the test.

Four of the five captains achieved that rank last July and, should the exam be delayed past July, 1984, only the five captains would take it.

Finn, who is 57, has been on the Quincy Police Department for 35 years and chief for 17 years.

Housing Authority Signs New Minority Agreement

The Quincy Housing Authority has signed a new agreement with the federal government guaranteeing that one minority family will be selected to fill one out of every four vacancies.

The agreement, which is effective until June, 1985, covers the 180 federally subsidized housing units in the city. Elderly housing is not affected by the pact.

QHA Director John P. Comer said the only difference between the new agreement and the old one that expired is that if one minority family turns down an opening the authority will go to the next one.

Under the old pact, if a minority turned down the opening the authority would offer it to the next three white families on the list.

At the rate of current vacancies, Comer said, about three minority families would move into federal housing each year.

Mayor, Council, School Raises Win Approval

Raises for the mayor and the City Council and a stipend for the School Committee gained final formal approval by the Council Monday night.

The Council passes amendments to the salary ordinance giving the mayor $40,000 a year, the councilors $6,500 a year and members of the School Committee $1,200. All are effective Jan. 1, 1984.

The mayor's raise passed by a 7-2 vote with Councilors Joanne Condon and James A. Sheets voting against it. Sheets has said he may run for mayor in 1985.

The Council's raise passed by a 6-3 vote with Condon, Sheets and Theodore P. DeCristofaro voting in opposition.

The School Committee's stipend got by 7-1 with Condon voting "no" and Sheets abstaining.

Board Closes Down Bobby Dodd's Pub

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The License Board voted Tuesday to close immediately Bobby Dodd's Pub, 160-162 Hancock St., on the recommendation of Health Commissioner Dr. M. Grace Hussey who cited sanitation violations.

The violations include lack of hot water, removal of a fire suppression system in the kitchen, a boarded-up rear door and other items, according to a report by health Inspector Fred Prezioso.

The violations came to light during a hearing on transfer of the common victualer license to J.J.'s Barbecue & Lounge, Inc.

Atty. George Burke

represented applicant James C. McGinley, proposed manager. Burke said his client did not know of the violations and would have to weigh the cost of correcting them before buying.

Dr. Hussey said that after the initial unfavorable report Monday by Prezioso, Winthrop Wade inspected the premises and agreed with the earlier findings.

"I would recommend the License Board suspend the liquor license immediately on this place until all sanitation violations are remedied," wrote Wade.

John Collins of Milton, who said he was one of the establishment's owners, attended the hearing.

The establishment will stay closed until the violations are corrected. The Health Department will then inspect the premises and make a decision, said Dr. Hussey.

Sun 15 Years Old

Time, they say, marches on.

It really doesn't. It flies.

The Quincy Sun is 15 years old with today's issue.

The Sun, established in September, 1968, completes its 15th year today. And with next week's issue, begins its 16th.

Fifteen years as Quincy's weekly community newspaper. We're proud of Quincy in our name.

It has been an interesting 15 years. We've seen and reported a lot of changes in Quincy.

It hasn't been an easy 15 years though. Not at the beginning, anyway.

The Sun began in a small second-floor office on Foster St., Quincy Center, with a little money but a lot of hope and faith in Quincy.

Some people predicted we wouldn't last six months. And, there were times in those early days when we thought they might be right.

But as we said, we had a lot of hope — and especially faith — in Quincy. A lot of people in Quincy, we discovered, thought Quincy would be a better community with two newspapers instead of one.

And, thanks to their faith in us and their support, we stayed in there during those rocky months and — well — we're still here.

We went from that first second floor office to a second one at 1601 Hancock St. a year later. And then, in March, 1975, we moved to the present street floor location in the old Quincy Savings Bank building at 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Sq.

And, that was the beginning of the better years.

In 1980, the historic Hingham Journal, which dates back in 1827 when John Quincy Adams was president, was purchased and modernized.

The two newspapers have retained their own identities: The Sun, Quincy's weekly community newspaper and The Journal, Hingham's weekly community newspaper.

Quincy is The Sun's main business and Hingham is The Journal's.

Down through the years, The Sun and recently, The Journal, have won honors from the New England Press Association for editorials and photography.

Feb. 11, 1982 was another major milestone and a historic chapter in local journalism.

On that date, The Sun began news telecasts on its Ch. 8 on Quincy Cablesystems.

The Sun, on that date became the first newspaper in the South Shore and one of the first in the state to provide news coverage over cable television.

The Sun's Ch. 8 operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week, bringing the latest Quincy news from Sun staffers and up to the moment regional, national, and world news from the Associated Press. There is also display and classified advertising.

And, now the Sun is getting ready to expand its television coverage to live and videotaped news, features, and advertising on Ch. 8. On a regular basis, you will soon be able to see Quincy news as it happened on Ch. 8 as well as read about it in The Sun.

The Sun, as we have said often times before, has been blessed with loyal readers from the very first issue. They are readers of all ages from all walks of life who want a community newspaper — a newspaper devoted to their community interests.

A newspaper has a responsibility to the community and to its readers to report the news fairly and accurately.

We have tried to do so — giving those on both sides of an issue the opportunity in our news columns to present their side of an issue of interest to the community.

We don't write editorials just for the sake of having an editorial. But when we do speak out, you don't have to wonder where we stand.

You may not always agree with us. That is your right and we will continue to respect it. We have a right to our opinions too, and we will express them.

As we mark our 15th anniversary and prepare to begin our 16th year, we want to again thank you — our readers and advertisers — for your continued support and encouragement.

And, as always, a special "thank you" goes to our army of faithful newscarriers who bring The Sun to your home in all kinds of weather. A tip of the hat, too, to the letter carriers.

We've said it many times before, but we'd like to say it again: All of you are as much a part of The Sun as we, the staff.

Without you we never would have reached this 15th milestone. Actually, without you we might not have reached those first six months.

With your help — and encouragement — we look to the future with confidence and with plans to expand Sun coverage.

Thank you, again — all of you, from all of us.

Thank you sincerely for making it all possible.

Those Were Hard Times

Times are still tough for a lot of people but you'd have had to live through the Great Depression years to know how really tough things can get.

Albert R. Frantello who recently died at 81 was one who knew what it was like.

He was one of the last surviving witnesses of the world-famed Sacco-Vanzetti case. And his recent death severs a colorful link with the past.

The former Quincy resident was a 19-year-old chaser at the Slater and Morrill shoe factory in South Braintree at the time of the payroll robbery-murder for which Bartolomeo Vanzetti and Nicolo Sacco were executed.

Six years ago he was interviewed by The Quincy Sun's Tom Henshaw on the 50th anniversary of the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti.

He said he got a good look at the two men who shot the paymaster and guard and neither of them, he insisted, was Sacco or Vanzetti.

During the interview, he got to recalling other experiences in his life and what it was like growing up in hard times.

He was a cement mason in Florida when the bottom fell out of the country and he wanted to get back to Quincy but there was no money.

"So I'm getting discouraged," he said, "and I'm sitting on a bench and there's a fellow next to me and he heard me mumbling, 'Geez, I'd like to get up to Boston! Oh, boy, I gotta get up to Boston!'"

"Where do you live," he said, I said, "Massachusetts."

He says "Come with me, I take you to the undertakers." "For what?" I says. He says, "Well, when a body dies, they have to have someone go with the casket to the destination."

"I went around to half the undertakers in Florida. I said, 'Geez, when is one going to die around Boston?' Finally, one of the undertakers says, 'How near is Weymouth to Boston?' Never mind that, Weymouth is near Quincy where I live!

"He gave me the paraphernalia that I had to give to release the body at Weymouth Landing at the railroad station, so that was all right, but, geez, that was two days and three nights with no money. I was drinking water. And that guy going by with the basket of sandwiches. I thought I'd die."

"The minute I got off the train, I'm heading for Quincy with my suitcase. Coming up, I met a guy, 'Geez, Al, just the guy I want to see. Where are you going?' 'Home,' I says. 'I tell you you're going over to East Weymouth High School,' he says. 'I need a man over there quick.'"

"I worked over there for seven years. I got $200 a week."

Incidentally, the tape of The Sun's hour long interview with Al Frantello is now at the Quincy Historical Society, where it is a small but important part of the history of our times.

THERE'S A BUDDING barrister in the family of City Council President John J. Lydon, Jr.

Janet is a 1979 graduate of Archbishop Williams High School and a 1983 grad of Providence College.

FRANK ANSELMO's grandson, Reverge Anselmo, is serving with the Marines who are currently under fire in Lebanon.

He's the third generation of Anselmo's family to serve in the U.S. Armed Forces.

Frank himself was in the US Army in World War I and II.

Son Rene Anselmo was in the Marines in World War II and flew 37 combat missions in the South Pacific.

Frank's granddaughter, Diana Willett, is a lieutenant in the Air Force. She was home in Sherborn, where her mother, Frank's daughter, Barbara, lives, on the week of Aug. 28-Sept. 3, after three years in Germany. She's now stationed in Oklahoma.

In addition, Frank's father, Vincent Anselmo, served in the Italian army in Ethiopia in 1896.

Says Frank: "Before that, God only knows."

A FUND-RAISER and social for Councillor Richard J. Koch, Jr. will be held Friday, Oct. 7 at the Sons of Italy Social Center, Quarry St. 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. event will include dancing and refreshments. Tickets are $5 each and may be obtained from Thomas P. Koch, Mrs. Linda J. Bowes, Robert Woods, Gary Cuniff, Michael Wilson, Mrs. Dorothy Kelly and Debra Koch.

MDC May Lease Some Facilities To Private Firms

Commissioner William Geary says the MDC is looking into the possibility of entering leases or management agreements with private firms to run some of the agency's facilities.

"We are leasing a number of our skating rinks out to the communities and the zoos in Franklin Park and Stoneham are operated under an agreement with the Boston Zoological Society," he said.

"We're looking at that for a variety of our facilities and this agency, which has had to sustain a number of budgetary cuts, is incapable of managing properly much of our activity."

Geary, who lives in Wollaston, appeared on the Quincy CableSystems program "Newsmakers" on Ch. 3.

Geary told interviewers that he is conducting a review of managers in the Parks Division and "that review may conclude in having some of them dismissed, some of them demoted or some of them reappointed."

"It all depends on what the merits of their performances are," he said. "It's be good or be gone."

Geary called Harvard Prof. Samuel M. Haar's report on pollution in Quincy Bay a "giant step forward" in recognizing that the pollution is the result of many problems in the system, not just Nut Island.

"It would be very short-sighted for us to have the public believe that merely to fix Nut Island is going to stop pollution in Quincy Bay because it won't," he said.

"We have to fix Nut Island as well as the other parts of that sewage system that are in disrepair in the 350 miles of pipes that lead to the two major treatment plants (Nut Island and Deer Island).

"It's going to take an awful long time to repair that system.

"As long as the pipes inland admit storm water, at the other end that storm water is going to overwhelm the capacity of that plant to handle it and it's going to spill raw into the bay.

"I'm going to move forward quickly to repair the plant and to implement the recommendations of the Haar report to make those improvements in between."

Geary said the MDC has already begun to initiate some of the reforms called for in a report by Inspector General Joseph Barresi which castigated the MDC for shoddy performance in construction.

"He recommended creation of an internal audit and investigation unit," he said. "I informed the inspector that when I took office in February I had every intention of establishing such a unit.

"The inspector general calls for a number of reforms, some of which we had already begun to initiate, others which we would consider. The governor has named a group to implement the recommendation."

Geary noted that the Barresi report "focused on one division and one type of activity -- maintenance and contracts."

"I would not like to see the entire agency for the majority of its 2,700 employees painted by a broad scale indictment of the agency's efficiency when the report is no narrowly focused," he added.

Geary was interviewed on the program by John Noonan of The Quincy Sun, Herb Fontaine, news director of WJDA, and Ray McEachern, reporter for the Patriot Ledger.

Tousant Board Appointment Ires Quincy Democrats

Democratic Gov. Charles F. Hurley reappointed Mrs. Emma Sanborn Tousant of Quincy, a Republican, to a third five-year term on the State Industrial Accident Board over the objections of the Quincy Democratic City Committee.

At its first fall meeting, the Committee passed a resolution asking that Mrs. Tousant, the only Republican on the seven-member board, not be reappointed.

The Committee also adopted a resolution censuring Gov. Hurley for his failure to distribute patronage to Quincy, pointing out that his home city of Cambridge had received 17 major appointments while Quincy was still waiting for the first post.

Charges also were made that many Republicans worked as inspectors at race tracks for stretches of 21 days at a time while the three inspectors from Quincy only worked about a week between them at the state's race tracks.

Utilities Tax Payback Seen

November election." McCauley painted a gloomy picture of the city's financial situation for the next 10 years without the Prop. 2½ exemption.

"We can't count on increased state aid year after year," he said. "The unions are going to be in for more money year after year. Blue Cross-Blue Shield and pensions are going to increase year after year."

There are also, he said, unforeseen financial problems, such as the expense of trucking rubbish when the city dump is filled in three years and three large utility tax cases before the State Tax Appellate Boards.

"If you think you can live with a payback to General Dynamics from the tax levy," he said, "then don't put it on the ballot. If you don't think so, then put it on the ballot and let the people decide."

City Councillor James A. Sheets cautioned the Council not to look at the situation pessimistically.

"Possibly we should take a good hard shot at paying the $2.8 million for the first year out of the tax levy," he said.

"We are going to see a new growth in Quincy. I'm optimistic that we are going to get more state aid. The Commonwealth has always responded to the cities and towns and it will in the future."

"Maybe we are too conservative when we look at the next 10 to 20 years."

McCauley told the Council that General Dynamics is not particularly interested in whether or not the Council approves the loan order or the referendum.

"All they want is the money," he said.

Finance Committee Chairman Stephen J. McGrath said the committee will hold at least one more meeting on the issue before taking a vote, which is needed by Oct. 3 in order to get the referendum on the ballot.

Wine, Malt Request Withdrawn

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

It may be a while before supermarkets in Quincy begin offering their customers wine and beer in addition to other items.

At the suggestion of the License Board Tuesday, Star Market, 130 Granite St., Quincy Center, withdrew without prejudice its request for a wine and malt-package goods store license.

"We don't move as fast here," Police Chief Francis Finn told Star Market Atty. Jeffrey K. Schaeffer.

"The License Board's purpose is to serve the community. I'm not convinced there is an absolute need," said Finn.

Schaeffer told the board Star was requesting the license because "consumers are more inclined to 'one stop shopping'."

Star has also felt a negative impact from nearby Shaw's Market which recently expanded, said Schaeffer.

"I'm against the beer and wine license," said Finn. "It's unfair to the small vendor."

"There are sufficient liquor distributors in Quincy," said Fire Chief Edward Barry. "Morton Liquors (in the vicinity of Star Market) has been in business for years."

Schaeffer said price conscious consumers would still shop at liquor stores, while his customers would be paying a little more for convenience. He also said it would be a very small part of the business.

"The darn supermarkets are into everything," said City Clerk John Gillis. "It's unfair competition to the little guy."

"Why not let the people try it?" asked Schaeffer.

Finn said a precedent would be set if Star were granted the license, and other markets could request a similar license.

"I'm not convinced it won't have a negative impact," said Finn.

Joseph Hennessey of Morton's Liquors opposed the license. He said 71% of his business in August was in wine, beer and other items which would be sold at the supermarket.

Also opposed were Covenant Congregational Church, Councillor John Lydon, Rev. Robert Duncan, pastor of Fort Square Presbyterian Church, Councillor James Sheets.

Mother's Cooperative To Meet Sept. 28

The Quincy Mother's Cooperative will hold its first meeting of the year Wednesday, Sept. 28 at 8 p.m. at the home of Mary Corcoran, 33 Trask Ave., West Quincy.

Debbie MacDonald, Community Counselor for the Parent and Child Resource Center, will address the group.

Her topic will be the services and materials offered by the center in the areas of child development, family health, and pre-school education.

The Co-op, in its eighth year, is composed of mothers of pre-school children. Its purpose is to provide activities for the children and opportunities for the mothers to come together and share experiences and concerns.

There are three components to the group: playgroups, bi-monthly meetings, and field trips.

The playgroups consists of three or four mothers and their children, who meet at each other's homes on a rotating basis once a week.

Activities of the group vary depending on the age of the children and the desires of the mothers. All of the mothers stay with the children so they also have an opportunity to socialize.

There is a playgroup coordinator in the Co-op to help new members find the proper playgroup for their children.

Evening meetings are held every other month on the last Wednesday of the month at the home of a member. It usually consists of a social time, business meeting, and a guest speaker. Topic of the speaker depends on the interests of the group.

The Co-op plans group activities for all the children during the year. Children's Museum, Science Museum, Stoneham Zoo, and Intron Farm are a few of the field trips being planned for this year. Parties for Halloween and Christmas are also on the agenda.

New members are welcome at this first meeting or at any time during the year.

For more information, call Mary Corcoran (479-6847) or Anne Vincent (472-0241).

By Edward David R.Ph.

House calls, anyone? Special house call services have opened around the country that send certified physicians to see patients who can't get out. Costs are similar to office visits, less than hospital emergency room.

New surgical procedure has been developed to correct extreme myopia. Piece of cornea is removed and lathed to a flatter shape for better vision, then replaced. Operation has only recently been done in the U.S.

Special high-protein diet — as much as 210 grams a day! — helps kidney transplant patients avoid the hormone imbalance that often follows the transplantation, say researchers at the University of Missouri.

First aid for chemical burns is immediate washing with lots of running water. It's more important, in fact, than prompt medical attention. (Water is contraindicated only for industrial chemicals such as phosphorus, lithium, and phenol.)

Thomas Kelly Re-Elected President Of NAUPA

Thomas F. Kelly, of Quincy, assistant state treasurer, has been re-elected to a third term as president of the National Association of Unclaimed Property Administrators (NAUPA) at its recent convention in Williamsburg, Va.

The Association, comprised of representatives of 49 states that have unclaimed laws, is actively involved with financial assets that have been dormant for an extended period of time. The most common of these assets are lost or forgotten bank accounts.

Increasingly, many state governments are focusing on their unclaimed property laws as a major source of consumer protection. Under Massachusetts Unclaimed Money Law (M.G.L.c.

200A), accounts which have been inactive for at least five years are declared abandoned and must be reported to the state treasury's Abandoned Property Division. Massachusetts leads the nation in collecting and returning unclaimed property to its residents and taxpayers and is looked upon as a model operation by other states. Recently, the states of Connecticut and Maine have developed similar programs.

Kelly, a member of the Quincy Knights of Columbus, also serves as Massachusetts co-chairman of The United States Olympic Committee.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Cheer up, things could be worse!" How true the words are! And sometimes when one does cheer up, things do get worse! On those occasions, it really takes an optimist to see things through, especially when situations and times are tough. It is easy to acquire a cynical attitude, disbelief and fatalistic outlook. And so pessimism is born.

It should be realized pessimism usually reflects inaction. Waiting. Doing little if anything to change a situation or make things better. Should it not also be realized that waiting and inaction NEVER accomplishes a thing? Should it not be realized that an optimist must be active, not passive?

Harry Truman once said: "I have never seen pessimists make anything worth or contribute anything of lasting value. It takes optimists to make the world work, because eventually some of their ideas are put into practice to help mankind". . . . In today's language can it not be said: "He said a mouthful!"

More Than 350 Pictures Pictorial History Shows Life In Old Quincy

"Quincy: A Pictorial History," a picture book portraying nearly 360 years of life in Quincy in photographs, makes its debut this week.

Special copies of the book by Paul Robert Lyons of Norwell, containing more than 350 pictures, some of them rare, will be presented today (Thursday) at the Quincy Historical Society.

A limited edition of 2,500 copies of the book, at $25.50 each, will be available at main and branch offices of the Quincy Savings Bank, which has underwritten the publication.

A portion of the sale of the books will go to the Quincy Historical Society.

"This is the first time that all these photos have been brought together," said Charles A. Pearce, president of the Quincy Savings Bank. "We think it is a major addition to the portrayal of Quincy as one of the most historic cities in the United States."

The photographs include not only the historic structures that remain standing but the faces and places that have since disappeared.

They include the schooners, mills and quarries that brought Quincy to industrial prominence in the late 19th Century as well as the shipyards, plants and banks that changed its skyline.

"We fully expect that the total edition of the book will sell out quickly," said Pearce.

Copies of the book will be presented today to Mayor Francis X. McCauley, Cong. Brian J. Donnelly, Sen. Paul D. Harold, Reps. Michael W. Morrissey, Thomas F. Brownell and Robert A. Cerasoli.

Also Warren Watson, director of the Thomas Crane Public Library, and Doris Oberg, president of the Historical Society.

Author Lyons is a graduate of Boston University's School of Public Communications and a longtime editor for the National Fire Protection Association.

The book is published by the Donning Co. of Norfolk, Va., as part of its "Portraits of American Cities" series.

Cable helped Millie stop the ghosts.

Millie Napoleone, as you can see, is a no-nonsense take-charge lady who takes pride in her job as a safety patrol and works hard at it. So, when she began having trouble with "ghosts" in her television reception she decided to do something about it. She decided to try Cable and she chose Quincy Cablesystems.

Now, she's got the clearest TV picture she's ever had, and that's not all. She's also got television specials, first-run movies and Broadway hits, a variety of choices that you only get with Cable.

Millie loves that variety of programming. She also knows that if there's a program she's unable to see one night, she can catch it at a later date. With cable, if a sports event is blacked out in the Boston area, Millie and her sports-loving husband can see it at home.

As far as Millie is concerned, Cable is the only way to go. So, if you're looking for directions, look for Millie. She'll show you the way. She's already been there.

Presidents Seek Second Win At Everett

By TOMSULLIVAN

Bill Maver has his first win as Quincy's head football coach and, although it wasn't a classic, he feels the inexperienced Presidents will perform better Saturday when they play at Everett at 1:30 p.m. in a non-league game.

Quincy, without a returning starter, opened last Saturday with a 21-0 victory over Suburban League rival Cambridge Rindge and Latin at Veterans Memorial stadium.

Saturday's opponent, Everett, a Greater Boston League team, lost to Beverly, 38-6, last week.

Last season Quincy easily topped Everett, 39-16.

The first half last week was extremely sloppy and filled with penalties and both teams were slowed down by fumbles. The officials gained more ground than both teams combined.

Quincy looked like a different team in the second half and, although scoring only once, completely dominated play. Cambridge finished the day with just three yards gained as Quincy's defense was outstanding.

The Warriors pulled up 68 yards rushing but lost 65 as the quarterback was sacked a half dozen times and he fumbled several times on handoffs for further losses. Jas Hoog passed only three times with no completions and one interception.

Quincy had a net of 119 yards running, most in the second half. Billy Shaughnessy, playing his first game at quarterback, had only one completion for 19 yards, setting up the Presidents' last touchdown late in the game, and had two passes intercepted. Several passes, however, just missed connections and Maver feels he will improve in this department. He did a fine job handling the ball. Quincy had nine first downs, four coming on the late scoring drive, and Cambridge had only four, two coming on penalties.

"We made a lot of mistakes in the first half but this is a young team with many juniors and they were a little nervous," Maver said. "We played much better in the second half and I think the boys will do much better with this game under their belts. The defense was brilliant and we moved the ball pretty well but penalties really hurt us in the first half."

Little Mike Notarangelo, Chris Shaughnessy, Daron Tucker and Joe Cullen all ran well for Quincy.

"Mark Walsh and Chris Conner played outstanding games in the line, going both ways," Maver said. "Rich Ready, Steve Perfetuo, Eric Jolley, John O'Callaghan and Pat Calabro all played excellent games."

"The ends played very well with Greg Keefe and Austin O'Malley going both ways and Dan Macauley playing well on defense. Cullen, Tucker, Joe Conti, Chris Shaughnessy and Dan Curtin all played fine defensive games."

Conti did some fine punting for the Presidents. Neither club could move consistently in the penalty-plagued first half. Billy Shaughnessy completed a long pass to Notarangelo, who made a great catch, but it was nullified by a penalty. Chris Shaughnessy made a fine pass interception but that, too, was voided by a penalty.

With 45 seconds left in the opening quarter Cambridge fumbled a handoff and the ball bounced into the end zone. Keefe recovered for the Presidents for the game's first touchdown. Billy Shaughnessy skirted right end for the two-point conversion.

Late in the half a high pass from center sailed over the Cambridge punter's head and Quincy had the ball on the Warriors' 37.

Two face mask penalties against Cambridge helped Quincy move downfield and Notarangelo scored from the four-yard line. The try for two points failed.

Whereas the first half was loaded with penalties, the second half was virtually devoid of them.

Quincy took the kickoff and reeled off three first downs but the Presidents were stopped on Cambridge's 34. A nice 16-yard run by Tucker featured the drive.

Cambridge began to move the ball better after a pass interception and went from the Presidents' 34 to a first down on the six-yard line. Here the Presidents' defense asserted itself and after four downs Cambridge found itself back on the nine where Quincy took over.

After a Quincy punt which Cambridge's Tim Hairston returned 30 yards to Quincy's 20, the Presidents again held and took over on their 24.

Here they staged a well-executed 76-yard drive in 11 plays, featured by a 12-yard run by Chris Shaughnessy, a 16-yard run by Notarangelo and a pass to Keefe for 19 yards to the Cambridge five. With just 15 seconds left in the game, Billy Shaughnessy scored from the two and Gerry Frazier kicked the extra point.

Martin's Sweeps Woodward To Win Title

Martin's Plumbing swept Woodward Spring in four straight games in the playoff finals to win the Roy Perkins Softball League championship.

Martin's finished first and Woodward a close second during the regular season. It was expected to be a close series but Martin's dominated all four games with outstanding offense and defense.

Woodward took a 2-0 lead in the first inning of the opener but it was all Martin's the rest of the way as it won, 8-3. Brian Cochrane, undefeated with an 11-0 record, pitched a five-hitter. Martin's scored a run in the third, four in the fourth and three in the sixth. Pete Martin and Jon Badger were outstanding on defense and Bob Roney and DH Gary Appell paced the offense.

In the second game Bernie Settimo pitched a four-hitter and received all the runs he needed in the first inning with Leo Graham hitting a two-run homer as Martin's won, 7-1. Graham later had a triple and Pete Martin slammed a three-run homer in the fifth.

Martin's received great defense from Pat Ennia, Brian Cochrane and Mike Quinn, who robbed Woodward of several possible key hits.

In Game 3 Martin's rolled, 17-2, with Quinn, Martin and Ennis, the first three batters, scoring eight runs and Pat Burke and Roney taking charge. Burke, in addition to tremendous offense, played strong defense along with Pete Martin, Jerry Martin and Paul Martin. Cochrane pitched another strong game.

Martin's came out roaring in the final game and romped, 14-3. Graham pitched a four-hitter and the defense again was super with Roney, Ed Martin, Ennis and Pete Martin excelling. Cochrane also played well as did Jerry Martin behind the plate. Graham had two homers and a triple and drove in eight runs. Paul Martin, Bernie Santino and Jim Martin all played well.

Ed Martin sponsored the team and Jim Hanna was coach. Roney and Badger were the co-captains.

North, Weymouth N. Tie

Although Weymouth North had the first two finishers, the North Quincy boys' cross-country team took six of the next seven places to gain a 28-28 tie in the opening meet for both teams.

Weymouth's Pat Fitzgerald and Rob Costello finished 1-2, but North Quincy's Jeff Stryker placed third, Scott Coyne fourth, Heath Petracca sixth, Harry Morash seventh and Tom Wildes eighth to complete the Raiders' scoring and gain the tie. North's Tom Kearney finished 10th.

Leone Boots 47th Straight

Former North Quincy High star Jack Leone added to his NCAA record last week when he kicked his 47th successive point after touchdown for the University of Maine, which lost to Rhode Island 24-16.

The barefooted Kicker added the point after Maine's opening touchdown. Later he kicked a 21-yard field goal. Last fall Leone kicked 46 straight extra points and also kicked seven field goals.

Quincy Tennis Tourney In Semi-Final, Final Rounds

The 13th annual Quincy Tennis Tournament continues this week with the action moving into the semi-final and final rounds. The tournament is co-sponsored by the Granite Co-operative Bank and the Quincy Recreation Department.

The final round began Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. with the men's consolation singles match. Today (Thursday) the men take the court with the men's 50 and over singles final at 6 p.m. and the men's 35 and over singles final at 7:30.

Friday evening the women's 35 and over final will be at 6 to be followed by the women's doubles final at 7:30. Saturday will conclude the final round with the women's singles at 11 a.m., men's singles at 1 p.m., men's doubles at 3 p.m., and the mixed doubles final at 5 p.m.

This year's tournament has again been highlighted by superb play throughout the two weeks. No one displayed his talents better than George Burke, who managed to reach the quarterfinal or semi-final round in four events. Armed with solid ground strokes

The men's singles number one seed Steve Durante is proving to everyone who he is number one. In his first three rounds Steve has lost only five games. A semi-finalist in mixed and men's doubles, Steve could be looking at three titles this year. On the women's side, Lynne Maloney looks unstoppable in the women's singles, but Susan Pacetti will be looking to change that when they meet in Saturday's final.

Neil Cronin will be trying to win his fourth straight men's 50 and over title, but his challenger is a formidable one in Paul Bandini. Defending champion Bill Courtney will have it tough to repeat again according to his challenger Rich Landi. This men's 35 and over title should be a great one.

A holder of many titles over the years, Louise Durante will be going for three more this year. The women's 35 and over title, the women's doubles title and the mixed doubles title could all be here Saturday.

Perkins Defeats Mass. Fields

The Quincy Park and Recreation Board held its Junior Boys Basketball finals recently at Adams Playground.

Jeff Densen and Eric Seamans played a strong floor game for the winners, who were presented their trophies at the conclusion of the game by Recreation Director Barry Welch.

Mass Fields, coached by John Phelan, was led by Danny MacDonald, who had six points, while Joe Mulvey, Bill Warren and Matt Furtado chipped in with two points each.

Raiders Up Against Tough Brockton

After a disappointing opening day performance at Milton, the North Quincy football team faces the unenviable task of facing powerhouse Brockton, the defending Suburban League champion and a solid favorite to repeat, Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Raiders, expected to have a fine season with many veterans in the lineup, lost their non-league opener to Milton, 18-0, proving flat both on offense and defense.

Meanwhile Brockton started off with a 47-20 romp over New Bedford in its opener.

Last year Brockton defeated North, 37-8.

"I was extremely disappointed in our overall performance," Coach Ken McPhee said. "I never thought I'd see the team so flat. We made far too many opening day mistakes. We handed Milton two touchdowns and three pass interceptions hurt us. The defense did an outstanding job, but we make a lot of adjustments if we hope to make a good showing against Brockton.

North Quincy played without four starters, including two of its top running backs, Scott Messina and Mike Gill, both veterans.

Milton had one scoring drive which gave it a 6-0 halftime lead. The other Milton scores came after bad passes from center gave the Hawks the ball deep in North territory.

"I thought we could come back and beat them in the second half, especially after we kicked off and held them," said McPhee. "But we couldn't take advantage of our opportunities. We had the ball inside their 10-yard line three times but couldn't push it across."

With Messina and Gill out, Bryan Ellis, who had two fine pass receptions, Joe Bangs and Steve Kelly took up the slack and did some good running.

Jim Kennedy was North's outstanding two-way performer. He caught two passes, intercepted a pass and had a fine day both ways.

Assistant Coach Mark Mulvaney praised Jack Hannan, Nick Gelsomini (another outstanding two-

North-Brockton Game On WJDA

Station WJDA will continue its weekly coverage of schoolboy football Saturday with the play-by-play of the Brockton-North Quincy game at 1:30 at Veterans Memorial Stadium and the Abp. Williams-Pope John game at 10 a.m.

Reports also will be brought in from Quincy at Everett, Bridgewater-Raynham at Weymouth South and Wellesley at Braintree.

WJDA this fall has several doubleheaders on Saturday, as Abp. Williams has moved most of its games from Sunday afternoon to Saturday mornings.

way player) and Jerry Coughlin for their work in the offensive line.

"The defense did its job and everyone played a fine game," said defensive coordinator Jack Rayer. "They were on the field an awful lot and were pretty tired at the end but they all did their jobs."

He had good words for Kennedy, Jack Bolster, Bangs, Steve and Kevin Kelly, Jim McNamara, Gelsomini, John Comeau, Tony Befera, Steve Dever and Bob Flynn.

The Raiders lost their starting center, Larry Nialitz, in the first half with torn ligaments and he will probably miss several games. Jack Burke, who did a good job replacing him, will start this week.

Kevin Whitney gave Milton a 6-0 lead with an eight-yard run in the opening quarter and in the third quarter Mike Flaherty scored from the three and passed Chuck Avery for the final TD.

North Quincy had eight first downs, only two in the second half. The Raiders had 91 yards rushing and Dave Zuroms hit on seven of 19 passes for 88 yards, but the three interceptions hurt. North was hit with 70 yards in penalties in the first half.

North In Wins Over Sharon, Barnstable

The North Quincy boy's soccer team, coming off a highly successful 1982 season, got off to a good start last week with two impressive non-league victories.

The Raiders easily defeated Sharon, 7-1, and edged Barnstable, 2-1, in a hard-fought game.

North played Brockton yesterday (Wednesday) in its first Suburban League game and Friday will host Newton North in a 3:30 league game at the soccer field behind Veterans Stadium.

The Raiders scored three goals in the first three minutes against Sharon to break the game open. At 1:30 Chris Archer took a perfect cross from Steve Golden and scored from five yards out. Less than a minute later Terry Stark took a pass from David Brown and hit on a low 20-yard shot. Archer struck again 15 seconds later, lofting a well-placed 30-yard shot past the goalie. Golden had the assist.

In the second quarter North continued to dominate play and Andy Curtis took a nick pass from Nunzio Carbone and scored from 12 yards out.

Sharon scored its lone goal in the third quarter. With a minute and a half left in the quarter Golden, who finished with a goal and two assists, scored from 25 yards out and the Raiders had a 5-1 lead.

Early in the fourth quarter Stark scored his second goal on a head shot, with Brian Bresnahan assisting. Carbone closed out the scoring with a 12-yarder, the assisting going to Curtis.

North looked good defensively, especially sophomore fullback Eric Roukey, junior fullback Pat Marcham and senior Tri-Capt. Jaime Pat, filling in at sweeper for the injured Mike Cocce. The offense was the best in three years as Brown hit the post three times and sophomore inside Mark Scanlan missed two golden scoring chances.

At Barnstable North ran into a very physical and aggressive team which had defeated Attleboro. The Raiders, already missing two key players, Cocce and Mike Walsh, were getting beaten to many balls early in the game but still had the best scoring chance in the opening quarter as John Joseph's shot from 18 yards out barely just went past the post.

The action got much more physical in the second quarter with the referee flashing two yellow cards on Barnstable players for unnecessarily rough play.

North gave up a goal midway through the quarter as the Raider full back thought Barnstable had been pulled offside on the play. Stopping in anticipation of the ball, the play continued with the home club scoring. This seemed to ignite North Quincy as it dominated play for the rest of the half but had no real good scoring chances.

A Barnstable player was ejected in the third quarter which left the team with 10 players the rest of the game. With 10 seconds left in the quarter Brown took a good set up from Carbone and drilled a 20-yard shot to the far post to take the score.

With six minutes left in the game Archer beat his man in the corner after taking a pass from Scanlan and fired a shot past the near post. The ball rolled across the goal line and Barnstable disputed the call, claiming the ball hadn't crossed the line. However, the referee ruled it good. Goalie Mark Hubbard made two excellent saves late in the game to preserve the win.

North received fine performances from Joseph, who played his best game ever, Curtis and Stark. Also coming off the bench and playing well were Joe LaPierre, Craig Orrock and sophomore Jim Cahill.

The victory was a costly one as Brown was tripped and landed on his thumb severely injuring it. He may miss several games.

"The injuries we have had are major ones and this concerns me," said Coach Paul Bregoli. "Cocce will be out for a while longer with a fractured collarbone and we don't yet know about Brown. Stark, Roukey and Carbone all are playing injured. Walsh missed the Barnstable game but I hope he will be back for Brockton. Our bench is going to be tested with all these injuries, but I feel LaPierre, Orrock and Cahill can do the job."

Stay Alive!

By John Valante

THE ONE-FOR-TEN RULE

To help your car stop short of trouble, use the one-for-ten rule. For every ten miles per hour of speed, remain at least one car length behind the vehicle you're following. At 20 mph you would stay back two car lengths, at 30 mph, three car lengths, and so on.

Imagine you are cruising at 60 mph, staying the recommended six car lengths behind. Suddenly, the driver of the car in front sees a wreck ahead and locks his brakes. With average brakes, he now has 300 feet to go before coming to a stop. You see his brake light and slam on your brakes. You will also travel 300 feet after braking. Those two words are vital. Your reaction time is about three-quarters of a second. A split-second doesn't seem long, but it's enough to send you another 66 feet. The other driver goes a minimum of 300 feet and you go a minimum of 366 feet coming to rest about two and one-half car lengths behind: a safe margin.

Remember, the one-for-ten rule applies only to dry roads. On slippery, wet roads you must double the distance.

Council Moves Closer To Validated Parking

The City Council moved the city a little closer to validated parking Tuesday night.

The Council approved a new schedule of on-street parking meter fees which starts at 10 cents for 15 minutes with a half hour maximum on some streets and goes up to 25 cents an hour with an hour maximum on others.

Motorists who use the Hancock and Ross Parking Areas, which will be managed by Kinney Systems, Inc., will pay 25 cents an hour, $2 a day, $25 a month, with merchants providing validation for free parking.

The Council's vote on the fee change was opposed by Councilor Stephen J. McGrath, who has voted against all validated parking.

The Council also authorized the mayor to secure state funds to purchase the equipment needed for validated parking, again with McGrath voting in opposition.

Bids on the equipment were scheduled to be opened yesterday (Wednesday)

Allergic Condon Seeks Menu Warning On MSG

City Councilor Joanne Condon has developed an allergy to the food enhancer monosodium glutamate (MSG) which she says has nearly cost her her life three times in the last two months.

As a result, she filed a resolution with the Council Monday night asking legislation that would require restaurants in the city to print on their menus whether they use MSG in their food.

She also wants to prohibit eating places from substituting one food for another without informing the patron who has ordered it.

"It's a personal issue," she said. "But many people have a similar reaction to MSG. I think I've had enough. I can't eat out in a restaurant without asking about every item of food."

Mrs. Condon said the allergy usually strikes about six hours after she has eaten, which, in the recent past, means she has been stricken at 2 a.m. to 4 a.m. and had to be rushed to the hospital.

"If I hadn't woken up," she said, "I would have died and I don't want to die just yet."

She said she carries pills with her — Benadri to counteract the MSG allergy and Adrenalin to keep her heart going during the attack.

It started three years ago when she ate in a Chinese restaurant. MSG is used frequently in Chinese restaurants to enhance the flavor of the food.

"I was taken to the hospital twice in three months," said Mrs. Condon.

"I had difficulty breathing. I had a rash and my hands were swollen. Doctors identified it as an MSG reaction. I've given up eating in Chinese restaurants."

Everything went well until last May when she ate a fish dinner in a Braintree restaurant and she woke up at 2 a.m. with an allergic reaction. There was MSG in the stuffing.

On Sept. 3, she had a crabmeat sandwich at a Charlestown restaurant and, unbeknownst to her, she was eating a concoction called "sea legs" with MSG. She had another attack.

"Each time the reaction has been more severe and I have less time to get to the hospital," she said. The last couple of times she has been taken to the hospital in a police car.

On Sept. 7, she had dinner with a local social club and wound up back in the hospital. There was MSG, she said, in the chicken, mashed potatoes and gravy served by a local caterer.

"I think I've had enough," she said. "Perhaps if we adopt this ordinance locally something will be done about it statewide. There are a lot of people who have this same reaction."

Prop 2½ Vote Faces Defeat In Council

By TOM HENSHAW

The people of Quincy apparently will not get a chance to vote on an exemption from Proposition 2½ to pay a tax abatement tab of $28 million to General Dynamics over a period of 10 years.

The City Council, which is scheduled to vote on the subject at Monday night's meeting, appears ready to dump the whole idea of a referendum in November in the face of an uncompromising electorate.

"The comments I've heard to date," said Councillor Joanne Condon, "have all been negative toward putting it on the ballot."

She said she is not ready to commit herself publicly but she is conducting a random poll of more than 200 people in Ward 6 to help her determine how she will vote.

"I will base my vote on the results of the poll," she said.

Councillor Stephen J. McGrath, chairman of the Finance Committee, which has already held one meeting on the issue, said he is not sure whether or not he will call a second hearing.

"If we do have a meeting," he said, "it will be just prior to the Council meeting Monday night."

A Quincy Sun survey of seven of the nine Council members showed two to be adamantly against the referendum and most of the others, even the undecided ones, leaning the same way.

"I'm going to vote 'no,'" said Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro. "The people voted for 2½. They are satisfied with it. They don't want to change it."

"I don't intend to vote for it," said Councillor Leo J. Kelly. "I've talked to the people and I've found no one in favor of the override and no one in favor of putting it on the ballot."

"There may be other ways to pay the abatement. We haven't looked into those areas. Maybe the city jumped a little too quickly in accepting the settlement."

Council President John J. Lydon Jr. indicated that he is against the referendum

Ignored Parking Violations Will Cost You $10 More

By TOM HENSHAW

The cost of illegal parking is going up once again in Quincy.

Effective Sept. 1, those with meter violations who ignore the mailed notice of hearing must pay a $10 surfine to the Registry of Motor Vehicles in addition to the standard $5 fine to the city.

In the past, collection of the surfine was discretionary on the part of the city. But a state law passed just this year, called the Revenue Enforcement and Protection Program (REAP), changed all that.

Under the law, says Assistant City Solicitor Joseph A. MacRitchie, "when an individual fails to respond to a notice of hearing, the parking clerk must notify the Registrar who places the matter on record.

"Upon such notification, an additional $10 charge is imposed upon the registered owner of the vehicle. This $10 charge is payable to the Registrar for the benefit of the Commonwealth."

"This is in addition to the $5 charge imposed by our ordinance for the city."

"It used to be at the discretion of the municipality," said Parking Clerk Robert Denvir Jr. "Now it is totally out of our hands."

Under the law, the city is the collection agency for the Registry surfin which will be paid to the state annually on Sept. 1.

"We average close to 2,000 notices a month for those who have not paid for their tickets," said Denvir. "Right now if they ignore the notice the Registry can refuse to renew their registrations."

Denvir said it is also part of the law that the city can collect a $5 surfine of its own, raising the ante of possible parking fines to $20, but Mayor Francis X. McCauley said the city has plans to do so.

"My philosophy," he said, "is to give tickets to control parking. Parking fines were never intended to be revenue producing, even though Boston uses them for that."

"We are trying to get away from the ticket situation as much as we can. That's why we are moving toward validated parking in the municipal lots."

"We are trying to make Quincy more attractive to shoppers. We are having enough trouble with the $5 fines right now."

Quincy, Milton To Seek W. Squantum St. Guard Rail

Rep. Michael Morrissey (D-Quincy) announces that Quincy and Milton have agreed to seek further funding to provide a guard rail to protect motorists at a dangerous curve on West Squantum St. on the Milton-Quincy line.

Signs will also be erected to warn drivers as they approach the curve.

"This curve would require about 1,000 feet of guard rail in Milton and another 150 feet in Quincy," Morrissey said.

"At $13.50 per foot, this means approximately $15,000 must be allocated for this project."

"I have talked with members of the public works departments in both Milton and Quincy and have offered my support for their request for state funding for this very important project."

Purchases Car, It Bursts Into Flames

A Quincy man narrowly escaped death when the Volkswagen stationwagon he was buying burst into flames Friday on Hancock St., Quincy Sq.

Fortunately, he had left the 1974 Volkswagen minutes before.

Fire officials believe faulty wiring caused the blaze which completely destroyed the car's interior. Lt. Dinny DiNardo said, and caused about $1,000 damage.

Joseph Currie, 20, of 128 Brook Rd., South Quincy, said he parked the car in front of Pewter Pot and had only been in Congress Insurance Agency about five minutes when someone said a car was on fire.

Currie looked out to see the car he was in the process of insuring on fire.

He had only driven the car the short distance from Franklin St. to Quincy Sq.

"I'm just glad I wasn't driving it when the fire started," said Currie, shaking his head as the car was about to be towed away.

There were no reported injuries.

Bobby Dodd's License Approved

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
 The License Board approved the transfer Tuesday of the common victualer-all alcoholic license for Bobby Dodd's Pub, 160-162 Hancock St.

The transfer was approved after Health Commissioner Dr. M.

Grace Hussey reported to the board that sanitation violations have been corrected.

The board ordered the pub closed last week on the recommendation of Dr. Hussey after a number of violations were cited during health inspections.

"They did a beautiful job (cleaning up)," said Dr.

Hussey who also said the Health Department gave approval for reopening the pub Monday afternoon.

James G. McGinley told the board he is purchasing the business to be known as J. J.'s Barbeque & Lounge and will act as manager.

McGinley, who said hours of operation at the establishment will remain the same, said he has worked as a bartender and has had experience working in a liquor store.

"It should be a big improvement," said Police Chief Francis Finn, "he's young, he can handle it."

"Run a tight ship," said Building Inspector Allan MacDonald, "don't let that bad element in."

Bids Submitted On Abandoned Schools

Bids have been opened for disposal of the Willard, Massachusetts Fields and Pollard Schools, which have been declared surplus by the School Committee.

Furnace Brook Associates, which includes the Grossman interests, was high among 13 bidders for the Willard School in West Quincy with a bid of $916,500.

Fafard Co. topped five bidders for the Mass Fields

School in North Quincy with a bid of $247,000 plus a negotiated percentage of the cash flow.

Manel Properties was high bidder on the Pollard School with $152,000. There were four bidders. Community groups had expressed interest in acquiring the Pollard School but mayoral aide Arthur Foley said none submitted bids.

Foley said Mayor Francis X. McCauley is not obligated to accept the highest bid.

DeCristofaro Urges Retain Pollard School

City Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro has asked Planning Director James E. Lydon to give close study to a proposal by a community group to retain the Pollard School as city property.

"There are many positive features in this proposal," he said in a letter to Lydon, "and the city could benefit greatly by keeping possession of the school."

"I firmly believe that this school will be needed in the not-too-distant future to accommodate youngsters from this area."

"Always the Leader"

HIGHEST EARNING SAVINGS BANK IN MASSACHUSETTS

"Ladies and Gentlemen, our community has come of age!"

With these words, a group of South Boston residents transformed a need into a reality and on September 1, 1863, while a civil war raged, the South Boston Savings Bank opened its doors.

A $50 deposit was made that September day. As we celebrate this milestone, Savings Book No. 1 is still active. The balance, without a penny added or a penny withdrawn, has reached $8,625.00

Today we are the leader, and to earn that distinction we have had to keep ahead of the banking industry for many years.

The South Boston Savings Bank record of paying the highest interest rates available has become legendary. We realize banks don't build banks. People do, one by one. We hope to take the needs of our depositors and turn them into realities. Then, we hope to take them one step further, because at South Boston Savings Bank we believe that once the leader, always the leader.

We've come a long way since the first $50 in Savings Book No. 1.

Police Chief Stresses One-Day Liquor License Responsibility

By NANCY McLAUGHY

Police Chief Francis Finn stressed the responsibility of those granted one day liquor licenses at Tuesday's License Board meeting at City Hall.

"If the license is issued in your name," said Finn, "you can be held totally responsible."

Finn cautioned the license holders against serving anyone to intoxication, and serving minors.

"If car accidents result, you are leaving yourself wide-open for a very large civil suit," said Finn.

Those granted one day all alcoholic licenses at this week's meeting were:

- Janet Coughlin, for a dance to be held by the North Quincy High School Football Boosters Saturday, Oct. 22, 8 p.m. to midnight at Sacred Heart Hall.

- Patricia Shea Ridlen, for a dance to be held by the Houghs Neck Community Center Saturday, Oct. 29, at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall.

- Arthur B. Keefe, to be used in conjunction with a Las Vegas Night Friday, Oct. 14, 7 p.m. to midnight at North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall.

No Rate Increase At City Hospital

It looks like rates at Quincy City Hospital will not be among the things to go up this year.

Director Mark Mundy said the hospital, which charges patients $228 a day for a semi-private room, will not ask for a rate increase this year.

The lack of increase is due to a state hospital cost-control law that became effective last year, said Mundy.

Efficiency measures will be instituted said Mundy, to deal with the hospital's budget of $39.4 million, up $1.5 million from spending for the previous 12 months.

The hospital is expected to finish the fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30, with a surplus of about $200,000, officials said.

Deli Sandwiches Approved For Lickidy Split

Deli sandwiches are scheduled to be added to the menu at Lickidy Split, 144 Franklin St., South Quincy, following approval by the License Board at Tuesday morning's meeting.

The board approved extension of the common victualer license held by Cheryl J. Silvestro for the ice cream shop.

One soft ice cream chest will be taken out to make room for the deli counter, said Miss Silvestro, who also said that an earlier closing hour of 5:30 p.m. will be instituted.

There will be no cooking on the premises, she said.

Health Commissioner Dr. M. Grace Hussey said the shop is "very well kept."

The extension was granted subject to approval by the Historic Commission since the shop is in a historic district.

Phone Company Office Moves To North Quincy

A new American Telephone Information Systems office is being established on a full floor of the Monarch III building in North Quincy.

John Wyman, district staff manager, said Monday the new office will employ about 300 people, most of them transfers from other Boston area offices.

There will, however, be 17 openings for workers to be hired locally.

Wyman said the new office will be running Dec. 5 to handle telephone equipment matters for business customers with an "800" number to handle inquiries and negotiations.

The Quincy facility will become part of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. on Jan. 1 when New England Telephone and other groups are divested from the Bell companies by court order.

The Quincy operation, said Wyman, will be the flagship of the five New England offices to be established in Arlington and Springfield, Mass., Providence, R.I., and Manchester, N.H.

Peter O'Connell of OCB, Inc., said the acquisition of the telephone office means that 85 per cent of the seven-story Monarch III building is now occupied.

Howard Johnson Co. has taken three of the seven floors.

Readers Forum

There Are Nice People

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Since the cynics are firmly convinced that most folks today won't bother to assist strangers in distress, may we use this forum to relate an experience that dispels that all-too-prevalent impression?

While, at the same time, convey our heartfelt gratitude to several Good Samaritans who went out of their way to lend a helping hand? And spread the gospel of how to start a car disabled with wet wires, via a system that usually works.

Our nerve-racking saga with a happy ending began when our car (of considerable vintage) "conked out" during a recent torrential downpour late at night. Before I was aware of it, because the rain was belting down so heavily that I had to stop the car with zero visibility—we were marooned in water over two feet deep on Standish Ave., Wollaston. And just imagine the shock of being drenched by a tidal wave when I swung over the door after being unable to re-start the motor.

Wife Kae and I had no choice but to patiently sit out the storm and wait for the flood waters to subside. Meanwhile, we flashed our high beams and both directional signals constantly to warn drivers coming in both directions of the unit cars clogging the street. When finally the waters ebbed, a young man helped push our disabled car to the curbing and out of danger in the pitch-black and eerie atmosphere and then let us use his phone to arrange for transportation home.

Collaborating in the concerted effort to start the damp engine next day by means of jump wires and various drying solutions were Mr. and Mrs. Maroud Abouzeid and son Andre, Doug Lloyd and John Callahan, all neighbors on Standish Ave. But their gallant work was in vain until Scott Holbrook, co-owner of Fitzbrook Auto & Marine Service was contacted by phone, and ventured: "If you remove the distributor cap, dry it thoroughly and then replace it, I'm pretty sure your car will start." The Abouzeids, father and son, followed Scott's advice and, viola, as if by magic the engine sputtered - then started.

Any lingering doubts we may have harbored about "man's inhumanity to man" vanished instantly with our heartwarming experience. And all parties concerned were highly indignant when we tried to insist they accept a reward for coming to the rescue of a grateful elderly couple they didn't even know.

As we drove off, our lagging faith in human nature completely restored, one of the Abouzeid youngsters said it all with: "What are friends for - if not to help one another?"

Women Voters Come Long Way

In case you haven't noticed, women have become a powerful political force in Quincy.

The hand that once used to only rock the cradle, now has a firm grip on the ballot box.

To borrow that cigarette commercial, you've come a long way, baby. Consider:

City Clerk John Gillis came across a "Qualified Female Voters" list for the town of Quincy issued by the selectmen on Feb. 19, 1880.

Total number: 9. (H.J. Adams, Elizabeth S. Barker, Adelaide A. Claffin, Ellen M. Carpenter, Isabel F. Emery, Augusta A. Harlow, Lucretia S. Pierce, Caroline A. Spear and Adeline T. Tirrell.)

In those days women could vote but for school committee only.

In 1919 when the 19th amendment to the Constitution was adopted, giving nation-wide suffrage to women, Quincy now a city — had 7,707 male registered voters and 429 female voters.

In 1920 when the 19th amendment actually became effective, women rushed to register. In that year, male voters numbered 9,290 but women were catching up fast. There were 6,236 of them.

As of the most recent check Aug. 24, women voters outnumber male voters 26,410 to 20,155.

Women now have a strong voice and its getting stronger as the years go by.

Three women hold elective office: Councillor at-large Patricia Toland, Ward 6 Councillor Joanne Condon and School Committee Vice Chairwoman Mary Collins who this year is trying to unseat Condon.

If women voters were organized to vote a "female ticket", just about every elective office in the city would be held by a woman.

Fortunately, they don't. They vote the candidate. Or, at least most of them do.

But looking down the political road, there definitely is a woman mayor in Quincy's future. And it could happen in the 1980's.

Her Honor, who will she be?

Who ever she is, it will be interesting to see how a woman would run the city.

Of course, she would insist she be judged not as a woman, but as a person.

But regardless, she would be Quincy's first woman mayor. And she would be a woman, running the city. That's worth waiting for.

Guns For Security Can Be Hazardous

About half of all American households have at least one firearm, many of them handguns. They keep them because guns give them a sense of security.

If you are one of those who own a handgun, you should be familiar with all the basic facts about its possession and use.

Many people die from firearms each year and many others suffer accidental injuries. More than half of the fatal firearms incidents occur in or around the home and children account for about 40 per cent of them.

However comforting a gun might be to you it is important that you realize it also increases the chances of an accident or a homicide. Unless you and every member of your household know exactly how to keep and use a firearm safely, it is probably more hazardous to you than any intruder.

All firearms in the home, including hunting rifles and shotguns, should be equipped with lockable trigger guards.

Also remove the firing pins from guns which are part of a collection or are used for decorative purposes.

Any firearm capable of and intended for firing should be maintained in good working condition. A firearm in poor working condition may cause injury or death to its user.

All firearms should be stored in a safe place, away from the prying eyes of children and in a place where an intruder would be unlikely to find it.

idea but he wants one last consultation with his financial advisors before voting.

"If we were to vote now, I'd vote no," he said.

"From what I have observed so far, the city will be in the best financial shape next year that it has been in many years. Perhaps we should vote 'no' now and see what next year brings.

"On a political basis, the people I've talked to want a 'no' vote."

"I'm leaning toward a 'no' vote," said Councillor Richard J. Koch Jr., "but I still want to think about it some more.

"I would not want to throw it on the ballot just for the sake of doing it and having it defeated. If we needed it in a couple of years we could put it on the ballot then without prejudice.

"I'm not convinced now that the exemption is necessary."

McGrath said he didn't want to say how he plans to vote while the issue is still in the discussion stage.

"I'm working on some figures the auditor gave me on future finances," he said.

"Personally, I feel there is sufficient money in the budget to pay the abatement without cutting schools, police or fire.

"For instance, the auditor tells me that the city's payments on the bonded debt will go down $2 million from $5.6 million in fiscal 1984 to $3.6 million in fiscal 1985.

"With local aid from the state, I don't know if I see the need for an override of Proposition 2½."

Councillor Patricia Toland said she is leaning toward putting the issue on the Nov. 8 ballot but, she added, "I'm not sure yet. I want to hear more discussion on the city's finances over the next 10 years."

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said he has had informal talks with the councillors over the past week to explain to them why he feels the referendum should be put on the ballot. "I feel that, with other utility abatements and rising fixed costs facing us, the voters should be given an opportunity to have a say on the matter," he said.

He said recent statements by Frank T. Keefe, state secretary for administration and finance, on future state aid could mean as much as $3.5 million more for Quincy under the old formula.

He also noted that, under Proposition 2½ the city will be allowed to raise the tax levy by some $1.1 million in fiscal 1985.

"But that doesn't change my mind on the exemption," he said. "The fixed costs, salary increases to city workers and possible utility abatements add up to about $5 million in added expenses."

Firefighters Salary Hiked To $3,200

The City Council voted Quincy firefighters a $200 raise to wipe out the differential in pay between the Fire and Police Departments. The new annual wage for privates would be $3,200.

William Edmonston, executive secretary of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, voiced his organization's objections to the raise.

"If the firemen get the raise of $200 then the policemen will demand a 40-hour week and all other city employees will want more liberal working conditions," he said.

"This will mean a $4 raise in taxes."

Brownell Pushes For MDC Water & Sewer Authority

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) has forwarded a copy of his legislation to create an independent Metropolitan Water & Sewer Authority to Senate President William Bulger and House Minority Leader William Robinson, both of whom have indicated support for such a proposal.

Brownell said, "I am pleased that these two influential elected officials are supportive of looking into the possibility of creating such an Authority. I think we all realize that the serious pollution problems caused by malfunctioning sewage treatment plants operated by the MDC are intolerable."

"In light of the recent remarks by Judge Paul Garrity, who said that a separate Authority would be the 'ultimate remedy,' the support of Senator Bulger and Representative Robinson is encouraging.

The Brownell legislation, (H.5825) would:

• Create a Metropolitan Water & Sewer Authority.

• It would have a seven member Board of Directors, all of them appointed by the Governor to staggered terms.

• The Directors would choose their own chairman and appoint an Executive Director.

• The Executive Director would have to be a Certified Public Engineer with a working knowledge of water and sewer system functions.

• All new prospective technical personnel would be hired on a competency basis and tested in a manner prescribed by the Board of Directors as to their knowledge of water and sewer operation. Present sewer and water employees of the MDC would be transferred to the Authority and retain civil service status.

• All other personnel decisions would rest with the Executive Director subject to the budget controls of the Board of Directors.

• All appropriations to the MWSA should come from member cities and towns, all of which must have water and sewer charges, and the assessments to said cities and towns would not be subject to Chapter 580, Acts of 1981. The assessments shall be apportioned according to the service provided by the MWSA and modeled after the present apportionment by the M.D.C.

• MWSA would have bonding authority. All equipment, assets, and indebtedness would be assigned and transferred to Authority.

WHERE THERE'S SMOKING

For years, fire authorities have been yelling themselves hoarse about careless smoking. Despite their warning, smoking is still the number one fire menace in this nation, causing some 200,000 fires a year and claiming about twelve hundred lives.

It's appalling how quietly and effectively one little cigarette can do you in. The cigarette, because it is treated with sodium nitrate to keep it burning, does not go out. After you take that first drag, the tobacco will burn and burn, until it consumes itself in ten to fifteen minutes. That's plenty of time for it to eat through the mattress or upholstery cover, igniting the stuffing below. And don't think a cigarette lacks kindling power. Its interior, even without the draft supplied by your puffing, is over 1,000 degrees Fahrenheit—hot enough to melt lead! Seventy per cent of all cigarette fire victims die because smokers doze off in bed or in chairs. Don't do it! It's far too easy to kill yourself.

Delahunt Coalition 'Citizen Of Year'

Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt has been named the 1983 Citizen of the Year by the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights.

Presentation ceremonies will be held Wednesday Oct. 5, at 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy Center United Methodist Church, corner of Granite and Fort Sts., Quincy. The public is invited.

The Citizen of the Year award is given to one who works, in his or her chosen field toward the ideal that Dr. Martin Luther King envisioned 20 years ago, when he dreamed about a country where people are judged not by their color, but by their accomplishments.

The coalition feels that Delahunt and his staff have successfully prosecuted those who violated the Massachusetts Civil Rights Act. Delahunt, in his official capacity, has spoken out against such violators, and is now in the process of introducing an educational program for law enforcement officers on racism, according to the coalition.

Delahunt, who is married and the father of two daughters, graduated from Thayer Academy in Braintree in 1959. He has an AB degree in political science from Middlebury College, Vt., and an LLB degree from Boston College Law School.

He has done graduate

work at the Dante Alighieri Institute in Rome, Italy, and at Boston University.

Elected to the Quincy City Council in 1971, he also served two terms in the Massachusetts House of Representatives, until he was appointed District Attorney of Norfolk County in 1975.

Delahunt was subsequently elected to this position in 1978 and re-elected in 1982.

In presenting this award to Delahunt, the coalition recognizes him as the person who has done the most to further the cause of Civil Rights in the South Shore during the past year.

Previous recipients of this award have been Peter O'Connell of O'Connell Brothers Construction Company, Rosemary Wahlberg of the Quincy Community Action organization, and David Harris of the Randolph Fair Practices Committee.

For further information, call the coalition office, at 472-3396.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Ideas and customs change in some things during the years. But what has been said and written about man and funerals in every era is just as true today, because man has changed only a little since the beginning of time. Man has altered his environment. He may know or think he knows more about himself and the world around him, but his drives, emotions, wants and needs remain basically the same.

We recognize today what men in all ages have realized. Even though the personality has left the body in death, the body remains the only medium through which that person was known to other men. St. Augustine said: "Since the body is the organ and instrument used by the soul in the performance of good works, it is a natural duty that we pay respect to the body."

This is ONE of the reasons why people will continue the custom during visitation hours to pay their "last respects" . . .

Anniversary Sunday At Bethany Church

Anniversary Sunday will be observed Oct. 2 by Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Centre. The Holy Communion will be celebrated during the 10 a.m. service in the sanctuary.

"Love the Church" will be the title of the sermon by the senior minister, the Rev. J. William Arnold. Serving as liturgist will be the associate minister, the Rev. Joel F. Huntington.

The scripture lessons will be read by Sarah L. MacLeod. The chancel choir, under the direction of organist Peter E. Krasinski will sing the anthem "Built on a Rock" composed by Ludwig Lindeman.

Church School classes for nursery through ninth grade will be held at 10 a.m. Provisions for babies in the crib room are also provided.

Fellowship time will be held in the downstairs social hall following the worship service. At 11:45 a.m. there will be a covered dish dinner to which everyone is invited.

The program, "Bethany Church on TV" will begin at 12:30 p.m. in the Allen Parlor. There will be TV tapes of various events held at the church during the past year, including the "Lenten Service of Spirituals" featuring guest soloist Ruth E. Hamilton, and the Bethany Players production "Here We Go Again". The tapes will be shown simultaneously on several large television sets.

This anniversary celebration will be "Homecoming Sunday". All past and present members and friends of Bethany Church are invited to attend all of the events.

Last Sunday, the American Ambassador to Egypt, Mr. Alfred LeRoy Atherton, and his wife, the former Betty Wylie from Quincy, attended the worship service at Bethany.

During the fellowship hour, they were honored and greeted by many friends and parishioners. The Athertons were originally scheduled to give a dialogue sermon but due to the unsettled conditions in Lebanon and the Near East they were unable to make a firm prior commitment.

President Ronald Reagan is promoting Mr. Atherton to the post of Director General of Foreign Service at the State Department. Now permanently stationed in Washington, the Athertons will be visiting Bethany again and will give their dialogue presentation at a date to be announced later.

'Finding The Wide Doors' Squantum Church Sermon

In a sermon entitled "Finding the Wide Doors," the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor of the First Church of Squantum, urged the congregation Sunday to see their problems as opportunities for serving God.

The sermon was preached during the first morning service at the church.

Sarah Midram and Steve Williams led the call to worship, Deborah Stolberg gave the opening prayer, Susan Scott led the offering prayer and Michael Stamos and Blythe Bumpus were the ushers.

The service was unusual because the pastor gave the worshippers a written quiz on the Scripture reading after it was read. Members of the congregation worked together to answer the questions.

Guitarists Andrew Ogilvie, Steve Williams and Mary Ruth Scott provided the music.

At the second service the pastor preached on the topic, "Living in the Now," taking as his text these words from the Old Testament, "Not with our fathers did the Lord make this covenant, but with us, who are all of us alive here this day."

During that service, the Chancel Choir sang B. Cecil Gates' arrangement of "The Lord's Prayer."

This Sunday will be Covenant Sunday at the church. All congregation members have been asked to be present to renew their covenant with God and the church.

The Lord's Supper will be served at both the guitar service at 8:30 a.m. and the traditional service at 10:30 a.m.

After the second service and the Fellowship Hour, the church council will have its regular fall meeting.

On Friday, Oct. 7, there will be a "Ham and Bean Supper" at the First Church of Squantum at 6:30 p.m.

After the supper photographer Robert Gorrill will show his slide show, "This is Boston," which consists of various scenes of contemporary Boston.

School Assaults Anger Santoro

Frank Santoro, a candidate for School Committee, says he is angry about recent reports that two youngsters at Quincy schools were assaulted in the past two years.

Santoro said he learned his daughter was one of the girls who answered phones at the Merrymount School at the time of the assault there.

"Reading the article was the first I heard of it," he said. "As a matter of fact I didn't even know she was missing class time to answer the phone. She informed me that she as well as other girls were assigned to the duty daily."

Santoro said he was never informed of the incident, adding that "this is just another case of the community being shut off from knowing what it should know."

He also criticized the school administration for allowing students to leave the classroom and miss the class of instruction to answer the phone.

"Everyone puts the blame on someone else," he said. "The real blame lies with the School Committee because of their lack of involvement with school operations."

"If it were not for a parent's effort this issue would still be unknown. It is time for the community to become a part of the school system. It makes you wonder what else has happened over the years."

The Campaign Trail

Iacobucci Won't Accept Council Pay Raise

Ronald P. Iacobucci says if he is elected at large to the City Council in November he will not accept the recently voted pay raise unless certain conditions are met.

The conditions include a resolution of the General Dynamics tax case and related utility cases and the formal approval and honoring by the city of all labor contracts.

"Unless these conditions are met," he said, "my portion of the pay raise will be returned to the general fund."

Iacobucci called the timing of the pay raises, which were finally set in ordinance Sept. 19, "an absolute disgrace."

"I do not quarrel with the amounts," he said. "I do, however, have a strong objection to the timing. It is never a good time for a politician to vote for a pay raise but this is the worst possible time.

"The city of Quincy faces a financial crisis in paying back General Dynamics, city contracts for individuals who teach our children and protect our streets have not been formally approved and the fear of 100 per cent revaluation still remains."

Bar Assn. To Meet Oct. 3

Reservations should be made by Sept. 27 for the first meeting of the year of the Quincy Bar Association Monday, Oct. 3, at the Cathay Pacific Restaurant, North Quincy.

There will be a social hour from 6 to 7 p.m., followed by a dinner of Chinese appetizers and entrees.

Robert S. Prince, Associate Justice of the Superior Court, has been invited as guest speaker.

Reservations may be made with Louis A. Cassis, Esq., 1200 Hancock St., Quincy, Ma., 02169.

Condon Scores MBTA Red Line Service In N.Q.

City Councillor Joanne Condon has written to MBTA General Manager James F. O'Leary calling his attention to what she called "the poor quality of service" on the Red Line in North Quincy.

"Service on this line," she said, "since its inception, has never been first rate to say the least, however, since the opening of the Quincy Adams Station it has been intolerable.

"The commuters I represent in the north section of the city cannot board a train for Boston at the North Quincy Station during commuter rush hours. The situation is unacceptable."

"It is my understanding that only one car per train has been added to accommodate the new station, which has parking facilities for about 2,000 cars along with local residents who do not use the parking facilities.

"Planning on the part of the T has been inefficient, ineffective and inadequate and I am requesting that positive action be taken immediately."

Collins Says Trucks Still Use E. Squantum St.

Mary Collins, a candidate for the City Council from Ward 6, has charged that developers of Harbourside Condominiums have violated their agreement with the city to have trucks use only the Jordan Marsh road.

"I have observed on at least three occasions construction vehicles using East Squantum St.," she said in a letter to William O'Connell of O'Connell Management Co., Inc.

"One of the terms of the planning unit development agreement was that, until the access road is completed, all construction vehicles must use the Jordan Marsh road to reach the site.

"I am calling this to your attention with the hope that something will be done so that the terms of the agreement will be fully adhered to."

Norfolk Labor Council Endorses Candidates

The Norfolk Labor Council has voted to endorse six candidates for the Quincy City Council and two for the School Committee.

They are incumbent Councillors Richard J.

Koch Jr., Joseph J. LaRaia and Patricia Toland, all at large; Theodore DeCristofaro in Ward 2, Stephen J. McGrath in Ward 5 and Joanne Condon in Ward 6.

The School Committee candidates endorsed are

John J. Sullivan, an incumbent, and William Arienti, a new comer.

There Was A Need

25 Years Later: A Vibrant Junior College

By JAMES R. MCINTYRE

Twenty-five years ago a group of Quincy citizens gathered together and discussed whether or not there was a need for a higher educational institution in the city.

We can see around us today, 25 years later, the results of that discussion, an active and vibrant Junior College serving Quincy and the South Shore.

The past 25 years have been a story of vision, leadership, cooperation and courage!

Quincy Junior College was started by a dream of a few people. Now it stands as the only municipally sponsored Junior College in the entire state, and is competing favorably with private and public colleges in the South Shore and greater Boston, and is holding its head high in providing quality education for the young people of the metropolitan area.

After concluding my service as mayor, I have been active with the Community College Association of the South Shore and have seen the various challenges that have been presented to the college, some, literally for its very existence.

In recent years Proposition 2½ has presented the greatest fiscal challenge of all and I am pleased to allege on this 25th anniversary that the challenge has been overcome, that the revolving fund legislation passed by the General Court has streamlined the college, given it a new independence, germinated creative and imaginative new ideas propelling the college efficiently into the eighties and into its second quarter century squarely on its educational fiscal feet.

When it was born, the college was primarily a liberal arts institution and was created to assist young people in finding themselves after the difficult and at times turbulent years of adjustment from high school, but now the college, 25 years later, while it still has the same mission of giving our young people hope for future productivity, is specifically concentrating in the fields of financial technology and health care.

Several years ago, the College took over from Quincy City Hospital the responsibility of providing a nursing school for the hospitals of the South Shore and has assimilated into its curricula from the Vocational-Technical School, courses in dental technology and practical nursing. Most recently, it is acting as a coagulant between the business community and the educational community and is providing courses in training for the technical world of computers, business accounting, marketing, etc. While the roles of the college have changed substantially over the last 25 years, the goals have been the same, to provide a quality education and equip the young people of the South Shore to take their productive place in this ever-changing society.

To the over 10,000 graduates, as Chairman of the Board of Community College Association of the South Shore, I extend our sincere congratulations for their achievements in Quincy and the world, and our best wishes to the future graduates of Quincy Junior College for success over the next 25 years. The founding fathers of the college are literally the Community College Association of the South Shore who 25 years ago had the vision and faith to foresee success for Quincy Junior College. It is fitting that all of the thousands of those who have benefitted educationally from their efforts pause on this 25th anniversary of Quincy Junior College and tacitly reflect upon their effort.

Then And Now

In 1958 there were 15 fulltime students and 12 course offerings in the late afternoon and early evenings four days a week.

In 1958 the municipally sponsored junior college served three communities.

In 1958 QJC won approval from the State Department of Education for a one-year college program.

In 1959 approval was granted to offer two-year college programs.

In 1962 QJC was authorized to grant associate degrees in the arts and sciences.

In 1963 the first AA and AS degrees were awarded.

In 1963 two deans were appointed: Hugo Saluti, dean of administration; Joseph Fluhr, dean of students.

From 1958 to 1980 QJC was tax-supported.

In 1967 the college was in four-day operation and daytime classes began.

In 1971 Summer Session I was initiated.

In 1983 there are 1,299 fulltime students and 300 course offerings from 8 a.m. to 9:20 p.m., Monday through Friday.

In 1983 it serves 91 communities.

In 1972 the college gained status as candidate for accreditation.

In 1980 accreditation was granted by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

In 1983 there are three deans: Dr. Linda Wilson, dean of students; Hugo Saluti, dean of administration; Richard Mula, dean of continuing education.

In 1981, QJC became financially independent through a revolving account.

In 1983 the weekend college started with classes Friday evenings and all day Saturday.

In 1982 Summer Session II began.

From a 1973 graduate:

"I found that the courses I had taken at Quincy Junior College gave me a good solid background when I continued at a four-year college. I was able to concentrate directly on my major since all the requirements had been fulfilled at QJC."

From a member of the Class of 1977:

"I enjoyed the years I spent at Quincy Junior College. The teachers and the classes were very good. If QJC had been a four-year college I would have stayed the whole four years."

The Seeds Of QJC Were Planted In 1954

By MARGARET M. BUCK

Emerging from the needs of the local community, Quincy Junior College's roots can be traced to 1954.

At that time, 29 years ago, Dr. Paul Gossard, superintendent of the Quincy Public Schools, and a group of educationally minded citizens, particularly Francis Anselmo, Dr. Charles Djerr, Maude Johnson, Dr. Edward Mann, James McCormick, Alice Mitchell, and Charles Sweeney, organized the group known as College Courses Incorporated at Quincy High School.

These courses were taught during the late afternoon and early evening hours by the faculty from area colleges such as Eastern Nazarene College, Boston State and Boston University.

Dr. Charles Akers, a history professor at ENC, was the program's first director.

The unique status of the college as a municipally run institution of higher learning and the subsequent development of the state community college system after Quincy Junior College was founded led to a request for the State Board of Education to approve Quincy as a two-year junior college.

Legally and practically this was essential, for without it the college would cease to exist.

As of 1959 state law mandated that no junior college could be established by a city or town in the commonwealth.

Permission was granted for QJC to continue as a two-year college and later in 1962 the State Department of Education authorized QJC to grant associate degrees in arts and sciences.

Kenneth P. White, first president of the college, stated in June, 1961 that "Quincy Junior College is a community asset which makes Quincy a more attractive place to live."

The community, Quincy and surrounding towns, provided the college with many traditional and non-traditional students.

These students benefitted from the curricula which, as the college brochure of 1958-59 states, "is...curricula for students with a wide range of abilities, interests, aptitudes, and goals."

At this time, QJC offered three programs: an arts and sciences curriculum for transfer to four-year colleges, a general curriculum for those who were undecided about career plans, and a business curriculum for those planning to enter the business world.

This community based institution was responsive to the needs of the community and developed programs to fit those needs.

As Frank Anselmo, school committeeman, stated in June 1963, "This Quincy Junior College is a 'gold mine' in many ways. Not only in the tangible savings to the students, but to the community as well. Here, we are manufacturing individuals of a higher level for the future without which our society would die."

Kenneth White, formerly dean at municipally run Newton Junior College, and director of QJC, was the college's first president as of February, 1964.

He reaffirmed the college's interest in serving the community, stating in August, 1965, "We are planning to grow and develop as a municipal junior college, offering courses for the college transfer student, for the terminal student and for the adult. We wish to make QJC a vital force in the community."

Under the leadership of president White the enrollment of the college increased, courses were added, and authorization to grant AA and AS degrees was obtained.

In 1962 a new secretarial program was added and in 1963 two deans' positions. Joseph Fluhr was appointed dean of students and Hugo Saluti dean of administration. By 1967 daytime classes were offered.

Space was a critical problem as early as 1965 and by 1967 the need was crucial. The College now had to place many students on a waiting list for lack of facilities.

The old Coddington School, which had been shared by the college and the elementary school, was opened entirely for college use. The result was that the college could operate during the day as well as the evening.

Unexpectedly, President White died of a heart attack in November, 1971. During his tenure at QJC the institution evolved into a classic junior college and its graduates transferred to four-year colleges. Again the service to the South Shore Community was apparent.

The unhappy occurrence of President White's death offered the academic community of QJC an opportunity to reflect on the type of institution and leadership it desired.

Under the direction of the superintendent of schools, Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon as acting president of the college, the students and faculty were actively involved in the selection of a new President to a degree never before experienced.

The nation-wide search for the second president was completed when Dr. Edward Pierce, former dean of administration at Keene State College of the University of New Hampshire, was selected to lead the institution in its future endeavors.

Dr. Pierce's administration saw enrollment and tuition income double, the development of off-campus sites, the expansion of community and career oriented programs, and a new professionalism.

As the growth of the College demanded more services, an academic dean and a dean of continuing education were appointed. Early Childhood Education and Data Processing programs were developed. A move to partial use of the old courthouse, adjacent to the old Coddington building, allowed for additional flexibility in scheduling.

A proposal during Dr. Pierce's administration to incorporate QJC into the state community college system as South Shore Community College was advocated by many in the entire community.

But, as former Quincy Mayor James McIntyre forewarned, it was "becoming increasingly difficult for QJC to receive state aid." Approval to build South Shore Community College was granted, and permission to build the facility on the Broad Meadows site was received, but state aid was never given.

With state funds denied, QJC continued its growth and expansion on its original site, in the heart of historic Quincy.

During Dr. Pierce's tenure as president of QJC, its direction changed.

The college program, inherited from President White, was that of a traditional junior college. Its purpose was to provide transfer to a four-year college.

Pierce's administration saw the shift to career and hi-tech programs.

The LPN and RN programs were initiated. Grants from federal and state sources aided in the development of services to the college community in areas such as basic skills through Title III and students services helping displaced homemakers.

Near the completion of Dr. Pierce's decade at QJC major changes were mandated when the voters of Massachusetts enacted Proposition 2½ in November, 1980. Evaluation of all aspects of the college was necessary since financial adjustments were required.

Dr. Pierce resigned as president effective July, 1982.

For the interim year, 1982-83, while a nationwide search for a new president was conducted, Dr. Lawrence Creedon was again appointed acting president.

Many innovated programs were initiated. Word processing, cable services, child care, micro-computer lab are examples of the types and diversity of undertakings during the year.

The organization of an alumni association and a board of trustees occurred to aid in the further development of the institution. Contacts in local businesses such as General Dynamics, National Fire Protection Association, Procter and Gamble and Penumatic Scale were continued and developed.

Cooperation with other colleges and educational agencies such as Curry College in Milton, Anna Maria College in Paxton, banking institute of the South Shore and Casa del Sol in Boston allow QJC students opportunities for educational enrichment and advancement.

In 1958 Dr. Akers described Quincy Junior College as "a college without frills. It is the macadamized front yard of the Coddington grammar school, the quarters are four classrooms on the second floor of the school. We're building our own library in the school basement and will have it in operation by the end of this month. Previously we've been using the Crane Public Library across the street.

"We'll soon be able to use Quincy High School laboratories which are being upgraded to enable us to give college courses in various subjects requiring lab work. By using existing school facilities, the junior college can offer local residents a high level college program at a fraction of the usual tuition."

The "gold mine" Frank Anselmo spoke of was developing.

As Charles Sweeney, a member of the board of the Community College Association of Quincy and the South Shore, stated in the 1960s, "The growth has been slow and cautious but steady and forward. The standards have been kept high and it is our firm intention to keep them so. There are no frills, no ivied halls, no football idealism, no fraternity houses, and not too many Cadillac convertibles."

"What there is here is the basic function of any college - opportunity for learning, for knowledge, for skills, all gateways to an abundant future."

The comments of Akers and Sweeney over 20 years ago are still pertinent.

With the arrival of Dr. O. Clayton Johnson, holding a master's degree and a doctorate from Rutgers University and formerly vice president at Worcester State College, QJC has a marvelous opportunity to advance in the field of higher education.

The quality and extent of Dr. Johnson's education and experience at seven other colleges and universities, among them Rutgers, Columbia and the State University of New York, are outstanding.

All factors place QJC in the fortunate position of knowing that the future years will be directed by a competent, caring, capable, and inspiring administrator.

As 1983 graduate Steven Doyle stated in the College Newsletter "Quincy Junior College can be considered one of the supportive building blocks of our academic life."

With Dr. Clayton Johnson those building blocks will be even stronger.

Dr. Creedon:

'Convinced QJC Has Turned The Corner'

By TOM HENSHAW

"I'm convinced," said School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, "that Quincy Junior College has turned the corner."

"We are no longer governed by crisis management and survival psychology. I couldn't have said that until this month."

That's a far cry from the day more than two years ago when the School Committee, faced with drastic budget cuts under proposition 2½, authorized Dr. Creedon to take charge of the college and "sink or swim."

Quincy Junior College had a deficit of $460,000 during the 1980-81 school year. The loss, as always, had been made up by the tax payers. The college had cost the city $2 million between 1974 and 1981.

Proposition 2½ made such financial support from the city virtually impossible.

"Prop. 2½ was the best thing that ever happened to Quincy Junior College, even though it was catastrophic for the rest of the school system," said Creedon.

"It forced us to make the decision to close or strike out on our own."

The School Committee's first reaction was to rid itself of the only municipally supported college in the Commonwealth. But Creedon secured the okay to continue, provided it did not cost the city anything.

"For years," said Creedon, "the junior college had been on more or less caretaker status. For a long time we waited for the state to take over and add Quincy to the community college system."

"It became clear to us along about 1975 that the state was not going to take over Quincy Junior College but the city was in no position to help shape the future of the college."

The plans that Creedon laid out for the rejuvenation of the junior college were high risk, involving a shift from liberal arts to career tech programs and a hefty raise in tuition.

"We could no longer try to be competitive with the state-supported community colleges," he said. "If we were to survive it would be as a private institution and we would have to

"We took a look at the budget and the tuition structure and we realized that in excess of 70 per cent of the budget was made up of tuition. We were losing 25 percent of the budget every year."

"From that point on, every program had to be self-supporting. Jones could no longer pay for Smith's program. We moved from a single tuition structure to three divisions, each self-supporting."

"And, for the first time in history, Quincy Junior College got out an aggressive recruiting campaign."

"As a result of all these initiatives we went from $460,000 deficit to a $165,000 surplus in the very first year and we did not go down in enrollment in spite of our fears."

Now, said Creedon, those fears are behind.

"This is our third year off the tax rolls," he said. "We've gone to the marketplace three times and come out ahead. After some very high tuition hikes we have stabilized tuitions."

"This month we anticipated a 10 per cent decline in enrollment because of the population trends and the significant increase in tuition. Instead, we are 2 per cent up over last year."

"We feel that by the time all admissions are over, we will be up 5 per cent."

"That says to me that we are doing a good job of marketing and recruiting and that the institution has acquired a good reputation among its graduates, which are our best form of advertising."

Creedon said the success of the junior college over the past two-plus years has given him a tremendous sense of personal satisfaction.

"When 2½ hit, we had every reason to say the whole thing was beyond our control. There would be no state takeover and, after the citizens had spoken, there would be no tax money."

"We decided that if we were going down we would go down swinging and it worked. To our surprise, we found not only that it could be done but that it was worth doing."

Alumni Assn. A Most Valuable Resource

One of the most valuable resources any college has is its alumni, those former students who have benefited from their affiliations with the school and are now productive members of the community and business world.

Quincy Junior College had not established a formal program to organize its alumni in the fall of 1981 when a special task force was formed under the direction of Dr. Linda Wilson, dean of students, to identify a group of alumni who would be instrumental in the formation of the first Quincy Junior College Alumni Association.

Names of potential members of this new "Alumni Council" were provided by the faculty and administration of the College. The select alumni were invited to a special meeting at the Neighborhood Club Nov. 10, 1981.

Thus, the Quincy Junior College Alumni Association was officially born.

The goals of the newly established alumni program were to promote collegiality among the graduates of Quincy Junior College and provide institutional support by the alumni through improved recruitment, academic growth, social benefits, and development and scholarship funding.

The task was great, but the enthusiasm shown by the Alumni Council met the challenges successfully.

Throughout the winter of 1981-82, Council members volunteered their time to help organize a working list of some 5,000 Quincy Junior College graduates. The Council met on a weekly basis to work on the list, establish an Association Charter and plan for future events.

On Jan. 26, 1982, the Council elected its first slate of officers:

President, Russell Savala; Vice-President, Joanne Gallagher; Treasurer, James Haddad; Recording Secretary, Jeanne Greene; Corresponding Secretary, Kathleen Mullaney.

In March, 1982, the Council sent out its first notice to alumni inviting them to join the Association and attend an Alumni Coffee Hour April 27 to kick-off the membership drive. In response, more than 150 graduates joined the Alumni Association. As a first effort, this was seen as a positive step for the fledgling organization.

Amid its other tasks, the Alumni Council found time to plan the first in what was hoped would become a traditional Commencement weekend event: the Alumni Commencement Breakfast.

Open to all alumni, college personnel, graduates and their guests, the first Alumni Breakfast was held on commencement morning, June 6, 1982. The heavy rains of the day did nothing to dampen the spirits of the more than 150 people who shared in the festivities. The breakfast was a wonderful culmination to the year and a sign of good things yet to come.

Through the 1982-83 academic year, the Alumni Council continued its dedicated efforts to promote and expand the Quincy Junior College Alumni Association.

An on-going task is the long process of verifying and updating information on alumni.

In 25 years the College has served thousands of students, many of whom have moved to all parts of the country, and, indeed, the world.

Another goal for the current year is a start in raising Alumni Association funds. The Association needs operating capital, especially to help defray the costs of mailing a quarterly newsletter.

The Council sponsored several bake sales and coffee and doughnut sales at the College in the fall of 1982, but the major fund raising activity, however, was held March 21-24, 1983.

The first Alumni Phonathon was conducted on those evenings and the results showed that alumni still care for the College that cared for them.

Using a bank of telephones at Kemper Insurance Co., donated especially for the Phonathon, over 30 volunteers placed calls to many of alumni during those four nights. The Phonathon led to more than $8,000 in pledges to be used for the 25th Anniversary Alumni Scholarship fund.

Future students who might otherwise be unable to meet their college expenses will thus be assisted by the Quincy Junior College alumni.

An added feature to the Commencement Weekend in 1983 was Quincy Junior College Alumni Night at the Boston Pops on the Friday before graduation.

The Alumni Association and its Council members have come a long way in a brief time. The College looks forward to the continued growth and input of its alumni, a resource from the past for the future.

New President Sees:

Strong Cable TV, Industry Ties In Future

By TOM HENSHAW

More adults than younger students . . . close ties with local industry . . . cable television turning living rooms into class rooms . . . satellite campuses ranging far down the South Shore.

That's the Quincy Junior College of the not too distant future envisioned by Dr. O. Clayton Johnson, its brand new third president.

"There is definitely a move to career education," says Dr. Johnson, "It was partly planned and partly forced by Proposition 2½. We have no alternative.

"Look at the pool of students in the 18 and 19-year-old entering age. In the mid-1990s, this pool will drop 40 per cent. Most schools will have to go more and more to adult students.

"We have to approach them with practical education. More and more colleges are developing continuing education. But we're the only college in the area committed to helping students already in service."

The age and makeup of the student body isn't all that is changing, says Dr. Johnson.

"By the mid-1990s," he says, "there will be little or no education in the old brick schoolhouse. It will be in the homes and industry.

"Students will be in the living room at 8 p.m. watching and listening to Shakespeare's sonnets or learning computer programming and perhaps coming to school for weekend seminars.

"For the first time in our lives, through cable television, we can control the images that go into the house and find a way to charge for it.

"It goes beyond education. We are finding that in five to 10 years industry will not need a place for people to go to work.

"If I run a bank, why do I need expensive workspace when I can hire a housewife in Pembroke to reconcile bank accounts in her home on a $200 computer?"

"The technical know how is there now. What is not there is human willingness. But if there is another oil crisis we will think a lot more of this."

Dr. Johnson says he does not think that the plan for a Quincy or South Shore Junior College facility at Broad Meadows will ever come to pass.

"I'd like to see some additions here," he says, gesturing to the current campus in the old Coddington Elementary School and the old Quincy Courthouse.

"You could put a beautiful building behind here and clean up some of the clutter. I'd love to see this Quincy campus become the center of a broader college environment.

"I'd like to see two satellite campuses in the Kingston-Plymouth and Marshfield areas so that we could truly serve the South Shore. They would also be cultural centers for the communities.

"But the money would have to come from the state."

Dr. Johnson says he believes that the state can do a lot of things for Quincy Junior College that are not being done now.

"The state has a responsibility to help us to lower tuitions," he says. "We are educating students now on our own whereas the state offers the opportunities in other communities.

"We are the second highest growth area in Massachusetts and we have the lowest state support per capita. We are a municipal college but 49 per cent of our students are not from Quincy.

"I wouldn't want to go as far as becoming a part of the state system but there are other ways for the state to support."

In New Jersey, says Dr. Johnson, the income of community colleges comes one-third from the state, one-third from a sponsoring body and one-third from tuitions and fees.

In Massachusetts, the income from tuition goes into the state's general fund and the state gives so much back per day student.

Quincy Junior College is different in that it is able to retain its tuition in a revolving account of its own. But, still, 95 per cent of its budget is made up of tuition and 5 per cent from grants.

"Somewhere in between the New Jersey and Massachusetts systems rests the future of this institution," says Dr. Johnson. "But that's a political question I can't answer."

In lieu of state aid, Quincy Junior College is seeking other sources of income to lighten the tuition load on the students.

"Many colleges lean toward endowments but endowments are not good for this type of college," says Dr. Johnson. "In order to get $100,000 you have to find $1 million. That's not a priority with us.

"I would prefer to work with industry and try to get an employer to preselect students and programs, get industry to pay tuition with a commitment from the student to work in that industry."

Dr. Johnson has already started a liaison between the Junior College and the City Planning Department to acquaint local business and industry with what is available at the college.

"The most important things that we have cooking right now," says Dr. Johnson, "are television and industrial relations. It's these seeds that can grow mighty oaks."

Student Government Important Working Body

By WILLIAM P. THIBODEAU

The Student Government at QJC, not to be mistaken as merely a student council, is a necessary and important working body whose role and standing at the college is perhaps not as understood among the student population or the public as all involved would like it to be.

The student government is often times undersold by many students who haven't taken the effort to inquire as to its purposes and goals. Many feel that its sole function is to organize parties, dances and other social gatherings. That is only a fraction of the truth.

The government (which numbers 26-13 from each class) has a voice and a vote on all standing committees in the college advisory system. These committees include: The College Advisory Committee - which is the primary academic governance body of the College; The Academic Policies and Calendar Committee; The Curriculum and Degrees Program as well as on many other committees that decide which path the College will take in the years to come.

According to Ed White, Director of the Student Activities, "Those students who sit on these committees are not there to serve in any token capacity.

Mr. White emphasized that "Their presence is real and valid, and that their input directly affects policy for the College.

"An example of this was last year when the College was looking for a new president to succeed the outgoing President Dr. Pierce. The President of the Student Government, Carole Lint, sat on the Presidential Search and Screening Committee and had an actual vote in deciding who the new President of the College would be.

The new President of the College, Dr. O. Clayton Johnson, is also committed to the idea of student participation in plotting the course of the College.

"This experience," states Dr. Johnson, "will greatly help in preparing these students for, and enabling them to function in society's democratic process."

Along with serving on these committees, the Student Government also organizes blood drives and charity drives as well as a host of other tasks such as issuing ID's and parking stickers. All of these functions of Student Government help the college run smoother and more efficiently.

What it all adds up to is that while their efforts go on largely unrecognized, the Student Government at Quincy Junior shares much responsibility in the direction the College will take in the future as well as in its day to day operation.

Let's Be Honest

By MARY JEANNE POIRIER

Let's be honest. Quincy Junior College is a bare bones operation. Two old buildings peer over an inadequate parking lot that sports one heroic tree, a miraculous survivor of the lethal traffic of students aiming their ears at the precious spaces.

The school entrance (disguised as a full ashtray) leads inside to squeaky floors, balky windows, shabby equipment, and temperamental heating. There is no cafeteria, no dorm, no swimming pool, no color coordination, no nothing. If ivy-covered walls and rolling lawns are what you want, then QJC is not your scene.

But for all its flaws, QJC is a school that responds to a broad range of immediate, educational needs. The high school graduate unsure of his or her scholastic future can take time to decide about college without losing academic time. College students can make up courses or achieve extra credits. Older students, at their own pace, can renew study habits and forgotten skills.

Appealing surroundings do not always mean a good school — an expensive school perhaps — but not necessarily a good one. QJC is expensive if the tuition is paid and classes are skipped. The instructor gets paid whether or not the class is full. Students just don't get the product they paid for — his or her knowledge and experience.

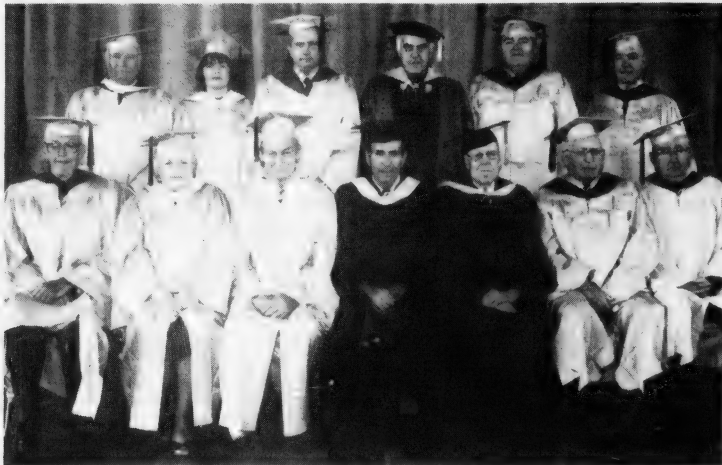

Is what you see what you get at QJC? If you put in your share of the effort, the answer is a definite "no."

You get much more.

College Takes Over R.N. Nursing Program

The associate degree nursing program admitted its first class of students in September, 1979, picking up the program where the former School of Nursing at City Hospital left off.

The first graduating class from Quincy Junior College was in June, 1981.

Students who successfully complete the program are awarded an Associate in Science degree. They are also eligible to take the examination for licensure as a registered nurse (RN).

The nursing program has the full approval of the Massachusetts Board of Registration in Nursing and is fully accredited by the National League for Nursing.

QJC's Division of Nursing Education faculty believes that the basic preparation for nursing practice should take place at the college level.

Health care in the 1980s is so complex and technically oriented that the nurse of today must have a sound knowledge base in behavioral, biological and physical sciences and their application to nursing.

The liberal arts and science component of the QJC program provides the student an opportunity to study the structure and nature of man as well as his relationship to his environment.

Courses in this area were selected to provide a firm base for the nursing component and their perspectives are sufficiently broad to guarantee the student a varied educational background.

Learning of nursing concepts and skills is facilitated by organizing the curriculum around the theme of man's response and adaptation to psychological and physiological change.

The nursing program at QJC is two years, or four semesters, in length. Each semester has 15 teaching weeks and there is a winter and summer vacation as well as observed holidays throughout the year.

How They See It

By STEVEN J. DOLE

Quincy Junior College has been a tradition in the heart of the South Shore for 25 years.

After a quarter of a century, what impression does it convey to its neighbors? Here are some answers to the question.

Rose, a 40-year-old salesperson in Quincy: "I think it's a great little school, and I hope my own daughter goes there in a few years."

Bud, a 61-year-old accountant: "It's a good place to start if you're not sure of future plans. You have two years to think it over."

Ella, 72 years old: "I don't know anything about it. Sorry."

Anna, 54 years old, a stitcher: "I wish my three sons went there. They have to get $20,000 between them for next year at Northeastern and Suffolk."

These responses indicate to me that most people consider QJC a good school. It has much to offer someone who is not ready for the expense or responsibility of a big university, but who does not want to waste time either.

Congratulations Quincy Junior College

The Board of Trustees of Quincy Junior College is proud to salute the community college of the South Shore upon the occasion of its 25th anniversary.

The Board of Trustees was formed by the School Committee less than two years ago, thus not sharing in the early development of the College; however, the Board is anxious to participate in the future growth and development of the college.

The Trustees have committed themselves to two goals: 1. assuring state of the art relevancy for all career-oriented programs, and 2. the development of a capital improvement fund for program as well as plant growth.

In its first 25 years, Quincy Junior College has made a significant contribution to the general well being of the greater South Shore area. The Board looks forward to contributing to its continued growth during the next twenty five years.

Grandma Graduates

By RUTH DOYLE

It takes courage to return to the classroom after 30 years.

I had not done any thing for those 30 years except change diapers, wipe noses, clean house. Returning to school meant a totally new discipline to make totally new changes in my life.

Concentration on new studies was the most difficult challenge. I had to learn how to schedule my time wisely.

In 1979, after achieving a general equivalency diploma and with the encouragement of good friends, I applied for a basic educational opportunity grant to continue my education.

In 1980, I walked into my first class at Quincy Junior College. Frightened, uncertain, feeling a little foolish in front of all the college kids, I wondered whether I was doing the right thing.

That first semester involved three courses: speed reading, math and English. To my surprised satisfaction, there were other older students in class.

Arthur Keough, my first advisor, was an encouraging guide through all the indecisions and discouragement.

Each succeeding semester has seemed easier. In spite of distractions at home, I learned how to budget my time for studies and to recognize requirements and expectations of each teacher.

Best of all, I have also discovered what I expect of myself!

In the spring of 1982, I graduated with an Associate Degree from Quincy Junior College. Although I am proud of the accomplishment, I am deeply grateful to those people who supported me. I am especially thankful for the warm welcome and friendships I found at Quincy Junior College.

It's Now Development Skills Center

Since the mid-1970s Quincy Junior College has been in the fortunate position of being able to offer remedial and developmental assistance to its student body.

Through the Basic Skills Center refinement and development of skills necessary for the successful completion of collegiate level work are available.

Arthur Keough was the first director of the Center which is located on the third floor of the old Coddington building. The solid foundation of the Center was firmly in place in 1982 when Keough resigned as director and returned to classroom teaching.

Mrs. Margaret Buck, after a brief co-directorship, became the second director of the Center.

In 1983 the name of the Basic Skills

Center was changed to that of a Developmental Skills Center. This was due to the fact that the Center had begun to service more students, not just those with basic needs, but also those with developmental concerns.

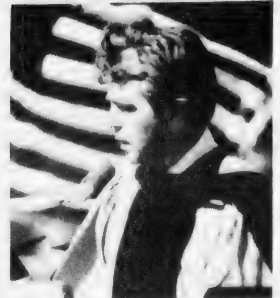

The Developmental Skills Center's program is a combination of classroom and laboratory work. It is tailored to the specific needs of Quincy Junior College's student population.

All aspects of the Center's work are effective in assisting students in their academic endeavors.

Many traditional and non-traditional students are assisted in their college careers through the Center. Homemakers, senior citizens, veterans, foreign students, high school graduates are examples of those helped.

Why Has It Lasted?

By JEANNE GREENE
Class of 1980

Quincy Junior College.

What is it?

Why is it different from any other college?

Why has it lasted 25 years?

It is a place where people who want to learn and teachers who want to teach come together and create magic.

Originally only one building on a postage-size campus, it is in the heart of Quincy Square and is reached by a magic carpet called the MBTA. Campus extensions now cover the South Shore.

It is a place where Vikings claim the discovery of America and Edgar Allen Poe's tell-tale heart can be heard beating beneath the squeaking boards of the old school.

It is a place where no one is stupid and anyone who wants to earn credits for a course or a certificate can do so.

It is a place where minds blossom like flowers.

It is a place where the "ordinary man" can enter the world of the educated - a world denied him at more ivory towered colleges.

It is a place where an awakening mind can be paid for one course at a time - a broadening of intellects by installment.

It is a mold of men and women into accountants, nurses, secretaries, electronic technicians, cable TV installers, real estate agents, criminal justice professionals, computer operators, and, yes, even poets - and so it creates.

It is unique because it is available, accessible and academically excellent.

It is an exciting place to be and that makes it different.

It serves all ages of the population, opening old minds to the young and giving young minds insight to the old.

It is all these things and more, and so it has lasted, spreading its students into the main stream of life all over the South Shore and beyond.

It has lasted 25 years because nowhere is education pursued more devotedly.

It is the best junior college in the world.

Training Seminars At Business, Industry Sites

When it comes to training or business and industry, Quincy Junior College leads the way.

It is not necessary for people to come to the college to benefit from the educational opportunities the college offers.

Quincy Junior College will conduct on-site training seminars and programs at places of business for employees.

In consultation with a business, the College will design a program that meets employee needs, providing skills and information that allow people to work better and more efficiently.

Here are some programs Quincy Junior College can offer:

Computer Skills - Computer literacy, data processing, fundamentals, computers and the law.

Life-Career Planning - Effective decision-making, creative problem solving, resume and interview skills, time and stress management.

Personnel Services - Employee assessment profile, pre-employment assessment, substance abuse in the work force, organizational analysis.

Management & Supervision - Labor relations, managerial skills, how to supervise, management assessment tools, team building and leadership.

Communication Skills - Business reports, presentation skills, effective memoranda, listening skills.

Office Skills - Typing, shorthand, telephone technique, record-keeping, accounting, word-processing.

Quincy Junior College can provide training for office personnel, middle-managers, technicians and executives!

That is why General Dynamics, Procter & Gamble and National Fire Protection Association, to name a few, have chosen the College for employee training programs.

Further, 15 area banks and Quincy Junior College have formed the Banking Institute of the South Shore. Seminars and courses for bank employees and those who seek employment in banking are being planned.

The first program, "Training to be a Teller", was presented last summer. South Shore Bank, Quincy Savings Bank, Rockland Credit Union and Rockland Trust Co. co-sponsored the one week seminar.

Quincy Junior College is the place to come to first and only for employee training.

Women's Center Founded In 1977

70% Of Students Female, Median Age 25

By ALICIA COLETTI
Director Women's Center

Declining high school enrollments and a tight economy have contributed to a significant change in the composition of the student body at Quincy Junior College.

The majority of all college students across the United States are now female and the Quincy Junior College student body is almost 70 per cent women.

The median age of college students is rising every year, and at Quincy Junior College the median is 25.

At community colleges in particular, the 80s is the decade of the non-traditional student, that is, those who did not graduate from high school and go immediately to college.

The returning student, generally a woman, may have been out of high school one year or 25 years.

When the student of the 80s returns to school, he or she may need different kinds of services from the traditional student.

Hence, the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College.

The Women's Center was established in January, 1977, to serve as a resource center offering information, guidance and support in the areas of counseling, education, employment, health and legal services and volunteer opportunities.

Its services are available to women and men, students and non-students.

The Women's Center focuses particularly on the needs of mature students returning to school or to the job market.

Most of the students who come to the Women's Center seek assistance in assessing their skills and determining their future career goals. Interest testing and career counseling now comprise the largest part of the work of the director.

Since its inception, the Women's Center has exemplified the type of community outreach practiced by Quincy Junior College.

The director speaks regularly before community groups about Center services and works closely with the State Division of Employment Security, CETA, Family Services Association, the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, the Community Action Organization and the South Shore Mental Health Association.

Booklets on employment opportunities, child care services and career planning have been published by the Women's Center for use by the community.

The Women's Center has always worked closely with the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, which was instrumental in proposing that the Women's Center become an integral part of the College.

The Center and the Commission have co-sponsored a Women in Government Conference, a Job Search Seminar, a CETA-funded program for unemployed women and an annual all-day seminar.

Workshops on Assertiveness Training, Personal Growth, Parenting Decision Making, etc., funded by special grants, have been held to help women make the transition from homemaker to student.

Some of the workshops begun under such special funding have been incorporated into the Continuing Education Division of the College as non-credit evening courses.

In addition, the Women's Center sponsors Women's Studies credit courses on Roles of Women in Society and Images of Women in Literature.

In 1980-1981, the Women's Center was awarded a grant for a full-time career counselor for displaced homemakers. The counselor, shared with DOVE, a shelter for battered persons, provides counseling and job development to women who have either been widowed, divorced or married to husbands who are disabled. The program enables these women to receive guidance in pursuing a program which would lead to a job so that they and their families could become self-supporting.

Some of the clients of the Women's Center are women presently receiving public assistance for themselves and their families.

In most cases, they need to train for a career which will pay them enough to support their families and take them off welfare. The short-term, career-oriented programs offered by Quincy Junior College are of particular interest to them.

A cable television program emphasizing career and educational planning for homemakers is being offered in the fall of 1983 through a grant from the Massachusetts Department of Education. This will represent even more extensive outreach by the College and the Women's Center into the community.

One of the services most requested by Women's Center clients who wish to return to school is child care.

In January, 1983, the oft-requested and long-awaited child care center for Quincy Junior College students was opened at the city's Kennedy Health Center, two blocks from the College. Child care has enabled people to begin their educational journey sooner than they thought possible.

The value of this program is attested to by the number of people who have already arranged to use the child care services for September, 1983, as they enter Quincy Junior College as students for the first time.

Weekend College

New this September is the weekend college at Quincy Junior College.

"Many people have inquired if they can earn a degree by going week-ends," said Richard Mula, dean of continuing education. "We have responded to this need."

The program enables a student to earn an associate in science degree in Business Management or Marketing in just 23 months or 2 years of part-time study.

"Generally it takes a part-time student 3½ to 5 years to earn a degree. Now people with the motivation can accelerate their educational goals and achieve more in less time," explained Mula.

Students attend classes Friday evening and Saturday from September through June and then two evenings a week for five weeks in July. August is free. The second year schedule is similar.

Thus, each year students will take nine courses in the academic year and one in the summer session for a total of 20 courses in a little less than two years.

"This is a terrific opportunity for working people who find it difficult to attend evening classes or who want an accelerated program," enthused Tom Mullen, coordinator of the week-end college.

Courses include Accounting, Management, Marketing, Business Law, Advertising, Introduction to Data Processing, Sales Management, Personnel Management and others.

With the addition of the weekend college, Quincy Junior College offers classes to meet everyone's schedule: daytime, afternoon, commuter late afternoon, evening, Saturday morning, week-ends. It is indeed a community college to serve the South Shore.

Brockton 31, North Quincy 6

Raiders Seek First Win Against Newton N.

By PETE ZOIA

When a team plays Brockton, it has to prevent the big play for an early score.

Any mistake that is made against them is fatal. North Quincy learned that lesson out by 31 to 6 score Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

On the second play of the game, Quarterback Tom Colombo and wide receiver Pete Marciano teamed up for a 49 yard scoring pass. The cardinal sin of football is not to let the receiver get beyond you. Marciano managed to get a step ahead of the North defender for the quick score. The first of four successful points after was added by Chris Sarantos.

Also in the first period a stray Red Raider pass was intercepted on the Boxer's 18 and they took it back for another quarter score. During this march, Brockton repeatedly tested North's middle section of the line and worked their way to the North 48. Here they came up with another big play, a 43 pass completion to the Raiders' five. A half the distance to the goal penalty put Brockton on the North 2 1/2 where Odell Wilson sneaked over.

A few moments later the Raiders received a tough break when they lost starting line backer Kevin Kelly with a dislocated left elbow. He will be out for at least two games.

Brockton was not to be stopped. They went on a 68-yard drive to score again, highlighted by a 23-yard pass gain to the Raider 25. Another eight yard pass and three consecutive line smashes got Brockton another TD.

Only North bright moments in the first half were the recovering of a Boxer fumble by Joe Morrissey and an interception pullin in by Co-captain Jim McNamara.

Coach Ken McPhee must have given his players a pep talk at half-time and Steve Kelly must have listened.

Receiving the third period kick-off on his 10 yard line, Kelly, a junior, started up the middle, faked out a few would-be tacklers and cut to the left and galloped down the side line for a record 90-yard North Quincy run back.

It also ignited North's best quarter of the game. Besides holding Brockton scoreless, the Raiders dominated as Jim McNamara nailed Colombo for a 12-yard sack, and Nick Gelsomini batted away a Brockton aerial.

Co-Captain Mike Gill dove into the air to grab an enemy fumble on the Brockton 43. Later Joe Bangs intercepted a Brockton pass 2 plus mid-field. A Steve Hogan to Dan Baker pass netted 14 yards and a first down to the Boxers 35, and another completion to Jack Bolster put the ball on the 27 yard line as the period ended.

A delay of game penalty and an additional five-yard penalty forced the Raiders to kick. Trying to angle the kick to a coffin corner, it was shanked and traveled only a short distance.

Starting on their own 35, Brockton needed only six plays to score again. The knock-out blow was a 32 yard completion to the North Quincy eight yard line as the Raiders pass defender slipped allowing the receiver to travel to the North eight. Three line smashes later and Brockton was on the scoring board again.

Scott Messina with an eight-yard gain and Bill Doherty at full back adding four more put North at their own 43. Steve Hogan to Vic DiGravio pass clicked for 14 more yards. Here Brockton put an end to any North threat with an interception.

Starting in mid field the winners worked their way to the Raiders 17 yard line where they concluded the scoring with a 27 yard field goal.

Two outstanding plays prevented a touchdown on this last Brockton drive. John DeLappe made a good tackle causing a minus two yards. Paul Cahill as a pass defender did a brilliant job covering the receiver on a sure touchdown pass play.

McPhee said the offense needed a lot of work this week.

"The offensive line especially, as there are too many blocks being missed. We must establish a running game to help our passing. Our defense up front did a commendable job."

Kevin Kelly injury adds to the injury list of Tony Bera and Larry Nialetz, who probably are out for the season. Lineman Al DiBella is due back.

The Raiders lost Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at Veteran's Memorial Stadium.

Panthers Blank Apaches, 10-0

The Quincy Point Panthers shut out the North Quincy Apaches, 10-0, Sunday at Veterans Memorial Stadium, to take sole possession of first place in the Quincy Youth Football League.

With seconds to go in the first quarter, on fourth down and 9 to go, the Apaches tried to punt, but the ball sailed out of the Apaches reach and through the end zone for a Panthers' safety.

The first touchdown drive for the Panthers began following a 30-yard pass play from quarterback Dan Overby to Gary Bright, who ran the ball to the Apaches 5-yard line.

On second and goal from the 2-yard line, John Pennellatore went straight up the middle for the score. Gary Bright hauled in Overby's pass to complete the conversion.

There was no scoring in the third period.

After two turnovers the only chance the Apaches had for a score in the fourth period was wiped out when back-up Quarterback completed a 40-yard pass-play to the Panthers 20-yard line. But, the ball was fumbled and recovered by the Panthers' Billy Roche. Panthers then took over possession and downed the ball to run out the clock.

Coach Frank Brillo cited the efforts of John Caporale, Frank Ienello, Tony Pecce, Mark Forest and Gary Bright. Also Billy Ryan, John Pennellatore, Dan Overby, along with Billy and Bobby Roche playing well.

Also playing for the undefeated Panthers were: Shawn O'Neil, Tim Brillo, E. J. Hartnett, Steve Slics, Chris Kohler, Keith McCray, Karl Staskiewicz, Vin Digiacomo, Anthony Battistone, David Healy and Joe Taylor.

The Panthers draw a bye next week and face the Houghs Neck Manets for the next game Oct. 9 at 2:30 p.m.

Both Quincy, North At Home Saturday

Both North Quincy and Quincy will be the home teams at Veterans Memorial Stadium Saturday.

The Raiders will meet Newton North at 10:30 a.m. and Quincy will take on Revere at 1:30 p.m.

Sue McLoughlin, a striker back from Quincy, is one of several veterans playing for the Curry College women's soccer team.

The team, which lost 12 to 14 games last year due to inexperience, opened its season Wednesday against Babson College and second-year coach Doug Williams is optimistic with a number of experienced veterans.

Raiderettes Roll By Waltham

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy girls' cross country teams haven't lost a meet since October of 1981 and last week the Raiderettes opened their season with an easy 18-47 Suburban League Victory over Waltham for their 17th straight victory.

Lou Tozzi's North girls are the defending league champions, going 8-0 last fall. They also won the Eastern Mass. meet for the third straight time and added the all-state title, edging Haverhill and Mohawk Regional.

The Raiderettes met Brookline yesterday (Wednesday) and next Wednesday will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin.

"We lost two great runners in Sheila Barrett and Linda Kennedy," said Tozzi. "Both are running in their schools' top five as freshmen. Sheila at the University of Colorado and Linda at the University of Maryland.

"We are a very, very young team and not very healthy at present, but we have no excuses for not performing well under pressure. We have people who have been with us for the last few years but we do have a lot of question marks."

Capt. Tracey Corrigan, the only senior, was a state meet medalist last winter in the indoor 2-mile and in the outdoor mile. She was a member of the school's last two Eastern Mass. championship teams. She has been hampered by illness, missing several days, but is expected to be in top place by the middle of October.

Sophomore Maryann Kelleher was a freshman sensation last year. She ran an 11:09 two-mile and was a high state meet placer indoors and out. Tozzi expects her to be one of the league's best this year and she started off by winning the Waltham meet.

Junior Meg Leary is one of the best all-around runners in the league but has been injured and won't be at full strength until late in the season.

Junior Diane Lindenfelzer has been out with tendonitis since last November. She was the key to North's E. Mass. and all-state title wins last fall because of superb performances when less than 100 percent. She was sixth in the league champions but may not compete until late season. "We'll bring her back very slowly," said Tozzi.

Freshman Tricia Barrett is a big surprise. The Quincy Track Club star has stepped in and provided some much needed quality running.

Ann Toland is the second freshman to make the varsity this fall, has surprised Tozzi and has been very impressive.

Sophomore Sharon Barrett ran with the junior varsity last year and is the most improved runner on the team.

Working out with Jayvees

but showing potential to move up to the varsity are Junior Lisa Fitzgerald and Senior Julie Alibrandi, two 600-yard state meet medalists; juniors Alice Reilly and Joan Climo and Sophomores Laura Barrett and Tricia Leary.

"These kids are working hard to maintain the great tradition we have here," said Tozzi. "We aim for the top and this group is no different. It is a very motivated group and I think they are willing to pay the price. If they do, we'll have another good year."

Mike Burke, winner of last year's Quincy marathon, is again working with Tozzi and doing an outstanding job.

The Raiderettes took five of the first six places to romp against Waltham. Kelleher was first, Tricia Barrett second, Corrigan fourth, Meg Leary fifth and Toland sixth to complete the scoring. Lindenfelzer did not compete.

Barrett, in his college debut, passed to Chip Marchi of Milton for the first touchdown and hit Jim Sousa with a 51-yard scoring pass.

Curry will face Mass. Maritime Academy, a 19-8 loser to Bridgewater State last week, Saturday at 1 o'clock at Buzzards Bay.

Everett 14, Quincy 0

Presidents Eye Rebound Against Revere

"We just weren't prepared to play".

That was Quincy Coach Bill Maver's comment after his Presidents were shut out by Everett, 14 to 0 Saturday at Everett.

"I'll take the blame, we just were flat".

For three periods neither team could put any points on the board. Quincy had 2 chances in the second quarter but couldn't capitalize.

Joe Cullen and Daron Tucker alternated in piling up the yardage on the ground, aided and abetted by a Bill Shaughnessey forwarded to Ausing O'Malley inside the five yard line.

Everett rose to the occasion by storming through the Quincy offensive line hitting the ball carrier with such force to cause a fumble that was gathered in by the hometown.

A bad pass from center gave the Presidents a golden opportunity on the Everett 13 yard line. Two rushes were stopped and two incomplete passes gave Everett the ball.

The eventual winners didn't show much for three periods, as Quincy throttled their attack. The third quarter saw a come-to-life Everett club. A long bomb caught by receiver Fred Veador good for 86 yards, brought the Big Red to the Quincy one-yard line.

It took four downs for Everett to score with the TD coming on a pass from the quarterback to Paul Guskiewicz to the tight end. Guskiewicz kicked the extra point kick and Everett led 7 to 0.

Later, Veador sprinted 28 yards for the final TD.

Quincy-Revere Game On WJDA

The Quincy-Revere game will be carried play-by-play over WJDA Saturday afternoon.

Progress reports will be given on the North

Guskiewicz kicked his second point after to end the scoring.

Maver noted that Quincy did well on first downs only to lose ground or be stopped on second and third downs.

He praised the running of Joe Cullen and Daron Tucker. He thought defensive end Dan Macauley was the best player on the field. Others that played well were Chris Conner, Mark Walsh, Rich Ready, Greg Keefe and O'Malley.

Maver added that quarterback Bill Shaughnessey did a good job until he was injured. He also singled out Joe Conti and Dan Curtin for their play.

Quincy hosts Revere at 1:30 p.m. at home Saturday.

North Ties Brockton Bows To Newton N.

An injury-plagued North Quincy soccer team traveled to Brockton and earned a 1-1 tie but was not so fortunate, losing to a strong Newton North team 3-1.

Playing the Boxers in a strong wind, North controlled play throughout the first half with Andy Curtis, Nunzio Carbone and Terry Stark all having good scoring chances go wide.

The Raiders did manage to score first with two minutes left in the first half, as Curtis made a cross into the wind and found Chris Archer there to head it into the goal. It was Archer's fourth goal of the young season.

North's defense played well with sweeper and full-backs Pat Marcham and Eric Roukey all doing good jobs in front of goalie Mark Hubbard.

Neither team mounted a scoring threat in the third quarter. As the fourth period progressed, North's depleted squad tired noticeably. Brockton scored with 10 minutes left in the game to tie the score. Brockton continued to press but North's defense held.

Hubbard made good saves late in the quarter while Carbone cleared a dangerous ball in the area to save a goal. Another key in the defense was Joe LaPierre.

North thought they were going to be awarded a penalty kick with less than a minute to play as Carbone was pulled down in the penalty area, but no call was made.

Friday's game featured undefeated teams as Newton North came in with a 3-0 record. North's defense altered as Newton players were continually unguarded and were allowed to get many fine scoring chances.

North was continually beaten to the ball. The visiting Tigers scored late in the second quarter as their striker received a throw-in and walked in on goal.

North came out more aggressively to start the third quarter pressing the attack off a corner kick by Carbone. The visitors were called for a hard ball in the area and North's Carbone was awarded a penalty kick. Carbone's booming shot beat the Newton goalie easily to tie the score at 1-1.

Newton came right back taking advantage of another North defensive error to take the lead 2-1. Midway through the quarter Newton scored again.

North's offense sparked by Steve Golden came to life in the fourth quarter, but two fine overlapping runs by Golden did not produce a goal.

Hubbard played another good game in goal making 15 saves while playing with a severe Charley horse.

Not having David Brown, tri-captain, and Mike Cocce hurt North.

Brown, who was injured in the win over Barnstable, was operated on for torn tendons and bone chips in his thumb. It is hoped he will return for the Quincy games. Cocce, who has a broken collarbone may know this week when he might be available.

This week, North will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin, who defeated Quincy Friday, 15-0. On Friday, North and Quincy will play at the stadium soccer field. Both games will begin at 3:30.

First Time In 13 Years

Durante Wins 3 Major Tennis Titles

The Quincy Recreation Department-Granite Co-Operative Bank Tennis Tournament for Quincy residents has completed its 17 day run at the Quincy Voc-Tech Tennis Courts and for the first time in the tournament's 13-year history, a player has won three major titles.

Steve Durante dominated the courts for three weeks with a powerful serve and a flawless net game.

Durante got to the finals of the men's singles without losing a set. He swept past Leonard Ciavarrone 6-2, 6-4.

He then went on to pair up with Bruce Cottman and took the men's double title 6-2, 6-7, 7-6, from a strong team of Neil Cronin and Rich Landi.

Then, to make the cycle complete, he teamed up with his mother, Louise Durante to win the mixed doubles championship 6-2, 6-7, 6-4, over defending champions Hildy Gillis and Rich Landi.

The men's 50 and over singles final match saw two-time defending champion Neil Cronin make it three in a row as he defeated rival Paul Bandini 6-2, 7-5.

The women's 35 and over singles saw a new-comer Elissa Zonis defeat Louise Durante 6-2, 6-3, with a solid performance.

In the men's 35 and over singles, defending champion Bill Courtney went two hard sets with Rich Landi before taking the crown 6-4, 7-5.

Lynne Maloney took her first women's singles title over Susan Pacetti 6-2, 6-4. With a powerful serve and solid ground strokes, she easily took the title.

In the women's doubles, Louise Durante and Hildy Gillis defeated the mother and daughter team of Joan and Julie Clifford 6-1, 6-2.

A new event to the tournament this year was the men's "B" consolation singles and in a good three set match Jose Maten defeated Phil Iovanna 5-7, 6-4, 6-4.

In the youth events, Mark Scanlon made it two in a row over Chris Howley in the boys 16 and under championship 6-2, 6-7, 6-4.

On the girls 16 and under, an upcoming young star Nancy Flukes won her first title 6-2, 6-1 over Maureen Semans.

John Franceschini, tournament director will join Barry Welch, Director of Recreation and Barbara Lynch of Granite Cooperative Bank in presenting the winners and runners-up trophies at a ceremony this week hosted by the bank.

Quincy Girls Win 2 In Title Defense

The Quincy High School Volleyball team opened its season last week with two wins to begin its defense of its 1982 state championship.

Waltham was defeated here last Wednesday 6-15 and 7-15.

Quincy's Colleen Dunn made spectacular defensive saves while senior Carolyn Leonard ran the team's offense.

Quincy took the match 15-6, 15-11.

Five starters from last year's championship team, seniors Chris Gallery, Susan Boven and Carolyn Leonard and juniors Karen Marnell and Colleen Dunn are back.

Newcomers to the varsity include junior setter Terry

Most of the varsity has competed at the national level and have caught the attention of East Coast college coaches with athletic scholarships.

The junior varsity, a reflection of the varsity, is 3-0.

The JV is opened at Boston Latin with freshmen co-captain Lauren Staudring serving Latin off the court.

Soph. setter Donna McLoughlin ran the team's offense of Stephanie LeVangie, Pam Austin and Terry Duggan. Quincy took the match 15-0, 15-4.

Waltham never had a chance as Quincy's JV's took the match 15-1, 15-2. Setter Ginny Duggan and hitters co-captain Darlene Derbes and Karen Eames turned in solid performances.

Brookline gave Quincy its toughest match but fell 15-5, 15-9. Other Quincy players are Susan Parry, Leanne Dondero and Chrissy Zupkotska.

Quincy's head coach, Ray Whitehouse, 1982 "Coach of the Year" is optimistic about the season.

He sees Brockton, Stoneham, and Arlington as the teams to beat this year.

"The measure of a true championship program is its ability to repeat and our kids are aware of this," he said. "Other teams really get up to play us. Hopefully, we'll respond to the challenge."

Quincy was scheduled to meet Brockton at home Wednesday.

On Thursday, the USA Olympic Women's team will play.

The Japanese National Team at Boston University at 7:30 p.m. Quincy has been asked to serve as ball-girls on the court.

On Friday, Quincy will be at Newton North and Monday at Boston Latin.

PISCES — February 20-March 20

Social life perks up, and standard of living shows early signs of improvement. You tend to be fixed in your opinions — leading to a possible showdown by the weekend.

ARIES — March 21-April 20

Partnership plans are favorably spotlighted. The new month begins with new financial obligations and career responsibilities. Relative may be supersensitive.

TAURUS — April 21-May 22

Record-keeping and catching up on correspondence are important activities this week. Salesmanship is your strong point now. Small bonus is possible by Wednesday.

GEMINI — May 23-June 21

Setting the record straight is your key role now, while campaigning for a cause is another current strength. In romance, be watchful that you don't force the issue.

LEO — July 23-August 22

Be wary of anyone trying to extract a secret — you're a little vulnerable this week. Opposing family factions come to an agreement, but don't expect too much harmony just yet.

VIRGO — August 23-September 22

Good week for long-term financial planning. Relative's demands become increasingly draining and it may be time to speak out. If entertaining, consider offbeat touches.

SCORPIO — October 23-November 21

New month finds you ready to start everything from scratch — but watch a reckless streak and don't abandon important tasks. Romantic situation stabilizes by Saturday.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22-December 22

Accent this week is on last minute changes. New educational programs are favored now. Situations involving shared finances should be carefully reviewed by Wednesday.

CAPRICORN — December 23-January 20

Cable helped Millie stop the ghosts.

Millie Napoleone, as you can see, is a no-nonsense take-charge lady who takes pride in her job as a safety patrol and works hard at it. So, when she began having trouble with "ghosts" in her television reception she decided to do something about it. She decided to try Cable and she chose Quincy Cablesystems.

Now, she's got the clearest TV picture she's ever had, and that's not all. She's also got television specials, first-run movies and Broadway hits, a variety of choices that you only get with Cable.

Millie loves that variety of programming. She also knows that if there's a program she's unable to see one night, she can catch it at a later date. With cable, if a sports event is blacked out in the Boston area, Millie and her sports-loving husband can see it at home.

As far as Millie is concerned, Cable is the only way to go. So, if you're looking for directions, look for Millie. She'll show you the way. She's already been there.

Search For Quarry Victim Suspended For Safety Reasons

Mayor Francis X. McCauley says the search for the body of Paul Gooch, 17, of Brockton in Swingle's Quarry has been suspended indefinitely for safety reasons.

"It's just not safe to send divers down as we had planned," said McCauley. "Geologists have told us that there are areas of the south wall that are in danger of collapse."

Dredging of the quarry preparatory to sending the divers down was halted Sept. 9 when several tons of granite on the south wall collapsed, sending the draining equipment to the bottom.

Had divers been down in the murky waters at the time, they most certainly would have been killed.

McCauley said the decision to suspend operations was made at a meeting in his office, which included the parents of the Gooch boy, who drowned in the quarry June 20.

"They said they were pleased with the city's efforts to recover his body," said the mayor, "and they agreed that the search should be suspended because they didn't want to see anyone else hurt."

McCauley said the city is talking to construction companies to find out the cost of building a road so that equipment could be brought in to the safer north wall of the quarry to resume the search.

Validated Parking Doubtful For Christmas

By TOM HENSHAW

The possibility is strong that the city will not be able to switch its downtown parking lots to a validated parking system in time for the Christmas shopping rush.

"We haven't been able to award bids on equipment yet," said Mayor Francis X. McCauley, who planned to have the lots revamped and operated by Kinney Systems, Inc., by the end of November.

"We had hoped to have a bid accepted by now. The longer it goes the more difficult the time line."

The problem is that the three bids that were opened, Sept. 19 not only came in above the $175,000 that the city has in the till but there was some confusion about what was being bid.

The bidding on equipment went like this: Ristan, a subsidiary of Stanley Parking Systems, bid $177,000, Cincinnati Time bid $210,000, and Secon of Los Angeles bid $217,000.

Cincinnati Time also bid $70,000 on cement and electrical work in connection with the lots. Secon bid $126,000 and Ristan did not submit a bid on that section of the contract.

In addition, said Purchasing Agent Robert Denver, two of the three companies put in bids based on a different card system for monthly parkers than the one specified.

McCauley said the city is investigating the possibility of the Public Works Department doing the electrical and cement work in house to cut the costs.

"And we might have to ask the City Council to appropriate more money," he said.

The $175,000 now on hand was assembled through a $100,000 grant from the state and $75,000 left over from construction of the UDAG parking garage.

McCauley said the three proposals have been turned over to Kinney Systems, which will operate the parking lots, for its recommendations.

"I hope we don't have to go out to bid again," he said.

"The target date is still open for the Christmas season but a lot depends on what Kinney says."

McDonald's H.S. Band In Quincy Christmas Parade

The famed McDonald's All-American High School Band, comprised of 104 high school musicians from across the country, will be in this year's Quincy Christmas Festival Parade, Nov. 27.

The band, which will be participating in the local parade for the first time, will also be featured in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York City and the Tournament of Roses in Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 2.

"I think they will add a lot of excitement to the parade," said Steve Gillig, local McDonald's owner, who arranged for the band's appearance.

The All American Band program was organized in 1967 by McDonald's Corporation to provide outstanding young musicians with the same "All American" status bestowed on high school athletes.

In the band's 17-year history, more than 47,000 young musicians have been nominated by their high school band directors, and the band itself has almost 2,000 alumni.

passed a note to the teller demanding $300 in fives, 10s and 20s, while he held his hand to his side as though he had a weapon in his belt.

The teller gave him $300 and he left in an unknown direction.

Police said the man

The North Quincy branch of the Quincy Savings Bank was robbed of $300 Saturday afternoon by a man who gave a note on a withdrawal slip demanding money to a teller but displayed no weapon.

After Referendum Defeat

McCauley Will Squeeze $2.8 M Into '84 Budget

By TOM HENSHAW

If the payback of $28 million to General Dynamics becomes too great a burden in the next 10 years, said Mayor Francis X. McCauley, let somebody else go to the people for relief.

"The next call for a referendum should come from the City Council," said McCauley Tuesday, the day after the Council torpedoed his bid to have the people vote on a Prop 2½ exemption.

"I made my pitch. Let them take responsibility to ask for a referendum next time. I'll do the best I can to fit the $2.8 million a year into the 2½ structure. But it will be difficult."

The Council voted 8-1 Monday night to reject McCauley's proposal to place the question of exempting the $28 million payback from the tax limitations of Prop 2½ on the Nov. 8 ballot.

"The voters have spoken already on 2½," said Councilor Stephen J. McGrath. "There's no need for them to do it again. People elected us to solve problems. I don't want to pass the puck to them."

Councillor Patricia Toland cast the only vote in favor of placing the referendum on the ballot.

"People may have changed their minds about 2½," she said. "A healthy dialogue should take place on this question. I make no apology for letting people decide at the ballot box."

The Council left in the Finance Committee, a second order approving the $28 million bond issue itself, which, in effect, would be approval of the agreement worked out between McCauley and General Dynamics.

Some councillors, particularly Joanne

Condon, questioned the agreement and urged McCauley to "go back to the drawing board with General Dynamics and work out a better solution. The present one is not in the best interests of the city's taxpayers."

Condon introduced a resolution, and the Council accepted it, calling on the mayor to "sit down with the Council and discuss the issue and search for alternatives. He never has done that."

"I'm always available," said McCauley. "We have discussed all those things like selling the hospital and the school buildings. What else is there to discuss? As far as I'm concerned the case is over."

The mayor said it is not

License Board To Study Tag Day Problems

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

A Wollaston business man has written to the License Board requesting that tag day permits no longer be issued to groups in Quincy for safety reasons.

But the board will study the matter before taking any action, according to the License Board chairman John Gilliso.

Arthur Chandler, owner of the Wollaston Theatre and president of the Quincy Citizens Association, wrote to the board about alleged violations of a tag day permit issued to the Quincy Youth Football League last weekend.

Chandler wrote that despite the board's stipulation that there be no soliciting at intersections, youths solicited with cans at Newport Ave. and Beale St.

The youths continued to solicit after being informed by Chandler that it was a violation of the license, he stated.

"The reason for no soliciting at intersections is not to prevent them from raising money, but for safety reasons," wrote Chandler.

"It also disrupts traffic at the lights. I am requesting that the practice of granting Tag Days be discontinued now before some accident occurs."

"I observed flagrant violations over the weekend," said Police Chief Francis Finn at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

"I had to have police remove them (solicitors) from intersections all over the city."

"There were two groups out there. It's very dangerous. A person driving into the sun may not see a youngster in the street."

Fire Chief Edward Barry said he also saw violations over the weekend, "particularly at the Campanelli Building" in Quincy Sq.

Barry requested that David Skinner of Quincy Youth Football appear at next week's meeting to explain last weekend's alleged violations.

Health Commissioner Dr. M. Grace Hussey suggested that such violations be taken into consideration when groups apply again for licenses.

Chief Finn pointed out that there have been no problems with groups soliciting outside of stores in shopping areas.

The board then granted tag day permits to Quincy High School Hockey Boosters Club for Dec. 1 and 2, 5:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.; Dec. 3, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and the North Quincy High School Boosters Club, Dec. 8 and 9, 5:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.; Dec. 10, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., with no soliciting at intersections.

"Set a good example," urged Finn.

It's Official: Election Nov. 8

The City Council made it official Monday night - there will be a municipal election Tuesday, Nov. 8, with voters going to the polls between the hours of 8 a.m. and 8 p.m.

The Council also approved the same precinct voting places as before, except that Ward 5, Precinct 6 will be moved back to the Beechwood Community Life Center from the Union Congregational Church.

Councillor Stephen J. McGrath said many of his constituents asked for the change after last year's state election.

$181,211 August Plumbing

Plumbing and Gas Fitting Inspector James A. Erwin, Jr. has reported issuing 175 permits for plumbing estimated to cost $181,211 during the month of August.

The department collected

$3,104 in plumbing fees and made 581 inspections.

Erwin said 121 permits were issued for gas fittings estimated to cost $43,939 and $498 in fees was collected and 458 inspections carried out.

Sewer Rehab Gives Way To $225,000 In Ward Work

Mayor Francis X. McCauley has withdrawn a plan to repair some of the city's leaky sewer connections and instead use $225,000 in federal funds for various public works jobs in the six wards.

Whereupon, the City Council promptly authorized the mayor to make application for $478,000 under the so-called Jobs Bill.

The mayor originally proposed that $225,000 of the Jobs Bill money be used to upgrade sewer laterals and house connections which have allowed excess water to infiltrate the city's sewer systems.

The city is under state-order to remove two gallons of inflow and infiltration from the sewer system for every one gallon added by a new connection.

The councilors, however, spotting a windfall of cash for more visible work in the wards, balked at the sewer connection work, even indicating a willingness to hold up the entire authorization.

"I accepted the situation in order to move things ahead," said McCauley. "All I ask is that they come up with projects that qualify under the Jobs Bill."

Other recipients of funds under the bill are:

Quincy Community Action Program, $15,000, for a staff position at the Emergency Food Center in Southwest Quincy.

Hancock Parking Area, $80,000, for resurfacing in preparation for validated parking.

Handicapped Grant Program, $40,000, for rehabilitation of the homes of handicapped persons to make them more accessible.

Thomas Crane Public Library, $71,000, for rehabilitation of the main library building, particularly its leaky roof.

Contingency funds, $47,000.

QCAO To Schedule Fuel Assistance Appointments

appointment at any of the sites, which will be located in Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree or Milton.

It is not required that residents file an application at a site in their city or town.

In order to process the application, all income for all members 18 years and older must be presented at the time of application.

Due to regulation changes this year, QCAO is required to ask Social Security numbers for all members of the household 18 years and older. This information will be sent to the Department of Revenue where a wage match, based on Quarterly Tax Reports submitted by employers, and listing of subsidized private and public housing will be made.

It is the policy of Quincy Community Action Organization, Inc. to serve clients with the least bit of confusion and provide a location that is accessible and convenient to them.

By scheduling appointments, clients, especially elderly and handicapped, should not have to wait in line for long periods of time and will be able to select a time and location that is convenient for them.

Calls may be made Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. at 471-4025, 4026 or 4027.

Sites will be open for four weeks in Weymouth and Braintree, one week in Milton and 13 weeks in Quincy.

Supporters Meet Oct. 11 To Aid Wollaston Facility

Quincy residents who are interested in preserving the Norfolk County Recreation Facility in North Quincy as open space are holding a meeting Tuesday, Oct. 11, at 6:45 p.m. in the clubhouse.

A referendum on whether the county should sell the facility will be on the Nov. 8 city election ballot.

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey said bumper stickers exhorting residents to "Vote No on Question 1, Preserve Our Open Space" will be available at the meeting.

"We also have signs available," he said. "What we need now are property owners, especially those living on main streets, who would be willing to let us put up a sign on their property.

"Anyone who can't make it to this meeting, but who wants a bumper sticker or who can offer us a sign location, can call me at my office, 722-2470, or at home, 328-0900."

Germantown Woman Raped

A young Germantown woman was raped at knife-point in her home early Friday, an act that was interrupted briefly by her 5-year-old son.

Police said the woman was asleep on her couch about 3 a.m. when the man entered through an unlocked window, put a knife to her throat and raped her.

In the middle of the act, her little boy came into the room and the man told her to tell the youngster to go back to bed.

The man was described as white, 5-foot-10, 160 pounds, clean shaven, wearing a ski hat, a red and white plaid shirt and dark jacket and pants.

Cranch School Issue:

35 Want Development 32 For Open Space

By TOM HENSHAW

The City Council went through a third public hearing on disposal of the Cranch School Monday night and this time the response turned out favorable, but just barely.

A developer, Housing Organizational Trust, wants to purchase the abandoned building on Hospital Hill for $150,000 and convert it into 17 two-bedroom condominium units.

Neighbors, including the Cranch Hospital Hill Association, want the city to retain the property as open space and a place for the neighborhood children to play.

Of those who attended Monday night's hearing, 35 were recorded for development, 32 for open space.

"I endorse open space," said David McIntosh of 293 Whitwell St., "but from the point of view of practicality the way city finances are now, we can't afford that luxury.

"If we have more open space it will only go unattended like McIntyre Mall and Freedom Park. You never see anybody go down there and the city is in dire need of revenue."

Don Duggan of 59 Bedford St. told the Council that a hangout of undesirables is developing around the school now "and it's getting worse and worse."

"The MBTA is cleaning up around the station," he said, "and the riff raff is going up on Cranch Hill. It is not a healthy environment."

Mary Maki of 192 Glendale Rd. noted that her association has turned in petitions with 200 names to the Council "and only a few do not want empty space."

"All the other closed schools were disposed of according to the wishes of the neighborhood," she said.

"The will of the people of Cranch Hill should not be ignored."

Russell Hodgkins of 37 Dixwell St. pointed out that there is very little open space left in Quincy.

"If there were no Neponset River," he said, "this city would be indistinguishable from Boston. We've got to keep what little open space we have now to keep Quincy a liveable city."

Sarah L. MacLeod of 66 Dixwell said she thought the purchase price of $150,000 "absolutely ridiculous."

"Some single family houses in the same neighborhood have a higher value," she said. "I beg of you, don't let the land go so cheaply at the expense of our children."

The Council left the sale order in its Land Conveyance Committee for further consideration.

Sheets Seeks Sewer Ban For West Quincy

City Councillor James A. Sheets asked the McCauley administration Monday night to bring suit on behalf of the residents of West Quincy to extend the South Quincy sewer connection band to their section of the city.

The West Quincy sewer system is already so over-taxed, Sheets told his fellow councillors, that it overflows into cellars and spreads out across the fields where children play.

"The people asked the state on July 6 to expand the sewer band to West Quincy," said Sheets. "It was denied. It's time the city got into the fight on behalf of its people.

"If we can go to court to keep filth out of Quincy Bay we can do the same to keep filth out of West Quincy homes. I ask the mayor to take the same action for the people as he has for Quincy Bay."

Readers Forum Seeks Help For Legislative Reform Petition Campaign

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

If you're tired of the way our Legislature operates, you have a chance to change the system. A Legislative Reform initiative petition is being circulated by several groups under the name "Coalition for Legislative Reform." The group must collect the signatures of 61,508 registered voters by Nov. 23 to be on the 1984 ballot.

This petition is an attempt to stop the abuses of power by the legislative leadership on Beacon Hill. It would also open up the legislative process so that legislators would be accountable to their constituents rather than to the legislative leadership.

Among the reforms are:
1. Cutting the pay of the Senate President and Speaker of the House by $20,000 each.

2. Committee Chairmen will be chosen by the majority caucus rather than by the Speaker or Senate President. (Committee Chairmen would only receive $1,000 extra rather than the present $7,500 extra).

3. Bills can be brought to the floor for debate rather than buried in committee.

4. Initiative petitions for constitutional amendments must be acted upon by June 10th, rather than ignored or "amended."

5. Legislative accounts will be subject to audit, and examination by the Inspector General. Presently no auditing is allowed! $34 Million spent yearly with no accountability!

The "Coalition for Legislative Reform" consists of several citizens' groups. I'm coordinating the signature collection in the Quincy area for Citizens for Limited Taxation, a member of the Coalition. If you would like to collect a few signatures and help in our efforts, please call me at 479-1429. We only have a few short weeks. It's time to bring representative democracy back to Beacon Hill.

Would Tobin Run Again?

Is he really serious?

Former Mayor Arthur Tobin has told a few friends he might just return to the political arena.

He has mentioned, they say, taking a leave of absence from his job as clerk-magistrate of Quincy District Court to run for mayor again.

There no doubt are days when he would like to be back at City Hall although he had his up's and down's there.

What got him to talking about running again, they say, was the General Dynamics $28 million tax abatement case.

Tobin, they say, still thinks the city could have come up with "imaginative alternatives" to plunking down $28 million to General Dynamics. The city, he says, should have tried harder.

TOBIN

Mayor Francis McCauley, of course, has said all General Dynamics is interested in is the money. No alternatives. Just money. Period.

Tobin, who has strong feelings about the General Dynamics case, no doubt would like to have tried to do it his way as far as resolving the matter is concerned.

But would he really run again for mayor?

He probably isn't that serious about it.

But then . . .

FRITZ STREIFERD of Wollaston, who is heading up the "Coalition for Legislative Reform" petition drive, says he isn't having much of a problem getting people to sign. Got almost 500 with Chick Faulkner in a few hours in front of the Quincy Post Office and in Wollaston on the first day.

Streiferd heads up the drive in Quincy, Braintree, Milton and Weymouth. Some 61,508 registered voter signatures have to be obtained by Nov. 23 to get it on the 1984 ballot.

Goal of the reform referendum is to cut the power, salary, and "abuse" of the legislative leadership.

Streiferd was an aide to James Sheets when the latter was a state representative.

Incidentally, Streiferd who is now 73, underwent successful quadruple by-pass heart surgery a few months ago and now keeps in shape walking two miles a day. These days he walks with petitions in his hand.

FR. WILLIAM WALSH, Catholic chaplain at Quincy City Hospital, is on a Sabbatical at Notre Dame University until Dec. 20. During his absence, priests at St. John's Church, where he is in residence, are filling in for him at the hospital.

OOPS DEPT: In last week's column we noted how far women voters have come since 1919 when the 19th amendment to the Constitution was adopted giving nation-wide suffrage to women. Until then women could vote only for school committees.

We also mentioned three women holding elective office in Quincy: Councillor at-large Patricia Toland, Ward 6 Councillor Joanne Condon and School Committee Vice Chairwoman Mary Collins. BUT, we overlooked one more: School Committee woman Joan Picard. Sorry about that, Joan. But, it gives us the opportunity to further note that Joan and husband, Tom, are celebrating their 20th wedding anniversary. Congratulations.

"It's my responsibility to do it," he said. "I got the best settlement I could. The Council's function is not to approve or disapprove the agreement, only the bond issue.

"I'm disappointed that the Council would not place the referendum on the ballot. I was looking forward in the next few weeks to having a good dialogue with the people on the issue."

"The agreement," he added, "has been scrutinized by bankers, the newspapers and the councillors. None of them has come up with a better solution."

Councillor James A. Sheets said that the "real issue" in the Council's consideration of the referendum was "whether or not the people would have enough information to make a decision."

"The information has not been given because it is not there," he said. "No one knows what the financial condition of the city is going to be in the future. Why exempt if we don't know if it's necessary?"

"Therefore the issue should not be on the ballot. The philosophical should give way to the practical."

"The real issue is the bond and the amount of the payback," said Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia. "I am not ready to roll over and play dead on the General Dynamics issue."

McGrath noted that the bonded debt of the city will drop from $5.6 million in fiscal 1984 to $3.6 million in fiscal 1985.

"That means that $2 million we raised this year will be available for something else next year," he said. "I have also seen some optimistic projections on state aid for next year."

"We can do it (pay back $2.8 million) with the resources on hand at least for the first year and take it as it comes. If need be we can put a referendum on the ballot next year."

Foster Homes Sought Here

The Quincy office of the State Department of Social Services has embarked upon a campaign to recruit foster parents to relieve the critical shortage of foster homes for children in the area.

Area Director Jack Hauck said his office receives an average of 30 requests for homes a month and more than half of them have to be placed in group homes or in homes outside the area.

The Quincy area includes Milton and Randolph.

Anyone interested in being a foster parent to a child who has been abused or neglected at home should call the foster recruiter, Jennifer Holme at 773-8920.

Odd-Even Parking Rule To Ease Snow Removal

Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson says snow-plowing of city streets will be better than ever this winter, thanks to an odd-even parking plan enacted by City Council.

"In an odd-numbered year people are going to be required to park on the odd-numbered side of the street and in the even year park on the even side," Anderson told interviewers on the Quincy Cablestreams program "Newsmakers."

"It means we're going to be able to get plows down certain streets where we've had problems with people parking on both sides. It's been almost impossible for the plows to get through."

"Snowplowing is a hazardous occupation for the drivers because of the size of the vehicles and the slippery conditions of the streets. When confronted also with illegally parked cars in staggered formation on either side of the street it is very difficult to do jobs adequately. This ordinance will go a long way to help us do a better job."

Anderson said his department is now in the process of mounting sanders on its trucks and expects to be ready by Oct. 15 for the first snowfall.

Anderson said the Public Works Department is going to have a $60,000 shortfall in its budget this year because the federal government approved "a massive cost of fuel increase which will be applied to our bills" by Mass. Electric.

The problem with Mass. Electric, he said, "is not only rates but actual physical inventory. For years we accepted normal utility bill increases without complaining because they seemed to be nominal. With the advent of 2½ we don't have that luxury anymore."

"We started looking into the situation and we found Mass. Electric's bills match their inventory quite well. However, when we did physical checks of that inventory, actually went out to the pole where that light was supposed to be, we found a 5 per cent discrepancy."

"When you're looking at a cost of $800,000 just for street lights, I have a problem signing bills where I'm not sure we're getting that we're paying for. Translate a 5 per cent discrepancy across the entire street light bill and you wind up with $40,000."

Anderson said the city has joined a consumers' group of other cities and towns to intervene before the State Department of Public Utilities on rate setting and matters relating to inventory.

"I'm confident we're going to be able to do a lot, particularly on the inventory end," he said.

On other matters, Anderson said:

- The city has asked the state and the MDC to provide officers for impacted school crossings and to take responsibility for keeping alternate routes open in the winter during the time the Southeast Expressway is being reconstructed.

- The city dump has a life of only three years remaining and the ultimate solution to the disposal of refuse is resource recovery. Unfortunately, the earliest resource recovery plant won't be on line until 1987 "and that's an optimistic assessment."

Anderson was interviewed on the program by John Noonan of The Quincy Sun, Herb Fontaine, news director of WJDA, and Ray McEachern, reporter for the Patriot Ledger.

Bombs Away On Model Town In Merrymount

Chester J. Weeden, chairman of the Quincy Defense Council, announced plans to build "a model American village" in Merrymount Park and then destroy it in a simulated bombing attack to demonstrate air warfare to the people of Quincy.

Public Works Commissioner James P. Donovan said three carpenters and two helpers have been assigned to raise the village, which will consist of nine buildings, one of them 26 feet high, in the outfield at Adams Field.

William G. Sweetman, a Civil Defense chemical warfare instructor, said it would take about two hours to wipe out the village, during which time air raid wardens, auxiliary police, decontamination squads and Red Cross workers will be tested.

Sweetman, the producer of the spectacle, said it had been arranged for Navy bombing planes to fly low over the village while bombs planted on the ground were exploded to add further realism to the scene.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Four things a man must learn to do - if he would make his record true: To think without confusion clearly; To love his fellowman sincerely; To act from honest motives purely; To trust in God and Heaven securely".

HENRY VAN DYKE.

His thought indicates a philosophy of life probably never seen or experienced. Perhaps the closest any era approached that way of life is seen in the Puritan heritage and work ethic. Their lofty principles enabled them to keep faith in God, trust in their government and faith in themselves. Since then technology, wealth and a changing of men's minds, motives, customs and goals have brought vast confusion, immorality, disaffection, heartache and suffering.

Is it not time - NOW - especially in view of our stresses, tensions and turmoil for reflective thinking to change our way of life to regain traditional values of good, clean, decent living? . . .

On January 1, your phone won't turn into a monster.

If you're like most people, you've heard that the Bell System is breaking up. And that, after January 1, 1984, you'll have to look to separate sources for local phone service, long-distance phone service, and equipment.

If you're like most people, you're concerned that this will turn your phone service into a monster. It won't.

New England Telephone will still be your local phone company. We'll still provide you with the same good service New Englanders have counted on for the last 100 years.

Divestiture will mean some changes. For individuals, for business—and for the future.

We think most of the changes will be for the better. And, as they happen, we'll tell you about them. Because the more you know about change, the easier it is to handle.

Some things won't change.

New England Telephone will still provide local phone service. All you have to do is pick up the phone and call. The way you always have.

You've probably heard that the cost of local calling will increase after divestiture. That's because long-distance charges will no longer pay part of the cost of local service. However, the cost of long-distance calling may be reduced. And New England Telephone also offers options—like Measured Service or Unlimited Service—to help you control the cost of local service.

Some things will change.

Among the things that are changing are the ways you obtain equipment and repairs.

New England Telephone will no longer provide home telephone equipment. If you want to buy phones, you can buy them from any number of suppliers. So shop around. Compare prices, features, and service warranties to get the best buys for your money. If you prefer to lease your phones, simply keep the ones we've provided. But after January 1, you'll automatically be leasing them from AT&T.

Whoever supplies your phones will be responsible for their repair. Of course, New England Telephone will continue to maintain and repair your phone lines.

A short course on long-distance options.

After the break-up, New England Telephone will continue to provide you with long distance service within your area code. And we'll give you access to long-distance service outside your area code. So you can still make and receive long-distance calls.

Your current long-distance service will continue after January 1.

However, if you want to choose a new long-distance company, check your Yellow Pages for a complete listing. Then compare rates and services and make your choice.

What lies ahead?

New England Telephone's been in the forefront of changes in telephone service and technology for the last 100 years. And that's just where we intend to stay.

We're managing today's changes, and we'll continue to offer you new options, all geared to making your phone service the best it can be.

There's been a lot of noise about the Bell System breaking up, but just remember New England Telephone's got it all together.

If you have any questions about the ways these changes will affect you, call our special, toll-free "Let's Talk" number. It's 1 800 555-5000. Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Durkin Hits Delays In Teachers' Contracts

Steph J. Durkin, a candidate for School Committee, says he is pleased that Quincy teachers have ratified a new contract, but, he adds, "an agreement satisfactory to both parties should have been reached long ago."

Durkin spoke at a coffee hour at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kelly of Quincy Shore Drive.

"For months," he said, "most of the attention concerning Quincy's school system has focused on the prolonged teacher contract negotiations, drawing attention away from other problem areas in the system."

"Moreover, the contract impasse merely served to weaken an already low teacher morale, creating a situation which can only diminish educational quality."

"This situation was only made worse by the fact that three members of the present School Committee were, and still are, unable to negotiate or vote on matters related to teacher contracts because of conflicts of interest."

(Durkin apparently was referring to Committeemen John J. Sullivan, Christopher Kennedy and Nicholas Verenis, all of whom have relatives who are teachers in the Quincy schools.)

"In the future, I would hope that negotiations could move forward more rapidly and amicably so that an early settlement may be reached which is satisfactory to the budgetary concerns of the School Committee and to the professional needs of the teachers."

Durkin said he hopes that the city "will provide the funding necessary to pay the modest salary increases called for under the contract."

Fundraiser Dance Friday For Koch

Center on Quarry St., West Quincy and includes dancing and refreshments.

Cunniff, Mrs. Mina Scanlan, Mrs. Linda Bowes, Robert Woods, John Keenan, Timothy Healy, Mr. and Mrs. David J. Donaghy, Mrs. Dorothy Kelly and Mrs. Simone Koch.

Koch is serving his second term on the City Council winning the election in 1981.

Foley Speaker At QCA Meeting

Arthur Foley, the mayor's administrative assistant was scheduled to be the speaker last night at a meeting of the Quincy Citizens Association in the Montclair Men's clubhouse.

Foley was to speak on details of the $28 million settlement of the General Dynamics tax case.

Also on the agenda was Fritz Streifer to explain the proposed referendum question on the Nov. 8 ballot that would curb the powers of the leaders of the State Legislature.

Durkin Rally Friday

The Committee to Elect Stephen J. Durkin for School Committee will hold a dance-rally (Friday) from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight at the obtained by calling Maureen Durkin at 472-6585, Charles Phelan at 479-3833 or Stephanie Durkin at 479-4333 or purchased at the door.

The Campaign Trail

Iacobucci Names Team

Ronald P. Iacobucci, candidate for City Councillor at large, has announced the leadership team for his city wide campaign.

The committee officers include Campaign Chairman John J. Walsh of Squantum and Treasurer Judi Bibbo of South Quincy.

The ward coordinators are: Ward 1, Michael Cheney, 94 Rock Island Rd.; Ward 2, John Franceschini, 26 Main St.; Ward 3, Robert McIntosh, 229 Whitwell St.; Ward 4, Nina Bellotti, 171 Crescent St.; Ward 5, Michael Long, 20 Wollaston Ave.; and Ward 6, Charles Colby, 195 East Squantum St.

"The coordinators involved in my campaign are representative of the areas in which they live, and as such, they are concerned about the quality of life in their neighborhoods," said Iacobucci.

"They are a fairly diverse group of individuals: blue collar, white collar, young and old; that have come together because they share my concern about the direction our city is going and the need for leadership. They believe that my background in government, business and community service qualifies me to be an effective City Councillor."

Arienti Pledges No Outside Interests

William Arienti, a candidate for the School Committee, says he has "no outside interests which will interfere with fulfilling my responsibilities if elected a member of the School Committee."

Arienti said some members of the School Committee have abstained from voting on some questions before the committee because of conflict of interest.

John J. Sullivan, Christopher Kennedy, Joan Picard and Nicholas Verenis have relatives employed by the school system.

"As a School Committee hopeful," said Arienti, "ensuring quality education for our children is my only interest."

"With the demands of our time, none of us can afford a school committee that is unable to participate in areas which will ultimately affect the vitality of our schools."

"My commitment is to the hope of our future, the children and the people of the schools that educate them."

Arienti said he feels it is important to make the people of Quincy aware of any potential conflict of interest before the election and before it is time to participate in decisions.

"My campaign theme of a new beginning is important because, for too long, we have been complacent with business as usual," he said.

"We owe it to the students to approach the problems in our schools with bold initiative, creative management of scarce resources and a full time commitment to improve the quality of education in Quincy."

A Message for Concerned Citizens from Councillor-at-Large Richard J. Koch, Jr.

Dear Voter,

On November 8th, an important issue directly affecting the quality of our lives and neighborhoods will be on the ballot. The issue is the future of the Presidents' Golf Course. Public open space is, as you are well aware, a rapidly vanishing resource.

I will continue to support the retaining of public open space designated as recreational and conservation land.

On November 8, please take action. I urge you to vote to retain the Wollaston Recreational facility as a proven, self-supporting, county-operated recreational space. I believe it is in your best interest to vote on this important issue.

Sincerely,

Raiders Tune Up Offense For Cambridge

With 1:49 left in the game last Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium, the North Quincy football team was on its own five-yard line and trailing Newton North, 8-7.

It didn't seem possible the Raiders could go 95 yards in that time.

But miracles do happen and, after North drove to the Newton 13, Nick Gelsomini kicked a 31-yard field goal with 18 seconds left, the ball hitting the cross bar and bouncing over to give the Raiders an unbelievable 10-8 Suburban League victory.

North coach Ken McPhee, delighted with the win, hopes for more offense Saturday when the Raiders host winless Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 1:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Cambridge has lost to Quincy, Leominster and B. C. High. North won last year's game, 35-14.

"We really needed this win after losing our first two games and the kids just never gave up," McPhee said. "Steve Hogan, starting his first game at quarterback, was tremendous during that

North played without four regulars, Larry Nialez,

Kevin Kelly, Tony Befera and Ben Klingenstein.

McPhee praised Jack Bolster, Jim Kennedy and Vic DiGravio for their performances and Bob Flynn, improving all the time, and Jack Hannan played well in the offensive line.

"The line did a good job as a group," assistant coach Mark Mulvaney said. "The pass blocking was good and we are coming along. We needed this win to boost our confidence. The line is very inexperienced but it is putting it all together now."

Defensive coordinator Jack Raymer was again drive (completing four passes and at least two others should have been caught).

"Newton was big and gave us plenty of trouble but our kids showed what they are made of with that great drive. I want to make it clear that I didn't start Hogan because Dave Zuroms wasn't doing his job. I just felt a change was in order and Dave played as big a part in this win as anyone. He gave Hogan encouragement from the sidelines and came to me with suggestions when he spotted some things he thought would help us. Both Zuroms and Hogan are excellent quarterbacks."

Quincy, North Reports On WJDA

Station WJDA will bring in reports of Cambridge Rindge and Latin at North Quincy (Veterans Memorial Stadium) and Quincy at Waltham Saturday as it continues its weekly coverage of schoolboy football games.

There will be another play-by-play doubleheader, Columbus at Abp. Williams at 10 a.m. and Hingham at Weymouth North at 1:30. Reports also will be brought in from Weymouth South at Rockland and Needham at Braintree.

Quincy Girls Upset Brockton

The Quincy girls' volleyball team improved its record to 4-0 last week when it upset previously unbeaten Brockton, 15-4, 15-3, and rolled over Newton North, 15-4, 15-3.

The Quincy girls hosted Cambridge Rindge and Latin yesterday (Wednesday), will play at North Quincy Friday at 3:30 and will be home to Newton South next Wednesday at 3:30.

Carolyn Leonard and Colleen Dunn dominated the match against Brockton with their serving and defensive play.

The second game saw the First Ladies overcome a 12-6 deficit with Christine Gallery and Susan Beven coming alive at the net, spiking several balls, while Leonard served the last even points to take the game and match.

Quincy had easy sailing over Newton North as Karen Marnell and Gallery served 21 points between them. Beth Venuto and Mario LeVangie played consistently good defense to give the First Ladies the win.

Quincy's unbeaten junior varsity also improved to 4-0 with a 15-0, 15-4 victory over Newton North behind the serving of Karen Eames, Donna McLoughlin and Stephanie LeVangie.

The freshman team made its first appearance under Coach Debbie Hassan and followed the leads of the varsity and Jayvees with an easy win over Newton.

Lauren Standing, Pam Austin, Terry and Ginny Duggan turned in outstanding performances.

The future of Quincy's varsity squad looks excellent as the coaches feel several of the Jayvees and freshmen would be playing with the varsity at other schools.

MacPherson TD Lifts Quincy 7-0 Over Braintree

Co-Capt. Paul Quintilliani passed 16 yards to Mal MacPherson early in the fourth period for the only score of the game as the Quincy High School football team hammered out a 7-0 victory over Braintree for its first win of the season after a loss and two ties.

Twice earlier Quincy had been halted just short of scoring. Once Lou Marini was stopped on fourth and one on the Braintree three. Again, Paul Flanagan and Marini ran the ball to the Wamp 15 where the Presidents were halted with a net loss of 15 yards.

The hard-charging Quincy line, led by Co-Capt. Art Craig and Hank Pasqualucci, smothered Braintree's star running back, Bill Aumen, limiting the Wamp rushing offense to a scant 30 yards. Aumen's longest gain was 17 yards.

DUNLOP LEADS NORTH

Little Danny Dunlop scored two touchdowns, one on a 17-yard sweep, the other on a 16-yard pass from Tom Conley, to lead the North Quincy High School football team to a 27-6 decision over Hingham for its second victory of the season.

The explosive Raider offense, built around Dunlop, Conley, Scotty Whitelaw and Bart Bulman, registered 14 first downs and gained 327 yards on the ground and 36 in the air. Hingham's lone score came on a 62-yard pass play from Norman Barry to Al Rohrer.

APPRENTICES WIN

Quarterback Jack Hamilton faked a pass and handed the ball to player-coach Ernie Cislighi who ran 12 yards for the only touchdown with eight minutes to play as the Fore River Apprentices downed the Neponset Wanderers, 6-0, for their fourth straight win.

The Fore River lineup included: Srephansky, DiBona, ends; Kilrain, Histon, tackles; Tropes, Reinhalter, guards; Ross, center; Hamilton, Cislighi, Horn, Kilrain, backs; Reagan, Shea, Better, Lombardi, Townsend, subs.

SOUTH, NORTH WIN

Warren Mills scored twice and Carl Leone and Dick DiBona once each as South rolled over Point, 25-0, in a Junior High School Football League game. South scored its first three touchdowns in five minutes, believed to be a league record.

George Doherty tossed a lateral to Co-Capt. Leo Luchini who ran 25 yards for the only score as North squeezed out a 6-0 victory over Central in the second game of the Municipal Stadium doubleheader.

HOW SERIOUS IS SNAKE BITE?

A snake bite isn't very serious at all if the snake isn't poisonous. And even a bite by a poisonous snake isn't necessarily fatal.

How many people are bitten by snakes each year? The last study made was in 1960. That year, there were 6,000 poisonous snake bites. Of that total, according to the U.S. Public Health Service, only 14 deaths were attributed to the poisonous bites.

But that doesn't mean you can ignore a snake bite. It's not always obvious that a snake is poisonous. If it is, your life is in danger. Here are some tips to help prevent snake bites:

...Familiarize yourself with the dangerous snakes in any area you plan to visit. . . . Wear knee-high, heavy boots in snake country. . . . Wear your pants loose, outside your boots. The snake may strike your floppy pants instead of your legs. . . . Never put your hands or feet any place you can't see. Snakes love to sun themselves on warm, sunny ledges. . . . If you really fear snake bites, move to Alaska or Hawaii. Neither state has any venomous snakes.

Presidents Face Tough Task At Waltham

By TOM SULLIVAN

For nearly 39 minutes last Saturday it appeared that the Quincy football team would have to be satisfied with a frustrating scoreless tie with Revere.

But in the last 1:27 of the game the Presidents scored a touchdown and added a safety for a 9-0 non-league win and improved their record to 2-1 (1-0 in the Suburban League).

Quincy faces a tough task Saturday when it plays at Waltham in a 1:30 p.m. league game. Waltham, which defeated the Presidents, 20-13, a year ago, is also 2-1, dropping a 14-13 squeaker to Malden last week.

"Boy, this was a good one to pull out," said first-year Quincy Coach Bill Maver. "We had so many chances and fumbles hurt us all day. But give the kids credit, everyone did his job in our late scoring drive. The linemen were blocking and (Mike) Notarangelo, (Joe) Cullen and (Gerry) Frazier ran well. It was a real team effort and we really needed this one."

Quincy lost the ball three times on fumbles and had a pass intercepted and a punt blocked, while Revere coughed the ball up four times on fumbles and also had an interception.

Dan Macauley made the fourth Quincy fumble recovery at Revere's 41 to set up the Presidents' scoring drive. Quincy drove the 59 yards in eight plays.

Notarangelo, who led Quincy with 71 yards, sparked the drive while Cullen and Frazier also contributed. A 19-yard pass from Bill Shaughnessy to Cullen also helped out.

Frazier ran 13 yards to the Revere 16, Notarangelo added 11 to the five from where he scored with 1:27 left. Joe Conti kicked the extra point.

Two plays later Rich Ready crashed through to spill quarterback David Errico in the end zone for a safety to make the final score 9-0.

Quincy's offensive line did its job most of the day and gave the Presidents some good chances but the fumbles haunted them. The coaches had good words for Eric Jolley, Chris Connor, Mark Walsh, Ready, Greg Keefe (his blocking stood out), Pat Calabro, Macauley and John O'Callaghan.

Quincy's secondary was outstanding with Chris Shaughnessy, Conti, Notarangelo and Conti doing a great job. Sophomore Walter Rollins and Zupkofska also played well on defense.

"This game was a lot like the previous week at Everett (a 14-0 Quincy loss)," said Maver. "They wanted that game more than we did, but today we wanted it more than Revere, that was the difference."

Revere took the opening kickoff and went to Quincy's 39 but Cullen fell on a Revere fumble on the Quincy 37. The Presidents went nowhere and Conti punted to the Patriots' 36. They started a good drive and reached the Quincy 27 but fumbled again and this time Connor recovered on the Quincy 32.

Quincy moved the ball well and clicked off two first downs and reached Revere's 33 but Revere's Mike Merullo intercepted a pass on his eight to stop the threat.

Revere punted to its 37 where the ball was fumbled by the Quincy receiver. However, an official had inadvertently blown his whistle and the play was called back. This time the punt went out on Revere's 26, giving the Presidents a fine opportunity.

Quincy drove to the eight-yard line but fumbled, Revere's Paul Belchner recovering on the two. Quincy's Rollins recovered a fumble on the eight but Conti just missed a 26-yard field goal try.

The Patriots then threw a big scare into the Presidents when they drove to the Quincy 20, with Errico completing four passes but, with one second left, a pass was incomplete and the half ended scoreless.

Revere drove to Quincy's 14 early in the third period after Vic Difraia had blocked a Conti punt, but the Presidents held. Conti got Quincy out of a hole with a booming punt all the way to Revere's 36. A few plays later, after Revere punted, Quincy fumbled again and Revere's Mark Capprini recovered on his 45. On the first play Conti intercepted a pass on Quincy's 40 and the Presidents started another drive that was stopped by a fumble.

Notarangelo, the smallest player on the field, constantly carried two and three defenders along for extra yardage.

NORTH QUINCY'S Dave Brown (12) and Quincy's Jimmy Norton (7) battle for the ball during last week's Soccer game won by North, 4-0.

ANDY CURTIS (15) of North Quincy and Quincy's Jim Norton go after the ball as Quincy's Scott Wigmore (40) and North's Nunzio Carbone (11) move into the action during last week's Soccer game.

North Ties Cambridge, Blanks Quincy, 4-0

Playing its best game of the season, the North Quincy boys' soccer team stunned Cambridge Rindge and Latin's defending Suburban League champions and Eastern Mass. Div. I finalists, holding them to a 1-1 tie last week, then followed up with a 4-0 victory over winless Quincy.

Paul Bregoli's Raiders, with a 3-1-2 record, play at Sharon today (Thursday) in a non-league game, plays at Waltham Friday in a league game and will be at Brookline for a league game next Tuesday. Quincy will host Brockton next Tuesday at 3:30 at the field behind Veterans Stadium.

North came out strong in the first quarter against Cambridge and consistently beat Cambridge to the ball but was unable to mount any real scoring threats. North's standout midfielder, Terry Stark, was assigned the league's top scorer, Alvaro Ibanes, and he blanketed the Warriors' star. The Raider's goalie, Mark Hubbard, made a good save on Cambridge's only scoring threat.

North had all the better of play in the second quarter and could have gone into halftime leading, 2-0. Mark Scanlan had a golden opportunity to score but his shot was slapped out by goalie John Ramos.

With four minutes left in the quarter North's Nunzio Carbone was awarded a penalty kick but he also kicked high.

at halfback, giving Joseph a much-needed rest. Craig Orrock also spelled Stark and did a good job shutting down Ibanes.

North just missed again a minute into the third quarter as Scanlan went in along but his shot hit the post. Eight minutes later Cambridge was called for holding in the penalty area and this time Carbone didn't miss as he sent his free kick into the lower left corner.

With two minutes left in the quarter Scanlan drilled a 25-yarder which Ramos bobbled. Chris Archer could not deflect the ball in, however.

The Raiders became too defensive-minded in the fourth quarter and Ibanes, who had been held to a single shot, weaved through four North players and beat Hubbard from 12 yards out. Cambridge swarmed the North end but excellent defense by Eric Roukey, Jaime Paz and Pat Marcham and three outstanding saves by Hubbard kept the Warriors from scoring the winning goal.

Hubbard made 18 saves, including the three big ones at the end. Joseph and Steve Golden played solid games while Carbone and Stark were immense on defense.

"This game proved to the kids that they could play with the best, even with two starters out," said Bregoli. "We actually could have won the game, 5-1, which would have shocked everyone. I'm very proud of the gutsy performance they gave".

The Raiders had senior tri-captain David Brown back for the Quincy game but lost Stark, who had 18 stitches in the head at practice the previous day.

North struck early as Curtis crossed a perfect ball to Archer, who merely had to tap it in a wide open net. Minutes later confusion between Quincy goalie Louis Sandomato and Co-Capt. Jim Norton resulted in another North goal. Curtis crossed another ball which Norton handled and passed back to Sandomato. The ball eluded the Presidents' goalie and it was 2-0.

North kept constant pressure on Quincy's defense and Carbone, Scanlan and Walsh had good chances to score. Brown celebrated his return with a goal midway in the second quarter.

North scored again in the third quarter as Archer's shot deflected off a Quincy defender. It was his sixth goal of the year. Joseph unloaded a hard shot from 35 yards out but Sandomato made a great save.

Late in the fourth quarter Walsh hit the post and Brian Bresnahan's shot just went high.

Keith Burke, Joe LaPierre, Walsh and Brian Koch all played well for North and Hubbard registered his first shutout, making five saves. For Quincy Norton, Marcelo Cabrera and Matt Ursino turned in fine performances.

Dick Donovan Certified RA Member Real Estate Board

Richard E. Donovan of Quincy has been designated a certified RA member of the Board of Real Estate Appraisers by the Trustees of the Massachusetts Board of Real Estate Appraisers.

The professional designation RA (Residential Appraiser) is awarded to those individuals who have proven their expertise in appraising by passing stringent educational, experience and examination requirements, as well as by submitting appraisal reports to a Board of Examiners for review.

Donovan operates a real estate firm in Quincy and is a member of the Quincy South Shore Board of Realtors and its multiple listing service. A former major league baseball star, he has been credited with over $1 million in real estate transactions during each of the past three years.

Donovan recently moved his offices to the Dimmock Building in Quincy Center.

Keohane Funeral Home In Golden Rule Order

Keohane Funeral Home, Inc., in Quincy, has been accepted for membership in the International Order of the Golden Rule.

The Order is comprised of funeral directors from all over the world who are dedicated to keeping in touch with the attitudes of the public. This is accomplished through regularly scheduled seminars and educational meetings at which attendance is required by all members.

Only one funeral home in a community is selected for membership. For this reason, the Order carefully screens all prospects. The decision is based on recommendations made by families the firm has served and by other professionals in the area.

Dale L. Rollings, executive director of the association, stated, "To obtain membership in OGR, all prospects must provide their community with quality funeral service and merchandise at reasonable prices. As a result of the positive response we've received from the Quincy area, Keohane Funeral Home, Inc. has proven its worthiness to be counted among our members."

South Boston Savings Board Votes Stock Form Conversion

South Boston Savings Bank announces its Board of Trustees has unanimously adopted a Plan of Conversion to convert the bank from a mutual to stock form of organization.

The Plan of Conversion is subject to approval by the Commissioner of Banks of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and by the incorporators of the Bank at a special meeting to be called after approval of the Plan is received from the Commissioner.

The Plan of Conversion provides for amendment of the Bank's charter to authorize the issuance of shares of common and serial preferred stock. In the conversion, the Bank will issue and sell common stock to its depositors and general public. The stock will not be insured.

The common stock will be offered initially in a subscription offering to depositors of the bank as of the June 30, 1983 eligibility record date. A direct community offering will also be made on a concurrent basis to individuals residing in Massachusetts, who will be entitled to purchase shares not subscribed for in the subscription offering. Any remaining shares are then expected to be sold to underwriters for resale to the general public in an underwritten public offering. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. is expected to be the managing underwriter.

The net proceeds from the sale of common stock in the conversion will have the immediate result of providing the Bank with substantial new equity capital which will significantly increase its net worth. This increased net worth will support future deposit growth and expanded operations, including additional lending and investment activities and other financial services to the public.

Conversion will structure South Boston Savings Bank in the stock form used in the United States by all commercial banks, most major business corporations and an increasing number of savings institutions.

South Boston Savings Bank's normal business of accepting deposits and making loans will continue without interruption. The Bank will continue after conversion to conduct its present services to depositors and borrowers in its existing offices and by its present management and staff.

Depositors will continue to hold accounts in the Bank after the conversion identical as to dollar amount, rate of return and maturity as their deposit accounts immediately prior to the conversion. Deposit accounts will continue to be fully insured.

$133,375 Contract For Willard St. Repaving

A $133,375 state contract to repave Willard St. from West St. to the Braintree line has been awarded to the Simeone Corp. of Stoughton, it was announced by Rep. Michael W. Morrissey.

The project, which includes work on the Furnace Brook Parkway rotary, is scheduled to begin immediately and conclude Nov. 15.

Morrissey said Willard St. will remain open for traffic during the period of work which will be carried out between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. daily.

The repaving should not be confused with the total reconstruction work on Willard St. which is scheduled to be done two years from now, Morrissey said.

The Rent Grievance Board took a belated first step Monday night toward becoming a legal part of the city government.

The City Council sent to its Ordinance Committee a proposal by Mayor Francis X. McCauley to establish the 15-year-old board as a department of the city by ordinance.

McCauley said he believed that the board was established by executive order by former Mayor

James R. McIntyre but a search of the records turned up no such order.

"It is my belief that there should be a formal ordinance governing this board," he said.

Ralph Dougherty of Sonoma Rd., Squantum, reported to police Sunday that a color television set valued at $200, a typewriter

Patrick F. Doherty of 112 Billings Rd., North Quincy, reported to police

Sunday that his 1975 Pontiac Gran Prix was stolen from the Quincy Bay Inn.

Old Scott Gordon Building To Be Demolished

The Scott Gordon Building on Chestnut St., for many years the home of the famed Quincy Market, is about to be torn down to become, temporarily at least, a parking lot.

"We hope to see it down by the end of the year," said William Austin, president of the South Shore Bank, owners of the property. "Of course, there is always a chance something else will happen."

Austin said long-range plans for the property across Chestnut St. from the bank "have not fully jelled," since the focus of Multibank, the parent company, is on its new computer facility in Dedham.

"The Scott Gordon property is not first on my list of priorities," he said. "At the moment the only plans are for it to become a parking lot. We are out for bids at the moment to get an estimate of the cost."

The South Shore Bank purchased the Scott Gordon property two years ago. The furniture store moved out at the time and the building has been vacant.

The adjoining property, the old Strand Theater, was purchased by the bank last year and torn down to make way for an employee's parking area.

Pollard School Committee To Continue Fight

Concerned Citizens for the Reuse of the Pollard School do not plan to give up their fight for the vacant elementary school despite the fact the mayor has said their proposal did not meet a filing deadline.

"We're going to try and get the (city) council to not accept the bids from developers," said Carl Soderstrom, assistant chairman of the group.

About 60 people met at Quincy Point Congregational Church last week.

Soderstrom said local businesses could rent space in the building, generating rental income which could be used to renovate the building to include a gymnasium and provide other services for the community.

Mayor Francis McCauley said Friday the group did not submit a formal proposal by the Sept. 29 deadline.

"Citizens groups shouldn't be put under the same restrictions as a commercial group," said Soderstrom.

"We were under the impression that we gave the mayor a proposal last January or December. We're an ad hoc group. We thought the proposal was sufficient," said Soderstrom.

"Our proposal should go in front of the city council with the five other bids.

"We're going to look at every aspect to get our shot at the school."

Oct. 19 Deadline For Voter Registration

The last day to sign up for the city election is Wednesday, Oct. 19, and a flurry of last minute registration opportunities have been provided for those who wish to get on the rolls.

Registration for yesterday (Wednesday) was scheduled to be held from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the Fore River Clubhouse (Ward 2), the Furnace Brook School (Ward 3), and the Lincoln Hancock School (Ward 4).

Tonight's registrations will be from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Wollaston Methodist Church (Ward 5) and the Francis Parker School (Ward 6).

There will be special registrations Saturday, Oct. 15, from 12 noon to 8 p.m. and Wednesday, Oct. 19, from 8:30 a.m. to 10 p.m., both at City Hall.

And, of course, new voters can register Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Election Office.

Classification Plan Coming State Approves 100 Per Cent Valuation

By TOM HENSHAW

The State has approved 100 per cent revaluation of all real and personal property in the city and the taxpayers will get their figures just as soon as Mayor Francis X. McCauley drafts a letter to soften the blow.

"I am going to get together with the assessors," said McCauley, "and draft the letter explaining 100 per cent valuation and classification to send out with the impact notices."

Under 100 per cent reval, the valuation of property will go up and the tax rate will go down but many homes in the city that have been undervalued for years will receive higher tax bills.

McCauley said he has set no deadlines for getting out the impact notices.

"Time is not critical right now," he said. "The estimated tax bills for Oct. 1 have been sent out and the next bills are not due in the mail until April 1. In the first five days we've taken in $1,022,000."

After the impact notices go out, the city will set aside a certain time for hearings on complaints after which the State Department of Revenue will review and approve all changes.

In the meantime, McCauley said, the city will be drawing up a plan for classification.

Under state law, the city will be allowed to classify for tax purposes all the property in the city as commercial and industrial, residential, open space and personal. Each may have a different tax rate.

The classification plan, if the city decides to adopt one, is prepared and approved by the Mayor and the City Council and is subject to a public hearing prior to its adoption.

McCauley said the entire process should be completed sometime early in 1984.

"I believe some form of classification is necessary," said the mayor. "We want to soften the blow on the homeowners but we don't want to go to the other extreme and put the clamp on business."

Police Seek Complaint Against Foot Fondler

Quincy police were planning to seek a complaint yesterday (Wednesday) against a 21-year-old Milton man who they said admitted fondling the feet of young girls in 30 elementary schools in Quincy and other communities.

Two of the schools were the now closed Wollaston School in June, 1981, and the Merrymount School last June.

Police said the man has an obsession with female stockings and, when the urge came over him, he would stop his car, go into a school and fondle girls' feet just for the thrill of it.

Det. Capt. David Rowell said the man was apprehended Friday by Quincy and Randolph police on a tip from a Milton policeman who recalled a similar happening in that town several years ago.

Rowell said the man admitted the acts but he was not arrested immediately.

He was identified only as a delivery man who also admitted similar assaults on girls on the North Shore.

Rowell said the man said he wanted psychiatric help and cooperated with the police readily.

Disclosure of the incidents in Quincy led the School Committee to order all elementary schools in the city to lock their doors during the school day to prevent strangers from entering.

Squantum-Boston Commuter Boat Planned

Charles English, owner of the Hingham-Boston commuter boat Gracious Lady, says he is planning to run another commuter boat to Boston daily from the marina in Squantum.

English said he and Arthur Casey of the O'Connell Brothers Development Corp. have formed a partnership called Harbor Crossing Co. and will spend $2.6 million on the service.

The service would start next spring with a sister ship to the Gracious Lady that would carry 175 passengers and travel to Boston in 20 minutes or less.

Wade To Become Milton Health Agent

Winthrop Wade is leaving his job as Quincy's public health coordinator to become town health agent of Milton at a $4,000 raise in pay.

The Quincy job, which Wade has held for more than 10 years, pays $23,003 a year. The Milton job pays $27,000.

Wade succeeds Michael Sullivan who resigned.

Tools Taken

Kenneth King of Milton reported to police Monday that $200 worth of tools were stolen from his pickup truck while it was parked at the Atlas Liquors on Adams St.

Wollaston Rec Facility Turns $95,000 Profit

James J. Collins, chairman of the Norfolk County Commissioners, has announced that the Wollaston Recreational Facility returned a record operating surplus of $95,000 to the county for fiscal 1983.

Collins said income from the facility, which is located on the former Wollaston Golf Club property in North Quincy, was $327,000 while operating expenses were level-funded at $232,600.

Residents of Quincy are to vote Nov. 8 in a referendum on whether or not the county should sell the facility. The other 27 towns in the county have voted 37,855 to 31,028 to sell.

"Administrator John C. Nourse of Weymouth said his entire staff can be justly proud of this accomplishment," said Collins. "Wollaston continues to show a surplus in spite of restricted budgets under Prop 2½."

"The key has obviously been better management and strong cost control."

"Our facility has been turned around in the past two years and the word deficit is no longer in our vocabulary," said Nourse.

"Golf rounds for 1983 were up 14 per cent to 37,200 18-hole rounds; membership was up 20 per cent; golf cart rentals income was up 30 per cent to $61,000; restaurant, tennis and locker income was up 45 per cent to over $12,000.

"We are very optimistic about the future of Wollaston."

Collins noted that Quincy is the last community in the county to vote on the proposed sale.

"A strong 'No' vote in Quincy will put this question to bed permanently and this 92-acre open space recreational facility will be retained permanently as an asset to all 600,000 Norfolk County residents," he said.

Quincy Youth Football To Submit Tag Day Plan

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

A representative of Quincy Youth Football League admitted Tuesday to violations during recent tag day activities, and agreed to submit to the License Board a plan to keep youngsters from soliciting at intersections at next year's event.

David Skinner told the board that he found youngsters from his organization soliciting at intersections in violation of the license.

Skinner said that he sent the youngsters to their coaches who were supposed to take them off the streets. "I feel very badly about it," said Skinner.

"There's a real problem with Quincy Youth Football," said Police Chief Francis Finn.

"They've been told every year to see to it that youngsters stay out of intersections, but they don't."

"You deserve a medal for what you do with the kids, but someone is going to be hurt in an accident."

"It's an impossible thing for the police to police."

Wollaston businessman Arthur Chandler had suggested in a letter to the board last week that tag day activities be stopped in Quincy for safety reasons.

Jeff Hennessy, director of the Quincy Track Club, wrote to the board this week asking that the board punish those groups who violate tag day restrictions, but not those who obey the rules.

City Clerk John Gillis suggested the board not prohibit Quincy Youth Football from holding future tag days.

"It's about the only way that they make money," said Gillis, "if they didn't have the tag day, they couldn't run the league."

Health Commissioner Dr. Grace Hussey suggested that coaches in the league be responsible for members of their own team during the tag days.

Skinner added that parents could help supervise the activity.

The matter was continued until Skinner submits a plan.

"I'll send it in very shortly," he said.

Suspicious Fire Damages High Rise

A smoky fire of suspicious origin did some $10,000 damage to a small bathroom off the dining room at the High Rise Restaurant at Hancock and Maple Sts. Tuesday morning.

Deputy Fire Chief Carl Valenti said the fire was at first thought to be of electrical origin but Wire Inspector Thomas Purpura found nothing wrong with the wiring.

"It could have been wearing a blue shirt and pants. The men fled in an unknown direction.

started by vandals on the roof throwing something down one of the ducts," said Valenti. "We are still investigating."

Traffic at the busy intersection was tied up for more than an hour and a half while firefighters opened up the walls of the bathroom to get at the smoky blaze.

BFI had made plans to bring in workers from its other divisions to make the collections in Houghs Neck, Germantown, Wollaston, Quincy Center and the City Hospital.

1,000 Sign Legislative Reform Petition

Fritz Streiford of Wollaston, coordinator, says more than 1,000 voters have signed a petition to get a legislative reform referendum on the 1984 state election ballot.

"Our goal is a total of 4,000 signatures so you can see there is a lot of work that has to be done," he said. "The motto of our petition drive is SLAP — Stop Legislative Abuse of Power."

The referendum would strip the House Speaker and the Senate President of much of their power over fellow legislators through committee appointments and chairmanships.

Streiford noted the similarity between his petition drive and that which started Proposition 2½ on the way to becoming law three years ago.

He quoted Barbara Anderson, executive director of Citizens for Limited Taxation, as saying:

"When the legislature did not respond to the need for tax reform we the people started tax reform ourselves with Prop. 2½. We collected signatures and put our petition on the ballot where 1,438,768 voted it into law."

"The legislature has not responded to the need for legislative reform. Hearings have been held, exposes have been written, citizens have been outraged, but nothing has been done."

Streiford said volunteers are still needed to collect signatures. Aid may be offered by calling 479-1429.

JFK, Barber Shared Secret

Shortly before she died, Syria Mayo gave me a yellow faded copy of a column I wrote about her husband, Paul, in the Boston Traveler back in 1962.

"I thought you might like to see this," she said. "Do you remember it?"

I remembered it — even if it was written 21 years ago. When a barber in Quincy and the President of the United States shared a secret it was a subject you would hardly forget.

The story itself goes back to 1952 when John F. Kennedy, then a young Congressman, was stumping for the Senate and dropped into Angelo's Barber Shop on Temple St., Quincy Sq. where Paul at the time had been shearing well known heads for 45 years.

Kennedy didn't need a haircut or a shave. He just wanted to chat.

"Paul, how's everything?" Kennedy asked.

"Just fine," Mayo smiled.

The pair then suddenly disappeared together down a flight of stairs into the cellar for a private talk, leaving Kennedy's escorts and customers upstairs wondering.

When they reappeared a few minutes later, someone asked Kennedy what he and Mayo had talked about in the cellar.

"You'll have to ask Paul about that," Kennedy grinned.

So they asked Paul. And got this reply: "You'll have to ask Mr. Kennedy."

Observers guessed Kennedy stopped by for one or two reasons: To visit an old family friend or to check the local political barometer.

Mayo and Kennedy's father had been friends for years. Paul cut Joseph Kennedy's hair once a week while he was assistant general manager of the For River Shipyard in 1917. Kennedy some years later invited Paul to a Jack Dempsey fight in New York.

The barbershop, now under different ownership, is located across the street from City Hall. Paul cut the hair of every Quincy mayor from Joseph Whiton in 1917 to Thomas Burgin. Other customers included Congressman Richard Wigglesworth, Massachusetts Superior Court Chief Justice Paul Reardon and many other local figures of note.

There's no doubt Paul knew how the political barometer was leaning the day a future U.S. President dropped by for a visit and maybe filled Kennedy in.

What did they talk about down in the cellar?

As far as anyone knows, neither of them ever told. Both are gone now and their secret apparently went with them.

ROBERT LUONGO, who handles Historic District questions for the Planning Department is leaving Friday, Oct. 21 to become director of community development for the town of Wakefield.

On Saturday, Oct. 15, at City Hall from noon to 4 p.m., The Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women together with the Quincy City Hospital will host "Health City".

There will be three speakers. Information booths will be set up on the first and second floors.

- 2:30 p.m. - 3:20 p.m. - Oncologist, Quincy City Hospital Staff, Dr. Paul Musto - Topic: Cancer in Women.

There is no charge. Everyone is welcome. Come for part or all of the Mini Woman to Woman's Day.

The job opened up when Wakefield, which does not have a Planning Department, received a state grant for community development and found that it had no one to oversee it.

Luongo has been with the Quincy Planning Department six years.

SCHOOL COMMITTEEWOMAN

Mary Collins who is challenging Joanne Condon for the Ward 6 City Council seat, is off the campaign trail on her doctor's orders.

Mrs. Collins was admitted to Quincy City Hospital last Thursday with high blood pressure and released Sunday. Her doctor told her to rest for a week — and positively no campaigning. She will have further tests.

A FUND RAISER for City Councillor Pat Toland

will be held Thursday, Oct. 27, 6 to 9 p.m. at the National Fire Prevention Association headquarters, Batterymarch Park, West Quincy. Sharing the spotlight with her will be Gov. Michael Dukakis. Toland campaigned for Dukakis and was the only city councillor to support him. So now, he's supporting her. Tickets for the fund-raiser can be obtained by calling Mary Carey (472-5480) or Dan McElaney (471-4832).

RON IACOBUCCI candidate for Quincy City Council-at Large got a big boost to his campaign Monday night when hockey great Bobby Orr made a special appearance to support his candidacy.

At a cocktail party on Grenwood Road hosted by Orr and Tom Kelly, Orr said he was happy to come to Quincy and help the Iacobucci campaign because "we need more qualified professionals like Ron to get involved in government."

THE ELECTION IS still five months away but already one candidate has taken out papers to run for Republican State Committeeman from the Norfolk Senatorial District.

He is Raymond T. Sullivan of 209 Beach St., Wollaston, who will be seeking the seat being vacated by Andrew Card of Holbrook, who has taken a post with the federal government in Washington.

The election is March 13, the day of the presidential primary.

A 'Thank You' From Harborview Residents

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The H. R. C. I. Children Christmas Party Committee is pleased to announce that the recent concert given by Ellis Hall and fellow musicians for the annual Christmas Party was moderately successful.

Because of inclement weather making it necessary to move indoors, attendance was greatly reduced due to lack of space. Due to a very busy schedule, Ellis was unable to set up a rain date in advance.

We feel sure that those of you who were able to gain admission to our rather limited facilities at 9 Bicknell St. thoroughly enjoyed the performance. Ellis assured us that your enthusiasm was contagious and the enjoyment reciprocal. He hopes to be able to rearrange his present schedule for a repeat performance in the near future.

We would like to make it known to all the residents in the area, that Ellis Hall and his friends donated their time and talents for the entertainment of every young and old with the proceeds from your donations to go towards the cost of the Christmas Party.

We wish to sincerely thank them and the members of the committee for their participation.

We also extend our special appreciation to Pete Seppalla a member of the H. R. C. I. and chairman of the Christmas Party Committee who was instrumental in obtaining the Ellis Hall's appearance and coordinating it throughout.

Registry Plans Computer To Crack Down On Repeat Drunk Drivers

By TOM HENSHAW

Deputy Registrar Paula Golden says an effort will be made in the next year to upgrade and computerize the Registry of Motor Vehicles so that repeated drunk drivers cannot slip through the cracks.

Mrs. Golden appeared on the Quincy Cablesystems program "Newsmakers" and explained how a Milton man could be arrested eight times for drunk driving without losing his license.

"The system broke down," she said. "The court system and the registry function in such an antiquated manner that it simply could not process the papers fast enough for the registry to take action."

"In this particular case there was a two-year lag in notification. When we heard of it we sent a registry inspector out personally to obtain the documents. The gentleman doesn't have his license now."

"Since that time," said Mrs. Golden, "the courts have put on additional clerical help and the registry has agreed to require the court to forward to the registry only those documents requiring immediate attention."

"I'm hoping these steps will alleviate the problem and get some of these folks off the road," she said.

"The problem lies in the renovation of licenses and getting at the person's license quick enough so they don't have time to commit another crime while the court is fulfilling the criminal process."

"I think that we will see in the next year a major proposal to upgrade and computerize the registry."

"Everybody hears about the registry computer but what they don't know is that it's merely a recording device, a filing system. It's not a communications system in the true sense of the word."

"One of our major proposals is going to be an attempt to put in an on line system which will allow us to immediately effectuate a suspension or revocation, an important step to getting drunk drivers off the road."

On other registry matters, Mrs. Golden made these points:

"The registry would be happy to send enforcement men to the intersection of Hancock St. and Furnace Brook Parkway, which has been chosen one of the 10 most dangerous intersections in the state."

"We hope to get a lot of our enforcement people back out on the road later this year and we may be able to set up a crack team to stop the heavy flow of traffic at this kind of volatile intersection."

"Morale among registry employees is very, very low and the agency regards itself as a stepchild which seldom receives a sympathetic word from the people or the press."

"People hear how registry employees are so uncooperative. The fact of the matter is that every clerk in the registry brings in a half million dollars per clerk per year in $10 and $20 increments."

"They have a tremendous amount of responsibilities which put a tremendous burden on them and yet our staff over the past 10 years has been cut in half, from 1,800 to 900 persons."

"The registry is in the process of putting together a medical advisory board that will reassess handicapped plates and 'look carefully at the way we license our elderly citizens'."

"I think we have a lot of folks both too young and too old on the road. I'm inclined to take a pretty stiff view of the proper criteria for staying on the road and enjoying the privilege of driving."

"I hope we can do this in short order, perhaps by the first of the year."

Mrs. Golden was interviewed on the program by John Noonan of The Quincy Sun, Herb Fontaine, news director of WJDA, and Ray McEachern, reporter for the Patriot Ledger.

Slain Officer's Picture Hung In Police Station

A large framed picture of Patrolman Alfred N. Hollis, who was shot to death a year ago by bandit Stephen Hoppe, was hung on the wall near the booking desk at the police station, a gift of the late officer's mother, Mrs. A. F. Hollis of South Braintree.

He was the second Quincy police officer killed in the line of duty to be so honored.

In the main entrance of the station was a plaque in memory of Patrolman Joseph T. Connors, who died Christmas Day, 1922, from the effects of bites he received during an heroic and successful attempt to protect children from a mad dog.

Meanwhile, several people stepped forward to apply for the $1,600 reward offered for the conviction of Hoppe. The city put up $500, the state offered $1,000 and Rep. Alfred N. LaBrecque added another $100.

Applicants included Joseph E. Lund and John R. Westberg, who identified Hoppe as the man they saw in front of Pill Brothers Hardware store a few hours before Hollis was killed, and Mrs. Elizabeth Farrar of 31 Mechanic St., who saw the "man with a limp" run away.

PROHIBITION HERE TO STAY

Delecar King, vice president of the Granite Trust Co., told the Young People's Fellowship at Christ Church that "prohibition is here to stay and there is no possibility of there being a change."

"If Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York were elected president he couldn't prevent prohibition," said King, who was also an official of the Anti-Saloon League. "But he could and would make enforcement more difficult."

DUMP THE BOOZE!

Lt. James H. Whelan, head of the Quincy Police liquor squad, said it was about time to get rid of the 750 gallons of liquor, valued at some $3,300, that has been collected at the station following raids during the past six months.

The liquor was stored in a room at headquarters which had come to be called the "chamber of horrors" from the malodorous fumes that arose from the mixture and the occasional explosions of bottles that hurled glass across the room.

Plan Point School Gym Program For Area Youngsters

The Recreation Department has developed a plan for Quincy Point youngsters to use the gym at the Point-Webster School complex two days a week from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.

The plan will be presented to the Quincy Park and Recreation Board at its next meeting in hopes that the program can get underway Tuesday, Nov. 1.

Quincy Point residents have been urging the city to open a gym for Point youngsters but Mayor Francis X. McCauley said the proposed plan has been in the works for some time.

"There was no time for such a program when Point was a junior high school," he said. "Now that we have gone for a year under the middle school plan we find that we have the time."

Recreation Director Barry J. Welch said the plan is the result of a study begun a year ago at the request of McCauley.

"The change in the Recreation Department program is a direct result of the school system's development of the middle school concept of grade structure," he said.

"The Quincy Point program marks the first time that one of the former junior high schools will be used for after school programs.

"After monitoring the gym and meeting with the school's intramural director, Francis Conroy, it became apparent that the Recreation Department could co-exist with school programs in the middle school facility.

The plan also calls for the cost of the recreation staff and materials to come from the Recreation Department operating budget.

Ward 2 City Councillor Theodore P. DeCristofaro has made arrangements for the Planning Department to fund the additional custodial costs.

The regular Saturday gym program conducted for many years at the school will continue unchanged, Welch said.

After school intramural programs will be conducted on the three days the gym is not used by the recreation program and the Recreation Department will have programs during school vacation periods.

McCauley said other middle school gyms across the city may be used in the same manner if funding and scheduling problems can be worked out.

6 To Be Honored

Lt. Gov. Kerry Speaker At Mental Health Center Opening

Gutliano Jr., and the Randolph Jaycees.

This will be the first time a civic organization has been chosen for the award, according to Quincy Atty. William Macdonald, president of the board of directors of the South Shore Mental Health Center.

Three additional awards will be presented to key figures in the development of the new Quincy Mental Health Center.

"It has taken many years and the dedicated efforts of hundreds of people to make the building a reality," Macdonald said. "We want to express our thanks to three people who represent the combined work of so many."

Being honored are former Gov. Edward J. King, who authorized the funds for the construction, and former Quincy Mayor James R. McIntyre.

"Mayor McIntyre worked diligently to secure a proper site for the building," Macdonald said.

The third award recipient will be Dr. David Van-Buskirk, a former executive director of South Shore Mental Health Center.

"It was while Dr. Van-Buskirk was leading the organization that the plans became finalized for the facility," Macdonald said.

Heading the planning committee for the opening day activities are Mrs. Mollie Hirschberg and Governors Councillor Peter L. Eley. Eley serves as vice president of the South Shore Mental Health Center's board and Hirschberg is a member of the area board of directors.

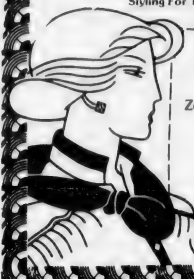

Tours of the building and a buffet luncheon will follow the annual meeting.

Both the dedication ceremonies and the annual meeting are open to the public.

tional opportunity of a very high quality. Because it is the only remaining public college in the Commonwealth not supported by tax dollars this scholarship will be most helpful."

Dean Linda Wilson will select the appropriate recipients and present those students to Dr. Johnson for acceptance and recognition.

For further information about this scholarship, call Dr. Wilson at 786-0709.

The best offer in Quincy's history.

For $25.50 you can buy Quincy: A Pictorial History for a gift, or for your shelf.

Quincy isn't what it used to be.

There was a time when horse-drawn carriages filled our cobble stone streets, and stone sloops sailed away with granite blocks that made Quincy world-famous.

The fascinating story of those and other times in our City's past has never been told so well as in Quincy: A Pictorial History, by Paul Robert Lyons.

Quincy Savings Bank is pleased to offer this limited edition to the community so responsible for the bank's own growth. Quincy: A Pictorial History, priced at $25.50 per copy, including sales tax, is available (as long as the limited edition of 2500 lasts) at each of our nine offices as well as at the Quincy Historical Society (in the Adams Academy building at 8 Adams Street, Quincy), which will receive all of the profits from the book.

In more than 350 photographs and well-written captions the author traces the development of Quincy as it parallels the development of this country:

a lush coastal area for native Americans, a safe harbor for weary travelers, a battlefield in the fight for independence, and a bountiful location for the fulfillment of dreams.

The men and women of Quincy are on parade; shown at work and at play as they contributed their skills and efforts toward the development of what Captain John Smith called "the paradise of all these parts" — the once rural community which has become a city of substance and continuity. Schooners, bridges, mills and quaries introduce Quincy's place of prominence in commerce and industry. Factories and railroads were the forerunners of the shipyards, plants and banks which have changed the artists, writers, educators and benefactors who left the firm impression of their activities.

This beautiful 224-page hardcover book covers all this and more. Each copy is signed and numbered by the author.

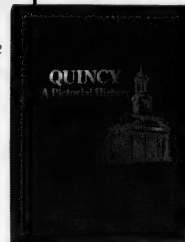

Whether you buy a copy for your shelf or as a gift, you'll find Quincy: A Pictorial History an outstanding, thoroughly enjoyable book.

But remember: this is a limited edition. If you want a copy pick one up soon, at our nearest bank office or at the Quincy Historical Society.

'Pony Express' To Return To Faith Lutheran

"The Pony Express rides again!" soon will be the enthusiastic cry heard at Faith Lutheran Church, Quincy.

The Rev. James Kimmell, pastor, said the parish's past success with the Pony Express stewardship program prompted the return visit.

More than 300 parishioners became saddlebag-carrying "trail bosses" and "route riders" a year ago. "We found last year that this unique approach turned the stewardship campaign into an exciting and pleasurable experience," he said.

The program, he said, is based on the same concept as the Pony Express of more than a century ago—teamwork.

Parish leaders are design-nated as trail bosses, to supervise the relaying of saddlebags to each parish family on Pony Express "run" routes.

Each saddlebag bears the names of 10 families on the run route. A family fills in an "estimate of giving" card, seals it in an envelope and inserts it in the saddlebag, which then is hand-carried to another family on the route.

Christine Ferguson, general manager of the campaign, said many parishioners are hesitant to solicit pledges from their friends and neighbors.

"However, there are no solicitations and no pledges with the Pony Express program," she said.

The Rev. Kimmell explained that each parishioner is asked to estimate the amount he or she will be able to give to the parish during the coming year.

"Each family makes that decision in the privacy of the home, without any over-the-shoulder 'supervision' of someone from the church," he said.

He said the program's success last year was due to the personal commitment and ability of parishioners to work as a team.

"Like the highly dedicated riders of the original Pony Express, each of our riders was dependent on the other to make the relay system work and speed the mail on to its final destination," he said.

"We have found our families will act responsibly in deciding about the support they will give their church during the coming year," he added.

Chapel Services Resume Sunday At Bethany

by Austin Lovelace.

Beginning Sunday, Oct. 16, the 9 a.m. chapel service will again be held each Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Centre. The worship will be 45 minutes long and the sermon will be the same as at the latter service.

Martin Luther Sermon Topic At Squantum Church

The congregation of the First Church of Squantum, 164 Bellevue Rd., Squantum, heard a sermon Sunday morning on "Justification by Faith," one of the doctrines taught by Martin Luther.

In celebration of the 500th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther Nov. 10, there will be sermons on the life and teaching of the great Protestant reformer throughout this month at the First Church of Squantum.

A large picture of Luther had been hung at one side of the sanctuary. The hymns for the service included Luther's own hymn, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," "My Faith Looks Up To Thee," "Faith of Our Fathers" and "Lord, Dismiss Us With Thy Blessing."

For the offertory the Chancel Choir sang, "Lord, for Thy Tender Mercies' Sake" by Richard Farrant.

Greeters for the morning were Ellen Ogilvie and her children, Andrew and Lori. The ushers were Tore Wallin and Leon MacIntyre.

At the first service, church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin preached on the subject, "Are You Creative Person?" Part of the sermon included Marci Hurd showing a large cloth doll that she had made and explaining how and why she had done it. The text for the sermon was taken from the first verse in the Bible, "In the beginning God created..."

Later in the sermon members of the congregation were invited to be creative with others on the problem posed for them by the pastor. Recilla Stamos led the call to worship. Sarah Midram offered the opening prayer. David Scott gave the prayer of dedication, and the music was provided by guitarists Andrew Ogilvie, Steve Williams and Mary Ruth Scott. The ushers were Karen Reister and Mindy Hurd.

Fifty members of the congregation spent the Columbus Day holiday Monday at Grotonwood, a Christian camp near Groton. This is an annual family outing sponsored by the church.

There are two services again this Sunday: a guitar service at 8:30 a.m. and a traditional service at 10:30 a.m.

He has written many articles and two books, the latest, published this year, titled "Ireland: The Challenge of Conflict and Change." In

ENC Enrollment 888, Up 47 Over Last Year

President Stephen W. Nease announces enrollment at Eastern Nazarene College for the fall is 888 including 109 students registered in the graduate division.

Dr. Nease said he was pleased for the increase of 47 over last year's enrollment because the trend in many similar colleges is one of declining enrollment.

He also noted that the demographics of the northeast indicate a sharp drop in the number of college age students.

The Full Time Equivalent

also increased this year to 816.5, one of the highest FTE's in the history of the college, he said. Some of the factors leading to the increases he said are: An improved program of recruitment; a growing graduate division with masters degrees offered in eight fields of study; and an "exciting" scholarship program on the Pittsburgh, PA District.

Eastern Nazarene College Alumnus, George Rice, spearheaded a drive which raised $50,000 to provide $1,000 scholarships to each first year student from the Pittsburgh, PA District.

Kennedy Decries School Decline

Christopher F. Kennedy, a candidate for reelection to the School Committee, says Proposition 2½ has hurt the school system badly but "unfortunately, I have not been hearing any public clamor about the school system's decline."

"Schools are just important today as they ever have been," said Kennedy. "Education is strength and the network of public schools across the country is responsible for the strength and vitality of our nation."

"Any diminution of support for our schools hurts all of us and especially the children to whom we must offer the very best education we are able to afford."

Kennedy said he has seen great changes in the Quincy schools in his eight years on the committee.

"In the early part of my service," he said, "enrollment was high and there was a wide band of public support for the schools. Now, enrollment has declined considerably, many schools have been closed and the public at large seems very quiet."

"The passage of Proposition 2½ has hurt the Quincy school system far more than the rest of the city. Proof of this is on the tax bills issued in May of this year.

"You should notice that the per cent of your tax dollars allotted to the schools is roughly one half of that assigned to the rest of the city. Eight years ago they were approximately equal."

"Unfortunately, I have not been hearing any public clamor about the school system's decline."

"I shall continue to work for increased public support of our schools. I hope that the citizens of Quincy will join me and continue to support me."

IT MAY BE SMALL, BUT IT'S AFFORDABLE

The words "affordable" and housing rarely seem to go together these days. But, "The Life House" developed by a California firm hopes to change that.

The pre-fab wooden house, which unfolds from an 8x8x20 foot shipping crate, offers 642 square feet of living space at a cost of $15,000 delivered. The home can be erected by four people over a long weekend and is designed to fit into a 50x50 foot lot.

The ducts from your furnace can waste up to 15 percent of its output if they are not insulated and, if you have a combination unit, the same for your cooling in the summer. They waste more if they run through an attic. Insulation materials to fit them can save a lot, at 20¢ to $1.35 per sq. ft.

Proper use of caulking can save homeowner much expense

Caulks can save homeowners many dollars spent to fix structural damage and replace lost energy. They are easy to handle and low in cost.

With the energy crisis of the last few years, we've all been made aware of how just a few cracks can cause the loss of heat and air conditioning, and the ease with which a simple caulking can often correct these problems.

Not so widely recognized is that the proper use of caulks can also save you expensive repair bills.

Water seepage from the chimney to the attic below, from the bathroom to the living room ceiling, are just a few things to watch for.

Once a year, inspect all joinings: the bathtub and the wall, the window frame and the wall, the places two different materials meet — such as cement foundation and the brick siding.

There's been a real proliferation of caulks in recent years, giving the consumer a choice in price and special qualities.

In the Elmer's line, for example, there is: a white latex caulk which is easy to use and economical, will last a good five years and is appropriate for a variety of indoor/outdoor uses.

Silicone rubber sealers (white and clear) deliver a permanently waterproof seal. The white sealer is also mildew-resistant, excellent for showers as well as outdoor use. Products bond to porcelain, ceramic, glass, marble, fiberglass, painted surfaces, most metals, non-oily woods, many plastics and rubbers.

A general all-purpose product for indoor/outdoor use, Elmer's Siliconized Acrylic Latex Caulk comes in five colors.

It has very good resistance to moisture, mildew, cold air and dust. It adheres easily to dissimilar building materials such as aluminum, cement, brick, plaster, wood and stucco.

For strictly outdoor use are the Butyl Caulk and Concrete Crack Sealer. Highly weather-resistant, they help prevent freeze/thaw damage.

Elmer's Butyl Caulk provides a weather-resistant seal with a service temperature range of -25° F. to 180° F.

Working with caulks

A few tips — whatever caulk you use . . . wherever you use it.

1. Be sure to clean out the old caulk, sponge area to get rid of all particles, and let dry overnight.

2. Whether you use an Elmer's caulk in a tube or a cartridge, cut the tip at an angle. For a thin bead, cut close to the tip. For a thicker one, cut closer to the tube.

3. Insert tip of tube into the joint and run a smooth, continuous flow down the length, making sure the caulk touches each side of area to be sealed.

4. Follow directions on package on how to smooth caulk, how long to wait before painting or using (such as a shower).

MORE WOMEN ARE DO-IT-YOURSELFERS

More and more do-it-yourself home improvement and remodeling projects are being tackled by women. According to one handy-woman known as Ms. Fix-It, six out of 10 do-it-yourself projects are handled by women.

Although the fear of failure keeps a lot of women from attempting many projects on their own, instruction booklets that simplify procedures, better packaging and specially designed do-it-yourself kits for a variety of projects help boost confidence.

FURNITURE RENTAL MORE POPULAR

Rent a home . . . Rent a car . . . Rent a sofa? Furniture rental businesses, once common only in states like California and Florida, are popping up across the country.

During the past 10 years, more than 100 such businesses were established and an estimated 500,000 homes now contain rented furniture.

IMPROVEMENT GUIDE

Stop small energy losses: It can mean big savings

Though some ways to reduce energy costs in the home are obvious — storm doors and windows, attic and wall insulation are examples — some of the less noticeable opportunities for energy saving are overlooked. And they can represent considerable savings.

A few examples are electric wall outlets and switches, hot water heaters the juncture of the foundation with the wall of the house.

There are now available products specifically designed to seal these areas of energy loss. They include insulation wrapping for hot water heaters and for water pipes, pressure sensitive weather stripping for doors and windows, door bottom seals, air conditioner covers, a foundation perimeter seal, even a weather stripping combination for a sliding patio door that permits the door to be opened and closed.

The broad line of Stanley weatherproofing products includes two items for often-overlooked areas of energy loss, the panel entry and the folding stairway entry to an attic.

Two attic insulation kits provide an easy, low cost means to effectively weatherproof these entries yet permit their continued use. For a free copy of a booklet showing 200 ways to save home energy costs, write for the Home Energy Saver Guide to The Stanley Works, Dept. MT, P.O. Box 1800, New Britain, CT 06050.

FEASIBILITY DOES NOT REALITY MAKE

Energy-saving techniques that are feasible today could reduce oil consumption in city buildings by 3.5-million barrels a day by the year 2000, says the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment.

High interest rates and the lack of long-term financing for such property improvement loans, however, will more than likely prevent this potential energy savings from becoming a reality.

Mayor, Clergy Meet On Sunday Races

Church and state were scheduled to confer yesterday (Wednesday) on Sunday racing in Quincy Square.

Priests and ministers of Quincy churches, particularly those in Quincy Square, are upset because the President's Cup road and bicycle races disrupted church services a few weeks ago.

The Rev. Keith Munson, pastor of the United First Parish Church, said the clergymen asked for the meeting with Mayor Francis X. McCauley to see if something can be done about such things in the future.

"We just want the city to recognize that the situation exists and resolve it," he said. "We offer no suggestions but we trust the good judgement of the city fathers to do what is good for the community."

The Rev. Mr. Munson said possibly 20 of the city's clergymen would attend the meeting.

Two of those scheduled to be present at the meeting were George White, one of the promoters of the President's Cup, and Anthony Siciliano, chief of the auxiliary police, who arranged the races.

Also John Gillis, chairman of the city's license board.

"These are not city sponsored events," said McCauley. "We want to see if these groups have to apply for a city license to use the public ways."

"We want to try to resolve this fairly for both sides. We don't want interference with church services and the event is good for people who go out there for the joy of sports. We like to encourage those things."

In a letter signed by ministers and priests from 33 churches of most Christian denominations, the clergymen said:

"We are genuinely disturbed by a tendency in our community that threatens one of the most cherished parts of our American heritage, that of freedom of worship."

"Because of the scheduling of these city-permitted events, many clergy in the city have had parishioners tell them of blocked roads, diverted traffic, filled parking spaces around churches and other harassments which have delayed or sorely inconvenienced them from attending worship."

"Several churches in the Quincy Square area have had their access areas filled with cars, loudspeakers invading the services and a general feeling of being 'muscle out' of a time historically open to the worship of God."

"Surely there are other times during the week and other days during the year when such events can be scheduled."

Santoro Urges Schools Involve Senior Citizens

Frank Santoro, a candidate for School Committee, has urged that the School Committee involve senior citizens more and more in the school system.

Santoro spoke to more than 200 seniors at Tobin Towers.

"The future of the Quincy public schools depends on including its community as much as possible," he said. "The senior citizen population is growing and it is an important part of the Quincy community."

He noted that more than 20 per cent of Quincy's population is over the age of 50 and that life expectancy has grown from 47 in 1900 to 75 at the present day.

Senior citizens, he said, can provide a great wealth of information to our younger children.

"What better resource is there when children are learning about history?" he asked.

The schools could use seniors, he said, "as guest speakers, classroom aides, hallway security, secretary assistance, phoning absent students, tutoring and oral readings, just to name a few."

In return, he said, young people could provide an abundance of activities for seniors. As an example, he said, there are the teen-aged Martin Brothers who provided entertainment for his rally at Tobin Towers.

"Unless we include our community in our education system it will never be a top priority," he said.

North Quincy 26, Cambridge Rindge 0 Raiders Seek No. 3 At Weymouth North

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy's football team, fresh from a miracle last-second victory over Newton North, had a welcome respite last Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium when it completely outclassed wireless Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 26-0, as it prepared for Saturday's 1:30 p.m. non-league game at Weymouth North. North Quincy is 2-2 (2-1 in the Suburban League).

Ken McPhee's Raiders could be in for some trouble against Weymouth, a former Suburban League rival now in the Old Colony League. The Maroons are 2-0-1 and last week rolled over Hingham, 27-0.

Although North Quincy led by only 7-0 at the half last week, it completely dominated the game from the start.

The Raiders had a net of 254 yards on the ground to just 27 for Cambridge, which is 0-4, hasn't scored a point and has given up 117 points. Five ball carriers accounted for 220 of these yards with Steve Kelly picking up 57 yards, quarterback Steve Hogan 51, Jim McNamara 44, Mike Gill 39 and Bryan Ellis 19. Scott Messina, Joe Bangs and Bill Doherty also contributed valuable yardage.

Hogan and Dave Zuroms completed seven of 14 passes for 85 yards and a touchdown with one interception, while Cambridge's Jim Hoog and Jamie Holway were just 3 for 13 for 12 yards and two interceptions. North piled up 17 first downs to five for Cambridge, two coming on penalties.

"This was a good game for us, especially in the second half, as it gave me a chance to use everyone," McPhee said. "The reserves did their part and they got some valuable experience. But I was unhappy that we led by only seven points at the half and I let the kids have it pretty good at halftime. We should have been ahead by much more. They came back strong in the second half."

Co-Capt. McNamara had a brilliant two-way game and McPhee and defensive coordinator Jack Raymer called him one of the best all-around players in the area.

Hogan and Zuroms both did well at quarterback. Hogan was four for 11 with one interception but did some excellent running, while Zuroms was three-for-three including the first touchdown.

The offensive line was outstanding, clearing big holes for the ball carriers and giving the passers excellent protection.

Assistant coach Mark Mulvany had special praise for John Reney, starting his first game; Jack Hannan, Bob Flynn, improving every week; Nick Gelsomini, Jack Burke and Rich DeLuca.

"The best thing about this group is that they are working together better and that is what they have to do," Mulvany said.

The defense was again excellent as it has been all season and Raymer had good words for all of the players. He was especially high on McNamara.

Bolster recovered a Cambridge fumble midway in the first period on North's 45 and the Raiders went on to score. Hogan hit Dan Baker for 15 yards and he also ran for 17. On fourth down North faked a field goal by Gelsomini and the would-be holder, Zuroms, passed to Bangs for nine yards and the score. Cambridge was completely fooled and Zuroms had his pick of four different receivers. Gelsomini kicked the point.

Cambridge reached North's 45 but was held and Hoog, who did some outstanding punting, kicked to North's one-yard line where it was fumbled but North recovered.

Here the Raiders began an excellent drive, reminiscent of the 95-yard drive the week before with 1:49 left, which led to the winning field goal. Gill went for 11 yards, Hogan for 16, Ellis 12, Hogan 18 and Hogan passed to Kennedy for 13, but the march was stopped when Cambridge's Darrell Lewis intercepted a pass on his 17.

Late in the half Hogan passed to Bolster, who had it in his hands at the goal line only to have the ball knocked out by the Cambridge defender. North had a first down on Cambridge's 16 but three passes went incomplete and on the final play of the half Gelsomini barely missed a 35-yard field goal attempt.

North came out with fire in its eyes and took just 1:41 to score again. In five plays it scored as Kelly went 14 yards to the 19 and on the next play went the remaining 19 yards for the TD. Gelsomini again kicked the point. Kelly had started off by running the kickoff back from his 20 to North's 48.

The Raiders drove from their 42 following another strong punt by Hoog. They clicked off four first downs and Ellis scored from the one.

A few minutes later North was held on the Cambridge 18 and Holway, back to pass, was hit and his wobbly pass was intercepted by Ceurvels on the five and he scored the game's final touchdown.

Ponti Plunge Ties Weymouth 6-6, For Quincy

Sonny Ponti crashed through the Weymouth line five yards for a touchdown after Larry Christensen had recovered a fumble in the last period to lift the Quincy High School football team into a 6-6 tie with Weymouth on Clapp Memorial Field, East Weymouth.

Ed Lynch's ninth place finish provided the margin as the Quincy High School cross country team defeated Stoneham, 28-29. Charlie Murphy of Quincy, star end on the Boston College football team, played a major role in the Eagles' victory over Duke at Fenway Park. Pease of North accidentally put the ball into his own goal in a 2-2 tie with South in a Junior High School Soccer League game at Merrymount Park. Buck Creedon's 30-yard field goal in the fourth period gave the Atlantic Town Team a 3-0 victory over Norwood on the Ward 6 grounds. ## Waltham 12, Quincy 6

Presidents Seek Spark Against Newton N.

Waltham's football team tried to hand Quincy the game last Saturday at Waltham but the Presidents refused to accept it and dropped a 12-6 Suburban League decision, evening their record at 2-2.

Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium at 1:30 p.m. Quincy hosts Newton North, which is having its troubles. Newton was bombed last week by Brockton, 41-14, and earlier was wallowed by Natick, dropped at 10-8 squeaker two weeks ago to North Quincy and has one win, 6-0, over Medford.

"They tried to hand us the game but we refused to accept it," said a disappointed Quincy coach Bill Mayer. "We recovered five fumbles but took advantage of only one. We had the ball on their 12 one time and inside the 20 again but couldn't push it across. Also, we gave them the winning touchdown. We stopped them but were offside and they took advantage by going in for the winning score in the third period."

"Our defense was great, especially in the second half, but we were inconsistent on

Waltham, now 3-1 (only a 14-13 loss to Malden marring its record), drove for its first touchdown on its first possession and scored the winner, with the help of the penalty, on its first possession of the second half.

The Presidents were without outstanding defensive end. Dan Macauley, who has a broken foot. They also lost starting center Rich Reacy with a leg injury in the first half which will keep him sidelined for at least a few games.

Mayer had glowing words for John Cacciatore for his defensive effort. "He was just outstanding," Mayer said. "Also playing well on defense were Tommy Deason, playing his first game; Austin O'Malley, Mark Walsh, Dan Curtin, Chris Shaughnessy, Joe Cullen, Chris Conner, Walter Rollins and Daron Tucker."

Eric Jolley, Greg Keefe and Steve Perfituo, who worked all week at tackle and started there but replaced Ready at center, played well in the offensive line.

Little Mike Notarangelo and Gerry Frazier ran well and Billy Shaughnessy played well at quarterback. Joe Conti played quarterback in the last quarter and did well.

Steve Giusti, Waltham's outstanding runner, scored from the six in the opening quarter.

In the second quarter Jim Donahue recovered one of Waltham's five fumbles on the Hawks' 10. Billy Shaughnessy went over from the one, fumbled in the end zone and Cullen recovered for the tying touchdown.

Waltham's clinching TD in the third period came on a pass from Jeff Fisher to Giusti.

DeCristofaro To Stress Defense As Quincy Basketball Coach

If Quincy's basketball team this season shows a resemblance to rival North Quincy, there will be a reason.

Rich DeCristofaro was appointed by the School Committee last week as the new Presidents' coach, replacing Joe Amoroso, who resigned to take over as an assistant coach at Boston University after 21 years at Quincy's helm.

DeCristofaro was assistant to Eddie Miller at North Quincy the last three years after a year as freshman coach and two years as the girls' junior varsity boss.

Miller made it clear to DeCristofaro that he was more than suited for the Quincy job and urged him to apply for the position.

"I'm a Quincy High graduate and played there three years (he was the Presidents' captain) and I thought it would be fantastic," DeCristofaro said. "I finally leaned toward it because Eddie Miller thought the time had come for me and he asked me to apply for the job. The only thing holding me back was leaving Eddie. He had been sort of a mentor."

The new Quincy coach said his team will exemplify a lot of Miller team's qualities, stressing defense on the court and discipline off the court.

"We'll stress defense and the offense will come," he said. "I think as far as a team goes, structure and discipline are essential. But the defensive game is the most important. I guess you could say I'm a defensive-minded coach."

"I'm looking forward to getting started. They have had a couple of seasons without many wins and I'm hoping to turn that around a little. Some of the kids on the team have come up to me already. There's a lot of interest here."

Following graduation from North Adams State, where he majored in special education, he scouted for Amoroso for a year before going to North. He grew up in Quincy Point but now lives in Weymouth.

"I'm delighted that Rich was appointed and he should do a fine job," Miller said. "He was outstanding as my assistant and I know he will pretty much use our system and our teams could look a lot alike this year. I wish him the very best."

Point Panthers Roll Over Manets

The Quincy Point Panthers improved their Quincy Youth Football League record to 4-0 Sunday with an easy 41-14 victory over winless Houghs Neck Manets at Quincy Veterans Stadium.

The Panthers kicked off to open the game and on the third play the Manets tumbled. John Caporale recovering on the Manet 45 for the Panthers. Five plays later Gary Bright took Dan Overby's pass for the first score. John Pennellatore's kick for the conversion was blocked.

Following Frank Iencello's kickoff to the Manet 10, Joe Taylor intercepted a pass and ran it back to the nine. On one of the most exciting plays of the season, the Panthers set up for a field goal and Pennellatore kicked a 25-yarder, the first field goal in the league's 33-year history.

In the second quarter the Panthers capitalized on another interception by Billy Roche on the Panther 26. On second and five, Pennellatore scored on a 35 yard pass from Overby. Overby attempted the conversion kick and made it but a penalty nullified it and he just missed on his second attempt.

With time running out in the half Overby came up with another pass interception and ran it back 71 yards for the score and the Panthers led 21-0 at the half.

The Manets fumbled on their seven early in the third quarter and Overby pitched out to Bob Roche, who rolled to the right into the end zone.

The Manets scored on a pitch out to Russell Forte, who scored from the 12.

The Manets tried an onside kick and the Panthers took over on the Manet 41. Overby rolled out and passed to Billy Roche, who went into the end zone untouched.

In the fourth quarter the Manets took advantage of a Panther fumble with Paul Fidler recovering on the Panther 23. On the second play Jay Jenette scored and Tim Dean added the two point conversion on a pass.

Another Panther TD, a 57-yard run by Pennellatore, was nullified by a clipping penalty, but Pennellatore scored again with less than two minutes left on a three-yard run. Billy Roche added the two-point conversion.

In junior varsity action the Panthers and Manets tied 16-16 with the Manets coming back in a strong second half.

Sunday the Panthers face the West Quincy Elks at 1 p.m. and the North Quincy Apaches meet the Squantum Sailors at 2:30.

The standings: Panthers, 4-0; Apaches, 3-1; Elks, 2-2; Sailors, 1-3; Manets, 0-4.

Stay Alive!

By John Valante

HOME-MOST DANGEROUS

As the experts learn anew every year, there is hardly any spot on earth more hazardous than your home. Last year, more than 30,000 people were accidentally killed at home and some 5 million suffered disabling injuries. That's like wiping out the entire population of Fort Dodge, Iowa and injuring every person in the whole state of North Carolina - in a home accident.

Even factories full of treacherous machinery and poisonous chemicals consistently come up with safety records superior to that of our homes. Statistically, you are twice as likely to be killed at home as on the job.

Why is the home so hazardous? Primarily because it has two accident-prone age groups that most factories don't have to contend with - children and the elderly. Youngsters under four and persons over 65 account for 70 percent of accidental deaths at home. Identify your hazards and do something about protecting your family.

● Soccer

North Blanks Sharon

The North Quincy boys' soccer team, having another fine season, improved its record to 5-1-2 last week with a 5-0 non-league victory over Sharon, followed by an impressive 2-0 Suburban League win over league-leading and previously unbeaten Waltham. It was the Raiders' first win over Waltham in eight years.

Paul Bregoli's North team played Brookline Tuesday and Bp. Stang yesterday (Wednesday) in a non-league game, will host Brockton Friday at 3:30 at the stadium soccer field and will be at Newton North next Tuesday.

The Raiders turned in one of their finest efforts last Friday to upset Waltham.

The teams were even after the first quarter as Terry Stark and Nunzio Carbone alternated marking Gino DiStefano, Waltham's leading scorer.

Gaining confidence as the game progressed, North's offense began picking up as Mark Scanlan had a good chance as did Stark and Carbone. North was awarded a direct free kick from just outside the penalty area and worked a set play called "the doors" for Carbone, who drilled a low, hard shot past the diving Hawks' goalie.

This aroused the Hawks as their offense got cranked up. But North's defense, spurred by goalie Mark Hubbard and Jaime Paz, was equal to the task. Paz stopped several shots with his body while Hubbard made several fine saves. But the biggest play came with two minutes left in the half. Waltham was awarded an indirect kick from eight yards away. DiStefano shot a hard drive but North's Joe LaPierre got his head on it to save a sure goal.

Waltham dominated play in the offensive zone but again North's defense was superb. Hubbard made two more spectacular saves, one on a direct kick from 10 yards out. Eric Roukey and Pat Marcham also did fine jobs on defense. Carbone also saved a goal, taking a Waltham shot in the chest and volleying it out of danger.

The fourth quarter saw the home Hawks continue to put intense pressure on the Raiders but again Hubbard, Paz, John Joseph and Steve Golden turned back all thrusts.

North had only three shots in the second half but made the last one count as Carbone crossed a ball to Chris Archer, who hammered the ball by goalie Joe Cacciatore to give North the cushion it needed.

Earlier in the week North downed Sharon for the second time.

After a scoreless first quarter in which Stark hit the crossbar, North took a 1-0 lead early in the second quarter as Stark scored an unassisted goal. Stark, playing in his first game since receiving 18 stitches over his eye, was the only player in the first half who played with enthusiasm for the Raiders.

North, still playing sluggishly in the third quarter, got a break when Carbone took a corner kick, which hooked around the rear post to give the Raiders a 2-0 lead.

North's offense got into gear in the final quarter when Scanlan fed Andy Curtis in front for the third goal. North's fourth goal came from David Brown, who headed Carbone's corner kick into the top right corner. Brown scored his second goal with four minutes left, taking an excellent pass from Mike Walsh and banging it into the bottom left corner from 18 yards out to complete the scoring.

"Stark kept us in the game with his inspired play," Bregoli said. "Walsh also played very well, getting us going in the fourth quarter. Also playing well were LaPierre, Craig Orrock and Scanlan."

"Although we were sluggish, the kids pulled themselves together in the last quarter to pull it out. Kids like Walsh, Jim Cahill, Brian Bresnahan and Dave Blaton all filled in nicely so I could rest some players for the Waltham game."

"Against Waltham the kids were gutsy and deserved to win. I told them at halftime that, although we don't have one super star, as a team they are excellent and always manage to get the job done. Stark was outstanding and has been a real leader. Hubbard has been tremendous with three successive shutouts and LaPierre made some great contributions in these two games."

'Gracious Lady' On Cable Talk

Hingham's Gracious Lady commuter boat will be featured on Quincy Community Television Ch. 3 tonight (Thursday) at 9 p.m. and Sunday at 9:30 p.m.

The entire Cable Talk half hour program entitled the "Gracious Lady-An Alternative to Commuting" will be devoted to the operation of the boat which carries passengers on a daily schedule between Hingham and Boston.

John Noonan, host for Cable Talk, interviews local and state officials concerning the local boat as an alternative method for commuting to and from Boston particularly on week days.

Interviews are also concerned with Charles English, owner of the Gracious Lady, the ship's captains and crew concerning the ship's operation and plans for the future. Passengers are also interviewed at the Hingham dock and the docking berth in downtown Boston.

English explains the operation of the Gracious Lady as an impossible dream come true and expresses high hopes for the future operation. He said negotiations are underway for a government loan to purchase two additional Gracious Lady type ships to augment the daily schedules and increase the number of passengers using the commuter boats each weekday.

The boat has become increasingly popular since its initial runs last spring. On some runs passengers have been left standing on the docks because of safety and Coast Guard regulations which require that every passenger be seated throughout each run. The ship's cabin seats 137 passengers comfortably. Attendants provide snacks and beverages during the 28 minutes it takes to make a run.

During the film narration program host Noonan points out the difficulties commuters will face next March when reconstruction of the Southeast Expressway from Boston to East Milton commences. The Gracious Lady commuter boat offers Hingham and South Shore residents an alternative to using the MBTA rapid transit or buses or driving the already overcrowded Expressway.

Water Supply Group To Hold Hearing Here

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey announces the Special Legislative Commission on Water Supply will hold a public hearing on a proposed Water Management Act Wednesday, Oct. 19, at 10 a.m. in City Hall.

The bill proposes new statewide management practices to identify all water use in the Commonwealth.

"The purpose of the identification process is to assess total water use by large volume users in order that all future water resource development will be coordinated with current use," said Morrissey.

Morrissey is a member of the special commission, which was established in 1977 and over the years has published four reports to the legislature and three special reports.

"For too long now we have assumed that all we had to do was turn on the tap," said Sen. Carol C. Amick of Bedford, senate chairman of the commission.

"What planning and management that has been done has occurred on an informal ad hoc basis without a focus on the full water picture."

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday morning's meeting at City Hall:

• Granted a one day alcoholic license to the committee to Elect Frank Santoro for School Committee for Saturday, Oct. 29, 8 p.m. to midnight at North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall.

• Continued for one week a request from Jacqueline's Bakery, Inc., 764 Hancock St., for a common victualer-take out only license, formerly held by Mattola's II, Pastry Shop.

The board told applicants Eugene Dalgewicz and John Cristina to discuss the application with Ward Councillor Stephen McGrath and the Health Department.

Richard J. Buccheri for the following licenses to be transferred to the Richard J. Buccheri Family Trust:

License as held by the American Ice Company, 240 Willard St., for 20,000 gallons of #1 fuel oil, and 20,000 gallons of #2 fuel oil in tanks.

License as held by Harry W. Harding, 232 Willard St., for 2,000 gallons of gasoline.

• Continued for two weeks a request for transfer of the license for 62 South St. from Richard J. Buccheri to the new owners of Aquarius Condo Trust #1, #2 and #3 for 520 gallons of gasoline in tanks of cars.

• Postponed to Oct. 18 a complaint from Andrew T. Walsh about parking for Kelly's Pub & Grub, 21-27 Billings Rd.

Free Make-Up Flu Clinic Oct. 20

Health Commissioner Dr. M. Grace Hussey announces there will be a free make-up flu clinic at the J.F.K. Health Center Thursday, Oct. 20, 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Jewelry Stolen

Elizabeth McNulty of Brae Rd., Quincy Center, reported to police Monday that a collection of Hummel figures, some gold jewelry and a silver brooch with diamonds were stolen from her home.

She said she returned from a weekend away to find the porch door and an upstairs bedroom window open.

p.m. for Quincy residents only.

Annual immunization against influenza is recommended for persons in the older age group, particularly those over 65 years of age, said Dr. Hussey.

All the signs point to an increasing incidence of influenza this coming winter, and Dr. Hussey recommends those individuals at greatest risk build up their immunity before the flu season.

The time of the clinic has been arranged to accommodate city workers and other people in the working force.

Cites Health Reasons

Collins Withdraws From Ward 6 Race

School Committee Vice Chairwoman Mary Collins is withdrawing as a candidate for the Ward 6 City Council seat because of health reasons.

"I am reluctantly withdrawing as a candidate for the Ward 6 City Council seat," she said in a prepared statement.

"My doctor has ordered me to do so because of blood pressure problems which have persisted.

"I was hospitalized two weeks ago for tests and advised by my doctor then to rest and not to campaign. He has since ordered me to withdraw completely.

"I appreciate the support given to me during this campaign."

Mrs. Collins is now in her second term on the School Committee with two years to go.

Asked if she plans to continue as a member of the School Committee, she replied:

"At the present time I do. As for the future, I will have to wait and see."

Mrs. Collins' withdrawal from the Ward 6 race leaves incumbent Joanne Condon assured of re-election.

Fabrizio Loses Appeal Over Assessor Ouster

The city of Quincy has won what may be the final round in its first court fight with Hugo Fabrizio, who sought $1,250,000 in damages following his ouster as city assessor.

The Federal Court of Appeals has upheld a ruling by Federal Judge Walther Skinner awarding the city and former Mayor Arthur H. Tobin a summary judgment in the case.

City Solicitor Dean Nicastro said the only avenue left open to Fabrizio is an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"I'm just relieved that it's over," said Tobin, who was mayor when Fabrizio was dismissed as assessor in 1978. "For the fourth time, a court has found for me. I hope that's the end of it."

Fabrizio had sought $250,000 in compensatory damages and $1 million in punitive damages against the city and Tobin as mayor for what he contended was his wrongful dismissal.

is being done, he said.

"There is nothing structurally wrong with the garage," Devin said. The MBTA has blamed the damage to the structure on acid rain and salt water dripping from cars in the winter.

rarely full.

Robert C. Devin, Spokesman for the T said the MBTA is planning to hire an outside contractor for a complete overhaul of the garage next year.

The garage will not be shut down while that work

Flatley Donates Land To City

The City Council Monday night accepted from developer Thomas Flatley the gift of a 4.5 acre parcel of land in West Quincy connecting city-owned land with the historic Granite Railway.

The land is not suitable for development.

"By controlling this land," said Councillor James A. Sheets, "we can insure that once and for all this area is unbuildable and unable to aggravate the serious flooding problem."

After Labor Peace

GD Moves On Key Ship Contracts

By TOM HENSHAW

With labor peace virtually assured for the next three years, the attention of the General Dynamics Quincy shipyard is now turned to obtaining Navy contracts that will guarantee full employment at the shipyard until 1990.

A congressional delegation of Cong. Brian J. Donnelly, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and Sens. Edward M. Kennedy and Paul Tsongas are scheduled to work out lobbying strategy for the contracts.

"Our bid is good," said Donnelly, "and the settlement of the new union contract is sure to enhance our chances."

The Navy contracts involve construction of three to five LSD's (landing ships dock), which Vice President and General Manager Gary S. Grimes calls "the key to future employment security at Quincy."

Donnelly said he expects the contracts for the first three ships will be awarded within 60 days, certainly before Christmas.

The one cloud on the horizon is that the Lockheed Shipbuilding Co. of Seattle is currently building three ships of the LSD class.

But the last four such ships delivered to the Navy were built in Quincy, the last in 1972.

The contract settlement with Local 5 of the Shipbuilding Workers, reached at 2 a.m. Monday, two hours after the old three-year contract expired, is sure to strengthen General Dynamics' chances for the LSD contracts.

Some 2,300 members of Local 5 are expected to ratify the new three-year pact at a mass meeting Sunday in Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The contract calls for a $246 an hour raise over three years for skilled workers, bringing their hourly wage to $11.53. Also, for the first time, all workers will take part in a profit sharing plan.

On the other hand, the union will relax some of its work rules, notably permitting ship fitters to do the work of the burners and grinders.

Local 5 President Jonathan Brandow called it "the best possible settlement under the circumstances." The union's executive board voted to recommend that the rank and file accept the contract.

Keels were laid recently at the yard for the first two of five MPS (maritime prepositioning ships) cargo vessels will continue vessels for the Navy under a $770 million contract. Work on those ships will continue through 1986.

To fill the contract, the yard has been on a hiring spree for the past few months. The work force that was down to some 1,800 men last year is expected to reach 5,000 in 1984.

Council Holds $920,000 School Pay Raise Order

Mayor Francis X. McCauley sent a $920,000 appropriation order to the City Council Monday to fund pay raises for school personnel for fiscal 1984.

And he says he plans to ask for another $260,000 to pay raises to policemen and public works employees next month.

But, unless something drastic happens financially, that may be the end of it for some time.

"We can afford the raises in 1984," said McCauley, "but we are not negotiating any raises beyond June 30, 1984. We are not making any commitments beyond that date."

If a current bonding plan passes the City Council, the city will start paying $2.8 million a year to General Dynamics in settlement of a property tax overpayment.

The City Council sent the $920,000 appropriation order to the Finance Committee, in spite of assertions by Councillors Leo J. Kelly and Joanne Condon that they were prepared to vote for it on the spot.

"Let it be known," said Condon, "that it is not the City Council that is holding up these raises."

Finance Committee Chairman Stephen J. McGrath explained that the mayor had asked him to put it into committee.

"This is a large amount of money," said McGrath, "I'd be uncomfortable voting it without knowing more about it."

"If the Council wanted to vote on it right away, I had no problem with it," said

McCauley.

"I explained to the teachers union that the Council does not usually vote right away on such appropriations. I didn't want them to get up tight about it. The money is available and I'm committed to it."

The order breaks down like this: $774,400 for professionals, including teachers; $93,000 for custodial and maintenance personnel; $38,000 for clerical workers and aides; $14,600 for drivers and security.

The raises are retroactive to July 1 for teachers and Sept. 1 for others.

Golden Warns:

No GD Loan Means 'Fiscal Disaster' For City

By TOM HENSHAW
Former City Solicitor William Golden says Quincy would be facing "fiscal disaster" if the City Council refuses to borrow $28 million to repay General Dynamics for seven years of overtaxing on the shipyard.

Golden, who is now in private practice but has been retained as special counsel for the city in the General Dynamics and MDC cases, appeared on the Quincy Cablesystems program "Newsmakers".

"I'm not wedded to this agreement per se," he said, "but I think it is the best agreement and extremely sound and the risks of it not going forward are profound for this city."

The city, he said, has already paid $200,000 to the law firm that handled the court case and the appeal, plus the cost of experts and interest, and to continue it would cost even more.

"If the case is not settled," said Golden, "the very first thing the City Council would have to do is appropriate substantial funds for legal fees."

"It is very possible it would take an equal amount of money to try the three years that are now before the Appellate Tax Board and also to defend against collection of the four years lost in court."

"Those are just the beginning costs."

Golden said he feels the Council made a mistake in not approving a referendum on the Nov. 8 ballot permitting the people to vote on exempting the $28 million from Prop 2½ restrictions.

"No one suggested that 2½ be thrown out the window," he said.

"What was asked of the Council was to exercise a portion of 2½ that there are certain critical fiscal situations in which the people should be given the final decision as to whether or not an override should be made.

"Why the people? Because it is the people who are going to have to live with restrictions on expenditures in other areas or are going to have to pay the extra taxes."

"I feel strongly that, ultimately, when the time is right in the minds of the City Council, I wouldn't be surprised if there isn't a referendum question on this issue on the ballot."

Golden was critical of those who still seek to place blame for the General Dynamics debacle.

"I can't question the decisions that were made at the time," he said. "There were conditions that existed at the time that seem to justify the actions of the individuals involved."

"It was almost impossible to foresee that a method of evaluation such as Judge Hiller Zobel used would be applied to this case. The Zobel method is one that knows no precedent in the history of this state."

"The focus of the city of Quincy should be on solving the problem and not dissecting it to see who caused this part of it and who caused that part of it or if anybody was at fault at all."

"I think it's time we put those disagreements and areas of blaming others aside and get on with the tough task of solving this problem."

On other matters, Golden said:

• The city's suit against the MDC to halt pollution of Quincy Bay has turned out even better than he thought it would.

"We started with three objectives," he said, "to obtain public recognition of the severity of the problem, to bring all parties together on a comprehensive plan for cleanup, and to bring that plan under the supervision of the court."

"Essentially we have gotten all three things."

• He recently moved to Weymouth from Squantum and would consider running for the state senate seat that would become vacant if Sen. Allan McKinnon were named to a post in the Dukakis administration.

"I'd have to feel there was something I could contribute in that particular office," he said.

"It's great to go out and fight the battles for the world but if you have to sacrifice the needs of your friends and family that's a very tough decision to make."

Golden was interviewed on the program by John Noonan of The Quincy Sun, Win Bettinson of WJDA and Ray McEachern of the Patriot Ledger.

MBTA Promises Better Red Line Service In 1986

The operations director of the MBTA painted a rather hairy picture of the Red Line for the City Council Monday night.

But he promised that things would be all straightened out by Jan. 1, 1986.

Among other things, William G. Stead told the Council:

The T now runs four-car trains at four minute intervals on the Red Line. It would be better to run six-car trains at three-minute intervals. But right now that's a physical impossibility.

"The Red Line is running at absolute capacity at rush hour right now," he said. "We can't add a single seat. Every time there is a breakdown, we lose an hour on the commuter rush hour."

The signal system between Andrew and Harvard stations dates back to 1910.

"It's a very conservative system," he said. "It's so safe that you can't operate the railroad."

"The safety block is set so that no car can be operated closer than 4.5 minutes to another car. The MBTA schedule calls for cars every three minutes. So they start backing up at 1.5 minutes."

"During the September opening, trains were backed up all the way from Harvard to Braintree after the third hour. We have had to redesign the whole signal system."

Another problem, said Stead, is lack of experience among personnel on the Red Line.

Six of the 20 inspectors assigned to the line and 45 per cent of the starters, motormen and guards have less than two years experience.

"We have flooded the Red Line with management people to bring the experience curve up," he said. "Two-thirds of all management personnel work on the Red Line."

Stead said that six-car trains cannot be used on the Red Line between Andrew and Harvard Stations because some platforms are not long enough to handle them nor can the third rail deliver enough power to operate six cars.

In spite of these shortcomings, he said, "we have had some absolutely perfect rush hours."

That very day (Monday), he said, "we averaged 110 per cent traffic during the morning rush hour and 105 per cent during the evening rush hour. There were no breakdowns."

Out of 27 scheduled trips from Braintree to Harvard, he said, 28 made it, and out of 25 scheduled trips from Harvard to Braintree, 29 made it. Things went so well extra trips could be made.

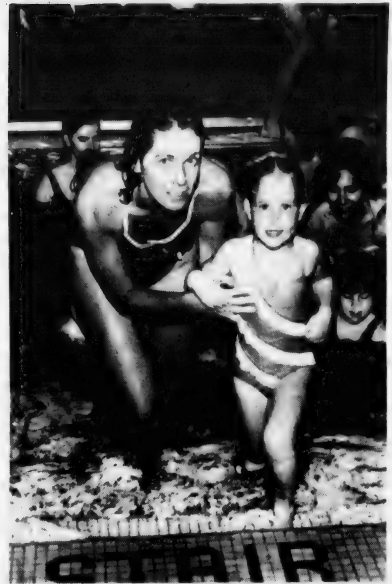

But, Stead added, "I can also show you some 70 per cent days. Out of the last 10 rush hours, we have had eight good ones and two very bad ones."

Things will be better, however, he said, once the signal system is overhauled, platforms are lengthened at key stations, new and more powerful third rails are in place and new cars have been added.

"The first day of 1986 is the target," he said, "for all these things to come together."

Stead was invited to appear before the Council by Councillor Joanne Condon, who was curious why the trains from Braintree always arrived at North Quincy station filled to capacity.

After listening to Stead, she said "I am confident service will get better. The fact that they are aware of the problems is important."

Board Considers Wine, Malt License For Sub Chef

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

A local sub and pizza restaurant owner would like to offer wine and beer to his customers, but Quincy's building inspector feels that would "open the door to every sandwich shop in the city" requesting the same license.

The License Board voted Tuesday to take under advisement for two weeks a request from Stephan K. Richmond, Manager of Sub Chef, 195 Newport Ave., for a common victualer-wine and malt license.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald warned fellow board members that if they granted the license, they would be "opening some doors they would regret."

"You can't make fish of some and fowl of the other," said MacDonald.

Richmond, who formerly managed a similar Wolaston restaurant which burned down, told the board, "My place is a family business. I'm not interested in a bar room situation."

"We have a lot of demand for beer and pizza," Richmond said he would agree to a stipulation that he only serve beer and wine with food.

Police Capt. Paul Nestor told the board the restaurant has an under age 20 clientele during the day. A resident of the area opposed the license because of youths who congregate in the area and drink.

"I don't let anyone hang around," said Richmond.

"I don't have any problems and I don't think I should be penalized because other establishments aren't run properly."

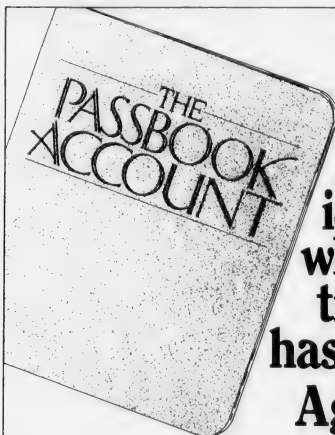

Police Chief Francis Finn said he will send a juvenile officer to investigate the situation.

Readers Forum Congratulations And A Question

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

We wish to congratulate you and wish The Quincy Sun a very Happy Birthday. We have read and enjoyed every issue since its inception in '68 and we feel sure there are many more birthdays to come in the future.

Another reason for this letter is the item in the latest edition, concerning the depression years. I am of the opinion that a mistake was made in the statement at the end of the article by Mr. A. R. Frantello in regards to his pay for working at the East Weymouth High School.

By using dates given, such as his age at the Saco-Vanzetti episode, I have come to the conclusion that Al Frantello was approximately 22 years old and the year was 1930 when he returned from Florida and got the job at the afore mentioned school.

I was born in Philadelphia in 1916 and became a teenager in 1929 when the N.Y. stock market took a nose dive. I grew up there during the depression years and they are years I would just as soon forget. Employment was so scarce in Philly that the school system adopted a plan where-by a boy, when he reached the age of 14 and could find a job, could get "working papers" which would allow him to attend school 1 day a week and work the other 5 in order to help the family survive.

I was fortunate enough to find a job with a commercial printing plant. I was paid 20¢ an hour for 5-10 hour days ($5 per week). My father worked as a trolley car cleaner, at night, from 7 p.m. until 7 a.m., 7 days a week for $17 a week and one night off a month. As you can see things were very bad at the beginning of the depression but got a little better when F.D.R. became the President and the W.P.A. got started. So, Mr. Bosworth, unless Weymouth was a lot better off being a small town, I don't understand how Al Frantello could earn $200 a week or $10,400 a year during the depression years. I doubt that the superintendent of schools even got that much.

Burke's Record Stands Well

Jim Burke was always good for a quote and a smile.

Whenever reports began circulating that he was thinking of retiring as Congressman he used to like to say:

"I can't get off the plane without 25 potential candidates gathering around to feel my pulse."

And when he finally decided in 1978 to retire after 20 years of faithful service to Quincy and the 11th District in Washington he used:

"I'm like that song Jimmy Durante used to sing: 'Ever have the feeling that you wanted to go and yet you had the feeling that you wanted to stay?'"

His long battle against diabetes and the loss of his right foot to that disease hastened his retirement in January, 1979.

But he went out with a smile. One reason was that the man he followed to succeed him Brian Donnelly was the one who did.

Burke had an impish smile, a twinkle in his eyes, and an almost always present long cigar that people often combined as his trademark.

But his true trademark was his way with people. He loved them and they loved him.

He was the people's Congressman.

He called himself the "bread and butter" issues candidate: Jobs, shipyard contracts, Social Security benefits, etc.

Years ago not too long after being elected Congressman, he actually marched with striking pickets in front of the Quincy Shipyard main gate carrying a union sign.

Shipyard workers hardly had a monopoly on fondness for him.

In 1958 John F. Kennedy was running for re-election to the Senate and eyeing a Presidential bid two years later.

That same year, Jim Burke was running for the Congressional seat vacated by Richard Wiggleworth.

There was a campaign rally-reception for Kennedy at the Quincy Armory and the place was packed with supporters, voters and all kinds of politicians.

Richard Koch Sr., Kennedy coordinator in Quincy was the emcee that night. He introduced only two candidates: Kennedy and Burke. No one else.

Koch didn't overlook the others. But just before the event started, Larry O'Brien who later became Postmaster General under Kennedy and is now commissioner of the National Basketball Association drew Koch aside and said: "Only introduce two people tonight, Dick, Jack Kennedy and Jim Burke."

For Jim Burke, his 20 years as Congressman was a 20-year love affair.

He enjoyed those two decades and worked hard at being a Congressman.

He was a good Congressman. He was a follow-through guy. If he said he would do something, he did it. He always had time for his constituents whether it was down in Washington or at his district office here at the Quincy Post Office.

The post office last year was renamed and dedicated The James A. Burke Post Office by an Act of Congress. "I've always considered myself a bread and butter Democrat," he said. "One liberal organization once said I was the most conservative member of the New England Congressional delegation."

"Then a conservative organization called me the most liberal one."

"I was very happy. I sent them both letters of thanks."

Burke said he liked to kid people that he kept a diary.

"But anyone who knows me knows I don't believe in diaries," he said. I don't believe in memoirs. I believe in letting the record stand the way it is."

For Jim Burke, who died last Thursday at 73, it stands very well.

FOILAGE IN GRAFTON, N.H., Sunday provided more excitement than workers in the City Clerk's office expected.

Eleven of them, including City Clerk John Gillis and Assistant Clerk Thomas Burke and their wives, went to Josie Carnali's cottage in Grafton in the 30-foot motor home of Bob Leblanc, the former registrar of voters.

On the way back, the motor home broke down in Concord, luckily across the street from a gasoline station. Even more luckily, the attendant at the gas station, it turned out, used to work for an ambulance service.

He borrowed a handicapped van, the kind that is used to transport wheel-chair persons, and drove the stranded 11 home to Quincy.

"He worked all day and he took the time to drive us all the way home," said Susan Page, one of those who made the trip. "Who says there aren't any good Samaritans left in the world?"

The day that started at 7 a.m., ended at 11:30 p.m.

IT'S BEEN an exciting summer for John J. Barron of the Planning Board.

He has a new business and a new son.

The new business, Barron Realty and Investments, 587 Hancock St., opened in July.

The new son, Christopher John Barron, nine pounds, two ounces, was born to Mrs. Linda Barron Sept. 6 at Quincy City Hospital.

Barron is former chief of staff to Cong. Brian J. Donnelly and a broker at the Wollaston office of Jack Conway, Realtor.

Harold Reports:

Red Nations Make You Appreciate Free Press

Sen. Paul D. Harold was the first Massachusetts legislator since World War II to be selected to represent the United States government in Eastern Europe through the U.S. information agency.

By PAUL D. HAROLD

Freedom of the press and the relationship between government and the media is something you take for granted, until you visit a Communist country.

A had the opportunity recently to lecture in Yugoslavia on behalf of the U.S. Information Agency. During that time I met with numerous government leaders and journalists and was able to make some comparisons between our two systems.

In Belgrade I met with the editors of "Politika", one of the country's largest dailies. Although I couldn't read the Cyrillic alphabet I could distinguish between news and advertising and it was apparent that the advertising couldn't support publication costs.

The obvious question was who pays the subsidy. The obvious answer - the government.

Government subsidy leads to some government control and restraint. While newspapers are able to comment freely on about 80 per cent of public issues, criticism in some areas is not allowed. These include questioning the basic structure of the government and economic system and the Communist party.

What was most surprising, however, was that government control also resulted in an almost complete lack of what we know as "local news."

When I showed an editor

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS is exemplified by a recent edition of "The Quincy Sun" as State Senator Paul D. Harold, exchanges hometown newspapers with Bora Erdeljan, editor of "Politika", the major newspaper in Belgrade, Yugoslavia. Senator Harold discussed American freedoms with the editor before lecturing at the Belgrade Political Science Institute as part of his Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Program tour sponsored by the United States Information Agency.

a copy of The Quincy Sun, he was tremendously impressed with the local coverage, but said that government priorities in his country wouldn't allow space to be used for what was not considered important.

Even death notices are not reported and families either put notices in as an advertisement, or have posters printed and tacked on trees in the downtown streets.

Yugoslavia prides itself on the independent course it has charted between the NATO countries and the Soviet block.

It is the leader of the so-called non-alignment movement, and its news coverage of the Korean Airline downing was an example of its special status among the East European countries.

I arrived in Czechoslovakia a few days after the incident, and the press there had a complete blackout of the story. Later, in Hungary I read the distorted reports the journalists had put together by doctoring wire service stories. Finally, when I reached Yugoslavia I was able to read the complete story with editorials highly critical of the Soviets.

Yugoslav journalists will admit to the shortcomings of their system with government involvement in the news, but are quick to point out how far they have advanced in a relatively short time.

Since the death of Tito, the government has been hesitant to make too many concessions to the press for fear that an unrestrained press could encourage rivalries between the eight republics that make up the country.

But every indication is that the press in Yugoslavia is going through a slow evolution and this change could lead to an ultimate change in both economics and politics in the most western of the eastern European countries.

Gear Strikers Ruled Eligible For Vets Benefits

Atty. Gen. Edward J. McCormack Jr. ruled that striking workers at the Boston Gear Works in North Quincy are eligible to receive veterans benefits from the city regardless of how much they have in the company's retirement and savings account.

Edward Genereaux, Quincy's director of veterans' services, said he considered McCormack's action a "political ruling," adding that he did not intend to authorize such payments until he discussed the matter with the mayor and the City Council.

"I do not think it is right for a city to subsidize a strike," said Genereaux.

Some of the strikers had been receiving benefits for several weeks and Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa called a meeting of labor and management, saying he felt he is justified in intervening because the strike is costing the city about $3,000 a week.

PAVILION COMING?

President Sidney Grossman of the Grossman Co. disclosed that he and his brothers, Reuben and Joseph, are negotiating to purchase the American pavilion at the recently ended Brussels Worlds Fair in Belgium and bring it to Quincy for use as an exhibition building.

"The impending destruction of this pavilion is a potential tragedy," said Grossman. "This structure set the stage for the tremendously successful presentation of the American way of life to the whole world. If any means of preserving it can be found it should be done."

STRIKE AVERTED

A threatened strike of 1,200 Eastern Mass Street Railway Co. bus drivers and mechanics was postponed until Nov. 17 at the behest of Gov. Foster Furcolo. The walkout would have affected 300,000 daily riders and thousands of school children.

Under the old contract, which expired Sept. 30, the drivers were paid $2 an hour and the mechanics $2.16 an hour. They were seeking a 25-cent hourly wage hike, increased company contributions to the health and welfare fund, and a boost in paid holidays from five to eight.

Summer Concerts On Plaza To Continue In 1984

The series of summer evening concerts on Constitution Plaza in front of City Hall were so successful in 1983 that the South Shore Cultural Commission is planning to do it again in 1984.

Joseph J. LaRaia, chairman of the commission said that the group has applied for a matching grant from the Quincy Arts Council, which recently obtained $20,000 from the state for distribution.

LaRaia told the City Council Monday night the commission raised $8,300 in contributions, including $3,000 appropriated by the Council, for the 10 concerts in 1983.

Park and Building Departments and Civil Defense provided some in kind services and a little over $100 was raised by subscription at the last concert.

LaRaia said close to $6,000 was paid to the performers at the 10 concerts and, at the eighth week concert, transportation was provided for senior citizens.

The commission has submitted a financial report to the mayor, said LaRaia.

Toland Sees Long-Range Planning Neglected

City Councillor Patricia Toland says she is concerned that the city is neglecting long range planning in favor of solutions to more immediate problems.

"To put aside the problem of solid waste disposal could be the city's most expensive error because we have five years before the dump is to be closed," she said.

"Five years may not be enough time to develop a disposal system that is safe for the environment at a price we can afford.

She recommended that Mayor Francis X. McCauley form a task force to study the problem with representatives of surrounding communities.

There is general agreement that waste disposal is a problem best dealt with on a regional basis," she said.

Toland suggested that members of the task force be recruited from private industry and from groups like the League of Women Voters, who have made extensive studies of the problem.

"We need the best information and technical assistance we can get to make a decision that best serves the community and we need to begin developing that expertise now," she said.

Sullivan To Seek ALE Reinstatement

John J. Sullivan has cited his record of "maintaining a positive approach to all areas involving the educational process" as a reason for reelecting him to the School Committee.

Uppermost on my present agenda," he said. "Is to find a remedy for reduction in class size to a figure which would be mutually beneficial to the teacher and the student."

"I would like to reestablish the ALE (alternate learning environment) program which was discontinued as a result of budget cutting brought about by Proposition 2½.

"I feel great empathy for students who are motivated to remain in high school by means of an alternative learning environment and I regret the loss of this superior motivational force."

Sullivan is a former commissioner in the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service and is immediate past director of the State Office of Employee Relations.

He has been honored by the Quincy Junior Chamber of Commerce for his contributions to civic and charitable causes.

He serves as Vice President of the directors of the Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore and past President of the South Shore Council on Alcoholism, and a director of the Quincy Visiting Nurses Association.

Stay Alive!

By John Valante

STOP AND DIE!

Few actions are more deadly than stopping your car on a highspeed road. On some super-highways, ten percent of the fatal accidents have involved cars that were standing still. At night, it's not uncommon for a half-asleep driver to see parked tail lights and follow them right onto the shoulder with a crashing conclusion.

If you are forced to stop in an emergency, take these precautions: Get as far off the road as possible. If you want help, tie a white cloth on the left front door handle or lift the hood as signals to troopers and emergency trucks. Don't stand in the road trying to hail motorists; they may run you down.

A good emergency measure is to carry flares as trucks do, so that at night you can place one near the stalled car and another at least 300 feet behind. If you can't get the car completely off the road, don't become a sitting duck. Get passengers out and have them walk a safe distance from the car - just in case.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Many people these days strive to leave an estate made up of land, stocks and bonds, and money in the bank. This cannot be faulted for it is not fundamentally wrong of course . . . But there is a different kind of estate that never needs, or even can be probated . . .

The very best estate is a honorable name, a good reputation, a record of righteous, useful living . . . A legacy of profound respect for facts, a deep reverence for character, a thirst for wisdom, a dedication for work - is far more important and more meaningful than money itself. These things can NEVER be detrimental, while money and assets at times CAN be. A legacy of decency is not an impossible legacy . . . It is an estate any parent can leave to his or her children. In the funeral home field we have witnessed it time and time again . . . And if you look back, we are sure you can say the same thing with equal or perhaps even more emphasis . . .

Cong. James A. Burke, 73, 'Bread And Butter Democrat'

BY TOM HENSHAW

"I always considered myself a bread and butter Democrat," said former Cong. James A. Burke on his last visit to The Quincy Sun.

"I get a kick out of these labels they give people. He's a conservative. He's a liberal."

"One of those liberal organizations said that I was the most conservative member of the New England congressional delegation. Then there was a conservative organization said I was the most liberal one of the delegation."

"I was very happy. I sent them both letters of thanks."

No one who knew Jim Burke ever tried to pin a label like liberal or conservative on him. His issues were not those of foreign policy or economic theory. They were Social Security and the Fore River shipyard, issues that most closely affected his people.

"The work I'm proudest of doing in Washington is the work I did on Social Security," he said. "I was able to keep it financially strong." He was the chairman of the Social Security subcommittee.

"One of the main things in this district is the shipyard. It puts food on the tables of many people in the district. That's why the yard has to stay open. I'm going to do all I can to see that it does."

The yard was not only open but on the threshold of flourishing last week when Jim Burke died at the age of 73 in New England Deaconess Hospital, Boston, nearly five years after he retired from Congress, where he worked for the "bread and butter" issues for two decades.

Mr. Burke was in a reminiscent mood the day he visited The Sun for the last time.

"I went down to visit Congress many years before I was elected," he said. "I was a state legislator at the time. I went into my congressman's office and told them who I was and I'd like to see the congressman. They said he was too busy."

"Well, I didn't even write my name down. I just turned around and walked out. I thought it was a very cold way of greeting people."

"When I went down there I installed a system. My receptionist had a guest book. When the people came down I had them sign the guest book, name and address. Then I'd make it a point to see them sometime during the day."

He candidly admitted that he was wrong at first on the war in Vietnam but he was man enough to change his mind.

"My votes on the Vietnam War I believed were correct on the information I had," he said. "When your nation has a problem and a decision is made, you don't like to second guess those in top places."

"I changed my opinion of the Vietnam War around 1966. In fact one of the talks I gave in town before the Veterans of Foreign Wars I said that Vietnam was a bottomless pit. We ought to get out of there."

"I appreciate the opportunity the people have given me and I'm leaving while the music is playing and I intend to take the time to smell the roses."

He had nearly five years to enjoy them.

A Funeral Mass was said for Mr. Burke Monday in St. Mary's of the Hills Church, Milton. Burial was in Milton Cemetery.

Msgr. John D. Day, pastor of the Milton church, noted that Mr. Burke's life paralleled that of the late Humberto Cardinal Medeiros. Both came from humble origins and had compassion for their fellow men.

"So many people in this church this morning have been touched by Jim Burke who helped them when they needed it," he said.

House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neil Jr., who served in the Congress throughout Mr. Burke's 20 years, eulogized his old friend for his work on behalf of Medicare and Medicaid.

Honorary bearers included Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, former Gov. Edward J. King and Foster Furcolo, State Senate President William Bulger, Edward Moore and John Ryan, former Burke aides.

Cong. Brian J. Donnelly, Edward P. Boland of Springfield, Joseph D. Early of Worcester, Joseph J. Moakley of South Boston, Edward J. Markey of Malden and Silvio Conte of Pittsfield.

Former cong. Harold Donahue of Worcester, former Mayor John Collins of Boston former Atty. Gen. Edward McCormack and Robert Quinn, and Martin representing Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Former Quincy Mayors James R. McIntyre, Walter J. Hannon and Arthur H. Tobin, Sens. Joseph Walsh of Boston and Anna Buckley of Brockton, Sheriff Clifford Marshall, Rep. Joseph Manning of Milton and former Rep. Joseph Brett of Quincy.

"Mr. Burke's passing is a tremendous personal loss," said Cong. Brian J.

Donnelly, who succeeded him in the 11th District seat.

"He was my friend and my mentor. He was loved and respected by the people of the district that he knew and served so well for so many years. His service to our nation will long be remembered."

"He was a diligent man who never took himself very serious," said former Quincy Mayor James R. McIntyre, who was once mentioned as Mr. Burke's heir apparent in Congress. "He always had a good word, a humorous word to say."

"He was one of those rare public servants who never lost touch with the common man," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. "He was as much at home climbing a gangplank to meet workers at the Quincy Shipyard as he was sitting down with the heads of state in the nation's capital."

Sen. Paul D. Harold once served as an unpaid intern in Mr. Burke's Washington office. One of his responsibilities was to get coffee for the staff. Once the congressman got his own coffee, "I didn't want to bother you," he told Harold.

"Some of the congressmen down there want to be waited on hand and foot," said Harold. "It really made an impression on me that he never lost touch with his roots."

A native of South Boston and the youngest of 10 children, Mr. Burke was graduated from Boston English High School and attended Suffolk Law School.

He was elected to the state legislature in 1936 and served one two-year term. He served as Registrar of Vital Statistics in Boston for four years and then went into the Army, serving as an intelligence officer in the South Pacific.

He was elected to the legislature again in 1946 and served for eight years. Meantime, he was unsuccessful in a run for Congress in 1940 against Cong. John McCormack and he lost out in a bid for lieutenant governor in 1954.

Now a resident of Milton, he won election to Congress in 1958.

He leaves his wife, Aileen (McDonald) Burke; two sisters, Elizabeth Ann Burke and Margarita Burke, both of Hyde Park; two brothers, Arthur Burke of Dorchester and Walter Burke of Hyde Park.

A large granite monument was erected to him in Milton in September, 1981, and in November, 1982, the Quincy Post Office, where he had maintained an office for 20 years, was named in his honor.

A funeral service for Thomas W. Hinckley, 84, of Quincy, a retired New England Telephone Co. repairman, was held Tuesday at the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Mr. Hinckley died Friday at Quincy City Hospital after a brief illness.

Born in Boston, he moved to Quincy 13 years ago from Newton.

A veteran of the Army during World War II, Mr. Hinckley was a member of the George F. Bryan VFW Post. He was also a member of the New England Telephone Pioneers.

Family Portrait Sitzings At Squantum Church

The Chancel Choir of the First Church of Squantum is sponsoring the opportunity to have a family portrait taken by photographer Robert B. Gorrill two days this week at the church.

Money earned by the sale of the photographs will be put toward the purchase of new choir robes for the church.

Genevieve Todd, spokesperson for the choir, explained, "The advantage of having your family portrait taken when so many other families are doing it is that much lower prices are available to you this way."

"Many people will be thinking about getting such a portrait for Christmas gifts at this time of the year. Others simply want a photographic record for the family album."

Sittings will be held in Fellowship Hall Friday,

Oct. 21, from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. and on Saturday, Oct. 22, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

$2.5 M Quincey Construction Loan Completed For 42-Unit Condo Building

Quincey industrial and residential developer Richard J. Buccheri has completed negotiations with Home Savings Bank for a $2.5 million construction loan for a 42-unit luxury condominium building at 64 Willard St., West Quincy.

The project, comprising a total area of 68,500 square feet, will feature an atrium focal point, underground garage with parking for 57 cars, outdoor swimming pool and other amenities. Construction is expected to be completed in the fall of 1984. Prices will start at $79,900 for single bedroom units.

The developer was represented by Frederick S. Gilman of the Boston law firm of Parker, Coulter, Daley & White. Construction financing was arranged by Robert F. Emmens & Co. of Hingham. Sales and marketing will be directed by Frances A. DeLuca Realty, Quincy.

The Willard Street project is the latest in a 13-year series of similar undertakings by Buccheri who pioneered condominium construction in Quincy when he completed the city's first condominium complex on West St. in 1970.

Among other structures built by Buccheri are the 25-unit Granite Estates, in 1974 and the 70-unit Aquarius Estates, completed in 1975. According to Buccheri, this newest project will further enhance the rapidly developing West Quincy area.

Sheets Says W. Quincey Condo New Sewer Problem

compound sewage backups and flooding.

Although Buccheri plans to spend $25,000 to $50,000 on sewer and drainage at the site, Sheets says that won't stop sewage from overflowing into nearby homes.

Sheets recently introduced that City Council resolve banning sewer hookups in areas plagued by sewer problems.

If the resolution is ignored by Mayor Francis X. McCauley, Sheets says he will ask Health Commissioner Dr. Grace Hussey to declare a health emergency and order no further hookups.

Durkin Criticizes Assault Response

Stephan J. Durkin, a candidate that any similar incidents in the school system's response to incidents in which elementary school girls were assaulted at the Merymount and Wollaston Schools.

"I was alarmed," he said. "That the administration took it upon itself to make the determination that an incident involving one young girl was not enough concern to inform parents," he said.

"While the schools are responsible, first and foremost, for our children's safety, it is the parents of these schoolchildren who should be allowed to determine whether such incidents are of concern."

Durkin said the solution to the problem is simple "Doors should be locked at all times and visitors should be required to wear identification badges."

Durkin said current members of the School Committee have responded to charges of unsafe schools by saying "That they are working within a limited budget."

"I say that no amount of money is too much to pay for the emotional and physical well-being of our schoolchildren," he said.

"Moreover, the School Committee should make it clear to the administration that and similar incidents in the future must be reported to them and to parents immediately."

United Way At 44% Of Goal

One-third of the way into its 1983 fund-raising campaign, the United Way of Massachusetts Bay has raised $13,938,467, which represents 44 per cent of the campaign goal of $32 million.

The announcement was made by General Campaign Chairman George H. Schofield, area executive for General Electric Company, at the First Report Luncheon at the Boston Park Plaza Hotel. The luncheon was attended by 600 campaign volunteers.

Ending strong support to this year's drive were the companies and organizations conducting employee campaigns in the South Region, which consists of 19 communities south of Boston. Chairman for this division is Charles E. Sullivan, senior vice president, Hancock Bank and Trust Company, Quincy.

At the luncheon, Sullivan reported that the South Region has raised $210,973, which is 32 per cent of the region's campaign goal of $666,000.

Schofield said, "Throughout our community, so many of our neighbors are in need. This year, almost one million people in the Greater Boston area will seek the services of United Way agencies.

"Today, we must renew our commitment to reach our goal," Schofield said. "Because as I look around our community, I am constantly reminded of two things: its tremendous potential and its terrific needs."

Contributions to the United Way campaign support 176 health and human service agencies in eastern Massachusetts. This includes 17 agencies located in the local area, such as South Shore Day Care Services in Braintree, South Shore Association for Retarded Citizens in Weymouth, South Shore Council on Alcoholism in Quincy, Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore in Braintree, and the Visiting Nurse Association of the South Shore serving 11 area communities.

The campaign will continue through Nov. 22.

Robert Allison To Head Ward 2 Association

Robert Allison will be installed as president of the Ward 2 Civic Association Saturday, Nov. 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Rd.

Other officers elected at the October meeting include: Robert Mood, vice president; Isabel Brugge, treasurer; Owen Eaton, recording secretary; Phyllis Bagen, corresponding secretary.

The board of directors will include Dorothy Eaton, Alice Faiella, James Ferris, Stephen Linskey, James Lyons, Carmela Mood, Daniel Raymond, Sharyn Raymondi, Theodore P. DeCristofaro, Robert Cerasoli.

Tickets for the installation may be obtained at the door. The ceremony will be followed by dancing until midnight.

The association will hold its annual goody-bag give away for Ward 2 children on Halloween, Oct. 31, between 5 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Representatives To Hold Office Hours For Legislation

Reps. Michael W. Morrissey, Thomas F. Brownell and Robert A. Cerasoli will hold joint office hours at City Hall on Friday, Oct. 21, from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. for constituents who wish to file legislation.

"We would like to impress upon anyone who wants to file that the filing deadline has been moved up this year," said Morrissey.

"It will be Wednesday, Nov. 2, instead of the first Wednesday in December as it was in the past."

Anyone unable to come to City Hall may submit a proposal for legislation to any of the three representatives at the State House or call Morrissey at 722-2470, Brownell at 722-2430 or Cerasoli at 722-2040.

Recent kitchen design trends

When you redesign your kitchen, that new kitchen plan will be uniquely yours. But you should be aware of some of the trends.

There is more greenery in the modern kitchen, helped largely by increasing use of "grow" lights, by greenhouse windows and by popular interest in decorative plants.

There is increasing interest in hobby activity in the kitchen, where the hobby is adaptable to it.

A "home headquarters," or office area, is becoming more important and the best place for it is in the kitchen or adjacent.

If you have harbored prejudices against plastic laminate surfaces on your cabinets, it is time to reassess them.

When European cabinets came to this country several years ago, they came with laminate surfaces at much higher prices than our cabinets. Laminates gained new status.

Now, laminates are styled in spectacular new patterns and textures for their own sakes, no longer trying to imitate other materials, although laminate woodgrains are more woodlike than ever.

The newest trend is toward a combination of wood and plastic. For example, a cabinet door might have a laminate panel but with genuine wood trim, and the countertop might be made similarly with a wood edge.

What people are paying for major remodeling

How much will you have to pay for a specific remodeling job? If you ask a remodeling contractor he won't have the slightest idea until he actually makes a survey of the house, because houses and conditions vary so widely.

But we can tell you the averages. Just remember that many jobs cost a lot more than the average and many cost a lot less.

Prices will vary according to the quality of materials you select, the time it will take to do it, the weather, unexpected job problems and often how much the homeowner interferes with the workmen.

Just be sure to hire a remodeling contractor you can trust, starting with the firm's affiliation with his national trade association (which means he conforms with a national ethical code), and check with your local Better Business Bureau and check references.

Then you can be reasonably sure you are getting value for the money you spend.

A survey of 2,500 remodeling contractors divulged the following:

- Kitchen remodeling, $7,299. The range here usually is $6,000 to $16,000, including new cabinets, countertops, appliances, sink.

- Bathroom remodeling, $1,853. This is an extremely low figure, too low to include much bathroom cabinetry beyond a vanity cabinet.

- Bathroom addition, $5,330. Again, this could not include much cabinetry, a feature that is needed most.

- Room addition, $15,105. This will depend very much on size of the room. For 400 square feet, it will probably range from $18,000-$24,000.

- Finishing an attic, $6,450.

- Adding a second story, $20,150.

- Enclosing a porch, $3,897.

- Adding a garage, $5,467.

- Adding a fireplace, $1,370. For a factory built energy-efficient model 42 or 43 inches, with floor-to-ceiling brick, raised hearth and 6-foot mantel, it would average $2,500.

- Roofing job, $3,945.

- Siding job, $3,231. But, as in roofing, how big is your house? To get 1,500 sq. ft. of aluminum siding with quarter-inch insulating board underneath, it would range from $3,350 to $4,300.

- Window/door replacement, $1,099. That's an actual average, but to get 18 vinyl prime windows with insulated glass, two vinyl storm doors and two prime wood doors it would run $6,300 to $10,500.

- Solar space/water heating, $6,530.

- Insulation, $804.

CHECK AND REPAIR WORN CAULKING

Caulking is used to seal gaps where different types of building materials meet. Sometimes it shrinks. Sometimes it dries and breaks, and you lose your seal.

These materials are oil base, latex or silicone, squeezed from a tube or from a cartridge in a caulking gun. Check yours at least once a year and renew where needed, for 45¢ to $5.

VANITY NEEDS SEAL OF APPROVAL

Plants usually do well in the bathroom because of the high humidity. Bathroom furnishings, however, may not fare as well.

When selecting a vanity, look for the certification seal of the National Kitchen Cabinet Association. It means the vanity is designed to resist high humidity as well as spills of lotions and cosmetics — conditions common in baths.

IMPROVEMENT GUIDE

Home redecorating starts at the top

If you're thinking of redecorating, why not start at the top.

There's no reason a roof can't provide good looks as well as protection. After all, a roof is often the first part of a house seen by visitors. If your roof's appearance is not up to par, then neither is your home's "curb appeal."

Today's roofs offer more design possibilities than ever. An array of colors, textures and materials are available, ready to be incorporated into any decorating scheme.

Roof colors can serve to complement a home's architectural style and other exterior elements. Colors can also be used to create certain visual effects. Topping an adobe-colored home with red shingles would evoke a Spanish feeling, for example. Black, a popular color, is especially appropriate for formal, traditional homes.

A dark roof can also make a high-rising house seem cozier, while a white or light-colored roof can give a ground-hugging home the illusion of height and airiness.

Three-dimensional asphalt shingles, available with either an organic or fiber glass base, offer a new option in roofing: depth. Multi-layered shingles create bold shadowlines and a handsome, rugged appearance. They're available in earthy browns, buffs and beiges, which help relate a home to its natural surroundings.

When it comes to color coordination, the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association suggests limiting your palette to three shades: one for the roof, another for sidewalls, and the third for the trim. Think of your house as a canvas you'll be looking at for many years — up to 25 years or more in the case of three-dimensional asphalt shingles — then choose your color.

Romulus DeNicola Honored At Testimonial

Over 500 friends and colleagues recently attended a testimonial for Quincy pharmacist Romulus L. DeNicola at the Westin Hotel, Boston.

The tribute marked his retirement as executive secretary to the Board of Registration in Pharmacy, the licensing and regulatory commission for the profession in Massachusetts.

DeNicola was first appointed to the Board in 1956 and was later elected secretary and president. In 1972, he was named the first full-time executive secretary. During his tenure, he played a key role in updating pharmacy laws and in formalizing an apprenticeship program.

Representatives from the pharmaceutical industry, government and academia attended. He was praised for his "integrity, his respect for the profession and his outstanding contributions in the area of drug law enforcement."

Paula Gold, secretary of the Office of Consumer Affairs, presented DeNicola with a citation on behalf of Governor Michael Dukakis. She said that the pharmacy board is the "best run of 30 such regulatory boards in the state". Clement Delahunt, Jr. read a resolution passed by the Massachusetts House of Representatives, which commended DeNicola for a "job well-done."

Raymond A. Gosselin, president of the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy (MCP) and Allied Health Sciences, announced that a scholarship fund has been established in DeNicola's name. Students at either MCP or Northeastern University College of Pharmacy and Allied Health Professions, who show an interest in pharmacy law, will be eligible for the award.

A registered pharmacist for more than 45 years, and the owner of Blackwood Pharmacy in Wollaston. DeNicola has participated in civic and professional public speaking programs, and served on the Quincy Health Center's Drug Abuse Committee and the Advisory Board of the South Shore Community Center. He is a consultant to the Massachusetts Health Council and the Committee on Drugs and Therapeutics of the Massachusetts Medical Society.

DeNicola earned his bachelor's and Ph.D. in pharmacy from the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, did postgraduate work in advanced chemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and has also completed courses in drug enforcement and investigational procedures offered by the Department of Justice and Temple University. In 1974, he was awarded an honorary doctor of pharmacy from MCP.

Newton North 15, Quincy 6

Presidents Trying To Tune Up Offense

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy football team is working overtime on offense this week as it prepares to face one of its jinx rivals. New Bedford, Saturday in a 2 p.m. non-league game at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Presidents turned in another fine defensive effort last week but their attack was completely bottled up by a big Newton North line as Quincy dropped a 15-6 decision, making its record 2-3.

New Bedford is only 1-3-1 this fall with a win over Fairhaven, a tie with Seckonk and losses to Brockton, Somerset and Dartmouth, but the Whalers are always tough for Quincy.

Last fall Quincy pushed New Bedford all over the field but lost, 12-7, one of its three losses, and two years ago the Presidents had to come from behind in the final seconds to gain an 8-8 tie.

"We are playing well on defense but we have to start putting some points on the board," Coach Bill Mavor said. "They had a big line and our line just couldn't open any holes. Our backs couldn't get any daylight. Mike Notarangelo had a frustrating day. He is a great competitor and is a tremendous player for his size, but today their big line was just too much."

To show just how effective the Newton line was, the Presidents picked up 52 yards on the ground but, with the quarterback getting sacked a few times, wound up with just nine net yards. Notarangelo, the smallest player on the field, carried 16 times for just 36 net yards.

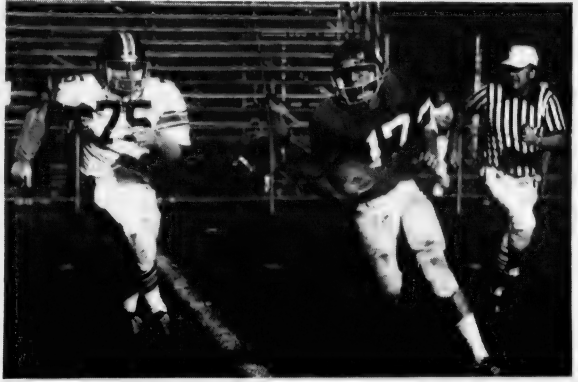

Mavor started Joe Conti at quarterback but, after being frustrated passing, he shifted to Billy Shaughnessy late in the third quarter. Shaughnessy finally came into his own with seven completions the rest of the way. He had completed an early pass on a halfback option play as his brother, Chris, made a juggling catch.

"Conti did a good job but he is not as quick as Shaughnessy," Mavor said. "I will go with Shaughnessy against New Bedford, but Conti will continue to play a lot. He did some more outstanding punting today."

Mavor had good words for the defensive unit and MIKE NOTARANGELO of Quincy (20) knocks pass out of the hands of Newton North's Dino Maye.

Quincy Scoring

|                | TD | PAT | Pts. |
|----------------|----|-----|------|
| Notarangelo    | 2  | 0   | 12   |
| W. Shaughnessy | 1  | 2   | 8    |
| Keele          | 1  | 0   | 6    |
| Cullen         | 1  | 0   | 6    |
| Tucker         | 1  | 0   | 6    |
| Farner         | 0  | 1   | 1    |
| Conti          | 0  | 1   | 1    |

singled out Austin O'Malley and Joe Cacciatore, who were brilliant; Notarangelo, who played virtually the entire game both ways; Chris Shaughnessy, Daron Tucker, Bill Shaughnessy, Joe Cullen, Conti and Pat Calabro.

Quincy was without three starters, Dan Curtin, who underwent knee surgery this week and will be out for the season; Rich Ready, who will miss a few more games, and Dan Macauley, who may return this week.

Three other Quincy players were sidelined for disciplinary reasons. While Quincy was held to nine yards net rushing, Newton had 193 yards, but the Presidents stopped them several times when they had to. Quincy was nine for 17 passing for 130 yards with Shaughnessy going eight for 11. Newton was six for 11 for 99 yards and two interceptions. Newton had 11 first downs and Quincy eight.

Quincy was stopped on its first series and Newton drove 51 yards for its first touchdown. Newton caught Quincy with its guard down as halfback Bill Norwood, the team's top ground gainer, threw to quarterback Rusty Halloran for 16 yards. Chris Santeusano kicked the extra point.

Quincy continued to be frustrated offensively and Newton drove deep into Presidents' territory but Notarangelo made a fine interception on his one-yard line. Two plays later Chris Shaughnessy was tackled in the end zone for a safety.

There was no more scoring until the final quarter when Mike Cater scored for Newton on a 17-yard run.

Quincy took the ensuing kickoff and, with Bill Shaughnessy clicking through the air, averted a shutout. He hit brother Chris for nine yards, Rucker for 16, Chris again but for no gain, and finished up with a 30-yard toss to Tucker for the touchdown.

After stopping Newton, Shaughnessy passed to Conti for 17 yards and Chris for six but Newton recovered a fumble on Quincy's 44 to end any hopes Quincy had of closing the gap.

Buckley Named Head Coach At Curry

Brian Buckley, highly successful coach at Quincy Junior College for the past four years, has been appointed head coach of the men's basketball team at Curry College, effective immediately.

Buckley, a Quincy native, succeeds Tom Ryser, who resigned earlier this fall.

"I had a very good experience at Quincy Junior College and I regret leaving, especially at this time of year," Buckley said. "But the opportunity to coach at a four-year college was just too good to pass up."

"I had planned to start Quincy Junior College practice last Monday and I met with all the returning players to explain the situation to them. The squad will hold captains' practices until a new coach is named."

It is expected a successor to Buckley will be named soon as the Jaguars will open their season Nov. 10 against powerful Massasoit Community College.

Buckley had an excellent 55-29 record during his four years at QJC and his teams made the Greater Boston Small College Conference playoffs three of the four years.

Last season the Jaguars swept conference honors, finishing first during the regular season and winning the playoffs, compiling a 24-8 record.

Prior to joining QJC, he served three years as assistant basketball coach at Boston College High School.

He attended Abp. Williams High School and Boston State College, where he received a B. S. degree and has also done graduate work. In addition to his coaching duties, he is

BRIAN BUCKLEY

Community Development Coordinator of Neighborhood Human Services for the City of Quincy.

He worked as youth coordinator for the city from 1979-1981 and prior to that time held similar posts in Holbrook and Concord.

"This will be a new venture for me and I will meet a lot of new people," he said. "I am eagerly looking forward to the challenge."

Buckley will have a young squad at Curry this season with only two seniors.

Meanwhile, his successor at QJC will have three league all-stars to build around North Quincy's Paul Gill and Steve Belcastro and Will Smith, a transfer from Bunker Hill Community College. He also will have three other returnees from last year's championship squad.

Curry also named a women's basketball coach, Richard Kelly of Abington, who succeeds Quincy's Donna Brickley.

Kelly had a phenomenal 169-20 record in eight years of coaching at Abington High School.

Walsh, Dixon Dalrymple Score In Quincy Win

The Quincy High School football team ran up a 20-8 lead at the end of three quarters on touchdowns by John Walsh, Gary Dixon and Bob Dalrymple and held on for a 20-14 victory over Malden, its third straight win after an opening loss to Brockton.

Walsh sneaked one yard for the first score, Dixon ran 14 yards for the second and Dalrymple raced 15 yards for the third.

Malden quarterback Pete Finn passed seven yards to Stan Lubin for a touchdown on the first play of the second period, ending a unique Quincy pass defense record. It was the first aerial completed against the Patriots in 13 periods of play.

The Quincy lineup included: Whiting, Merrill, Smith, ends; Beaumont, Derbes, Hupprich, Pelton, tackles; Ricciarelli, Paronich, Darracq, guards; Peterson, McIsaac, Calabro, centers; Dixon, DiLoreto, Avitable, Gaciaia, Ivi, Dalrymple, Walsh, Seaver, backs.

NORTH WHIPS HINGHAM

Tom Kelly, the South Shore's leading scorer, ran for both touchdowns and gained half of his team's 216 yards on the ground as the North Quincy High School football team ground out a 12-6 victory over Hingham at Michelson Field, Hingham.

Kelly's touchdowns came on identical plays in the first and second periods. He took a reverse handoff from quarterback Ron Zoia and ran 22 yards for the first touchdown and 23 yards for the second.

The North Quincy lineup included: Pettinelli, Fontaine, Flanagan, ends; Joy, Harding, Meyer, tackles; Swirbalus, Panaro, Anderson, Blampied, Pronack, Coughlin, guards; Young, Mahoney, centers; Zoia, R. Travers, Gillis, Kelly, Sadlier, Gheradi, Cooke, backs.

The Rev. Frank Anderson scored one goal and assisted on three others to lead the Wollaston Hockey Club to a 7-1 romp over North Weymouth in an Old Colony Hockey League game at the Weymouth Skating Club. Anderson played for North Weymouth the previous year.

NORTH'S FIRST WIN

Raiders In For Tough Time At Waltham

The North Quincy Raiders won't lose a tougher game than they did Saturday when they made one of the greatest comebacks of this or any other year only to lose in the final 29 seconds to Weymouth North, 26-20, on a 70-yard kickoff return.

North is now 2-3.

North coach Ken McPhee hopes the Raiders won't suffer an emotional letdown this Saturday when they face tough Waltham in a 1:30 p.m. Suburban League game at Waltham.

Waltham is one of the top teams in the league with a 2-0 league record and a 4-1 overall mark. A 20-0 win over Arlington last week, the Hawks' only blemish was a tough 14-13 loss to Malden. Last fall Waltham topped North.

With 2:46 left in last week's non-league game at Weymouth, North Quincy trailed, 18-6. The Raiders then scored twice in less than two minutes to take a 20-18 lead with 29 seconds left.

Things looked bright for the Raiders but, after their ensuing kickoff went out of bounds, Weymouth's brilliant Mike Waithe, who scored a pair of touchdowns, took the next kick and raced 70 yards for the winning TD.

North still wasn't through and reached Weymouth's 30-yard line when the game ended.

"We certainly didn't deserve to lose this game," said a dejected McPhee. "But neither did they. They have an excellent team and took advantage of their opportunities. We were just one tackle away from a tremendous comeback victory."

Mullen Wins Over 50 Class In Boston Race

Lt. Frank Mullen, the Quincy police prosecutor, was the first runner over the age of 50 to finish in the Boston Police 6.2-mile road race Sunday.

Mullen, a veteran marathoner, finished 59th in the 450-man and woman field in 40 minutes, 12 seconds.

The winner, Chris Ginocchio of the New York

"I don't feel we coaches made any mistakes today but we still lost. This was a real physical game and it was just heartbreaking we had to lose after making such a comeback."

Co-Capt. Jim McNamara, strictly a defensive standout last year, is playing his first season at fullback and had his best day with 137 yards on the ground, including a 61-yard run to set up the Raiders' first touchdown.

Bryan Ellis, Steve Kelly, Scott Messina, Mike Gill and quarterback Steve Hogan also ran well. Hogan didn't have much luck passing, completing only two and having two intercepted (one was returned for a TD), but he did have one scoring pass and some of his others should have been caught.

Assistant coach Mark Mulvaney had good words for the five players who went all the way in the offensive line, Nick Gelsomini, Jerry Martin, Jack Burke, Jack Hannan and Rob Flynn. "They did another fine job and blocked well," he said.

The defense did another fine job and defensive coordinator Jack Raymer had good words for Gelsomini, McNamara, who was outstanding both ways.

Mike Barry, Steve Dever, Rich DeLuca, Jack Bolster, Kelly, Gill and Jim Kennedy.

North Quincy had 227 yards on the ground and Weymouth had 221. North had 59 yards on its two pass completions, while Weymouth stuck to the ground, throwing only three passes, two of them intercepted by Kennedy and John Comeau. Weymouth had 12 first downs and North nine.

North was hurt considerably by 90 yards in penalties, which stopped some good drives.

Weymouth took an early lead as it drove 70 yards with Ed Foster scoring from the one, but North roared right back and, sparked by McNamara's 61-yard run, drove for the tying touchdown as Gill scored from the one.

There was no more scoring until the wild and woolly fourth quarter when 34 points were scored.

Weymouth took a 12-6 lead when Lars Lambros scored from the five and a few minutes later Waithe scored on a 22-yard run.

Trailing, 18-6, and 2:46 left, Mark Wilkens recovered a fumble on Weymouth's 29. Hogan went 14 yards on a keeper, McNamara went 11 to the four from where he scored. Gelsomini kicked the point and it was 18-13.

North stopped Weymouth and the entire line broke through and Gelsomini blocked a punt. Hogan then passed to Kelly for 36 yards and the touchdown that put North ahead. Gelsomini again kicked the point for a 20-18 North lead.

Then came the kickoff return and one of the Raiders' most heartbreaking defeats.

North Girls Roll By Brockton

The North Quincy girl's cross-country team continues to roll defeating Brockton, 20-37, last week for its fourth straight win this year and its 20th successive Suburban League victory.

The Raiderettes race Quincy today (Thursday) and run at Newton next Tuesday to complete their league schedule. They finish up Friday, Oct. 28, against Boston Latin.

"These girls are just tremendous," Coach Lou Tozzi said. "We have only one senior and several sophomores and freshmen. They work awfully hard as they want to keep up the fine North Quincy tradition. I couldn't be more proud of them."

Maryann Kelleher

continued her outstanding running to win the Brockton meet, covering the 2.3 mile course in 14:51.

Freshman Patricia Barrett was second, giving her a first and three second places. Tracey Corrigan was fourth, Diane Lindenfelzer fifth, Tricia Leary eighth and Anne Toland ninth.

The North girls won the Eastern Mass. championship last fall for the third year in a row and also won the all state crown. They should do well again in a post-season meet.

North Defeats Brockton In X-Country

The North Quincey boys' cross country team, coached by former Raider and Cornell star Bart Petracea, defeated Brockton, 23-34, last week to improve its record to 2-2-1.

The Raiders face Quincey today (Thursday) and next Tuesday will run at Newton.

The North boys, with only nine runners and improving in every meet, also defeated Waltham and tied Weymouth North while losing to Brookline and Cambridge Rindge and Latin.

In the most recent win over Brockton the boxers' Wayne Nye was the winner but North's Jeff Stryker was second, Scott Coyne third, Tom Wildes fifth, Heath Petracea sixth, Harry Morash seventh and Art Collings ninth.

Senior Stryker and Junior Coyne have been the Raiders' most consistent performers. Stryker, Class B 880 champion last year and fifth in New England, is primarily running to get in shape for an outstanding senior year in track, according to Petracea. Coyne who, as a sophomore, recorded a 4:39 mile, has more of a distance background and should do well in the state meet.

Petracea, the coach's brother, and Morash, both sophomores, are running well and are not far behind Stryker and Coyne. Junior Wildes has improved tremendously and is expected to do well in the two-mile in a winter track.

Senior sprinters Tom Kearney and Collings, like Stryker, are using cross-country to get in shape for indoor track. Completing the roster are senior Bill Donnelly and sophomore Andy Barrett.

"Despite having only nine runner, the team is doing remarkably well," said Petracea. "They are all hard workers and a pleasure to coach. I wish we had more runners and I don't know why more kids, who want to get in shape for other sports, don't come out for cross-country."

Senior Hockey League

Kane's, Kelly's Tied For Lead

Kane's Place and Kelly's Pub are tied for the Quincey Youth Arena Senior Hockey League lead with 2-0-0 records.

Kane's topped Colman's, 8-3, sparked by Tom Cahill's four goals. Mark Paolucci, Dave Peters, Dave Hurley and Jim Fitzpatrick had a goal each. Peters had six assists. Paolucci two and Cahill and Fitzpatrick one each. Larry Bertrand, Frank Guesst and Ted Weidman scored for Colman's with assists for Guest and Bertrand.

Higgins Receives 3rd Track Letter At NU

Roy Higgins of Quincey recently received his third varsity letter as a member of the Northeastern University Huskies, 1983 New England track and field champions. Higgins, a 6-2 170-pound senior, specialized in the middle distance events for the Huskies, who defeated arch-rival Boston University to re-capture the rights to number one in New England in the Outdoor Championships held at BC's Alumni Stadium.

"Roy has been one of our most consistent middle-distance men and a very reliable and versatile runner," said Northeastern coach Everett Baker. "And, this year was no exception," added Baker.

Higgins was a "point-producer" in both the indoor and outdoor campaigns, and placed fourth in the 600 yard run in the indoor Greater Boston Championships with a clocking of 1:15.0.

He was also a valuable middle distance performer as a sophomore, when he finished second in the GBC's indoors.

Higgins was an outstanding scholastic athlete at Quincey High School, Class of 1980, where he earned three letters in track and captained the team as a senior. He won the Suburban League and State Coaches Meet titles in the 440 as a senior, and finished second in the New England Track and Field Championships.

Roy is majoring in Engineering at Northeastern and will graduate in 1985.

North Defeats Brookline, Ties Brockton

The North Quincey boys' soccer team had another good week with a 2-0 victory over Brookline and a 1-1 tie with Brockton to improve its record to 6-1-3 and take another step toward a tournament berth.

Paul Gregoli's Raiders will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday and will host Quincey next Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. at the Veterans Stadium soccer field.

North hadn't won at Brookline in more than 10 years and the Raiders had to play without their two leading scorers, Nunzio Carbone and Chris Archer.

The first period was scoreless but North took control of the game in the second quarter. Terry Stark again controlled the mid-field area, outshooting Brookline's midfielders time and again.

Midway through the quarter David Brown, who was a scoring threat throughout the game, got the ball to sophomore Mark Scanlan, who put it past the Warrior goalie from five yards out.

Andy Curtis and Mike Walsh, who played well on the wings, missed good chances.

Neither team could mount an attack on the small Brookline field but Stark again took control and got the ball to Scanlan, who scored his second goal.

Just before the goal North goalie Mark Hubbard was called for traveling and Brookline had an indirect kick from 10 yards out. Halfback Joe Joseph got in front of the ball to prevent a score.

North's defense tightened even more over the final quarter with the fullback line of Jaime Paz, Joe LaPierre, Eric Roukey and Pat Marcham looking especially sharp. Hubbard, who registered his fourth straight shutout, wasn't severely tested but had eight saves. Also playing well were Steve Golden and Craig Orrock.

Playing at home for the first time in two weeks, North tied Brockton for the second time.

The Raiders again dominated play early with Brown, Scanlan and Curtis being a constant concern to the Boxer defense. Brown was particularly effective as he got off three excellent shots but was stopped by outstanding saves by the Brockton goalie.

The Raiders hurt themselves by not being able to keep seven corner kicks in play. LaPierre, Paz and Roukey sparked a strong defense.

Midway through the third quarter Hubbard allowed his first goal in 18 quarters as he was beaten from 35 yards out.

Things looked bad for North when Chris Archer was ejected from the game early in the fourth quarter for charging the goalie. The Raiders were forced to play the remainder of the game with only 10 players because of the ejection.

However, showing the heart they have displayed all year, the Raiders tied the score with three minutes left. North had a throw-in deep in Brockton territory. Paz took the throw and put it in the goal crease. Scanlan tipped the ball to Joseph, who scored his first goal of the year to tie the score.

"This team continually amazes me," said Gregoli. "With all the adversity it has faced, it always finds some way to pull together and get the job done. A team missing its two top scorers might have packed it in at Brookline but kids like Brown, Scanlan, Curtis and Walsh all played superbly. And Joseph has been getting the job done quietly all year and it was nice to see him get the tying goal against Brockton.

"We need nine points in our next seven games to qualify for the tournament. The way we pull together as a team, there is no doubt in anyone's mind that this team will qualify."

Quincy Volleyball Team Sweeps Milford Tourney

The Quincy High girl's volleyball team, with a perfect 8-0 record, swept through six matches unbeaten last Saturday to win a tournament in Milford.

The First Ladies defeated Milford, 2-0; Notre Dame, 2-0; North Reading, 2-0; Arlington, 2-0; in the semifinals and in the championship match lost the first game to Stoneham, 15-12, but came back to win, 15-8, 15-4, and clinch the title.

In suburban league action, the Quincy girls defeated Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 2-0 (15-3, 15-6), dominating the match with almost perfect serving, missing only one serve. Christine Gallery and Marlo LeVangie played superb offense, taking up some slack for Susan Beven, sidelined with an ankle injury. Kathy McGregor played an outstanding net game, blocking several Cambridge spike attempts.

The First Ladies then topped rival North Quincy, 2-0 (15-10, 15-5). Quincy began the first game with a quick 4-0 start but North fought back behind Sandy Whitehouse and Ann Sousa to make the score 4-2. The First Ladies dug in and found themselves at 13-2 behind the hitting of Beven and Gallery, with Karen Marnell and Colleen Dunn setting the ball.

The Raiderettes refused to give up and scored the next eight points to close the gap to 13-10. Gallery then finished off North from the serving line for the final 15-10 score.

The second game was completely Quincy's with Carolyn Leonard and Beven serving and hitting and freshman Pam Austin coming through with the final six points. The final point was scored on a back cross play set by Dunn and hit by Gallery.

Quincy easily defeated Newton South, 2-0 (15-2, 15-1) as Beven and Gallery dominated the net, putting nine balls to the floor, and LeVangie putting in a solid performance at middle.

The Quincy girls will host Brookline Friday, will be at Brockton Monday and will be home to Newton North next Wednesday. They finish up Nov. 2 and appear certain to make the state tournament again.

Quincy's junior varsity is also 8-0. Lauren Standing, Ginny Duggan and Donna McLoughlin have led the serving while Darlene Derbes, Leanne Dondoro, Pam Austin and Terry Duggan have dominated the offense, hitting and blocking well.

• Youth Football

Panthers Blank Elks, Apaches Romp

The undefeated Quincy Point Panthers held on to their Quincy Youth Football League lead with a 12-0 victory Sunday over the West Quincy Elks, while the once-beaten North Quincy Apaches stayed a game behind with a 34-2 romp over the Squantum Sailors.

The Panthers (5-0) had to score three times in the second quarter before finally taking a 6-0 lead. With first and 10 on their own 20, Elks' quarterback Steve Scigliano was hit for an eight-yard loss by Mark Forest. On second and 18 the Elks fumbled and the Panthers' John Caporale recovered. Dan Overby completed a 13-yard pass to Anthony Battistone but the score was nullified by an illegal procedure penalty. Overby then pitched to Billy Roche, who threw to Gary Bright in the end zone but again the touchdown was called back.

Finally, on first and 20, Overby threw to Bright in the end zone and this time there were no flags. At halftime it was 6-0.

The Elks kicked off to open the second half and five plays later the Panthers scored. On second and 11, Overby pitched out to Roche, who passed to Bright for 31 yards and the touchdown.

Following Frank Ilenello's kickoff to the Elks' Brian Howlett, Rob McDonald carried to the Panthers' 22 and Arthur Glenn went to the seven before he was stopped by Shaun O'Neil. Ilenello and Tony Pecce stopped the Elks and there was no more scoring.

The Panthers have scored 125 points in five games and given up only 22.

The Elks defense was exceptional with fine two-way efforts by Scigliano, Howlett, Greg Doton and Keith Segalla.

In the Apaches' romp, the Sailors took the opening kickoff and were stopped cold and on the Apaches' first play Brian Durgin raced 60 yards for a touchdown but was called back by a penalty. A few plays later Steve Coull ran 45 yards for a score and Joe Mulvey passed to Joe Shea for the two-point conversion.

Paul Moody intercepted a Sailors' pass, setting up the second score, Durgin going 30 yards for the TD.

Moody ran a Sailors' punt back for an apparent score but it was voided by a clipping penalty. Two plays later Scott Crowley scored and also added the two-point conversion.

The Apaches' junior varsity played the entire second half and added two touchdowns by John Gallagher. Paul Adams came close to scoring when he intercepted a pass and returned it 50 yards to the Sailors' 30, setting up Gallagher's second touchdown.

The entire varsity squad was outstanding and jayvees Matt Norton, Gallagher, Adams, Bob Herman and Matt Furtado played excellent games.

Sunday the Apaches will play the Manets at 1 o'clock at Veterans Memorial Stadium and the Panthers will face the Sailors at 2:30.

The standings: Panthers, 5-0; Apaches, 4-1; Elks, 2-3; Sailors, 1-4, and Manets, 0-4.

Board Debates Greenery At O'Brien Car Lot

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
Building Inspector Allan MacDonald would like the owner of Tom O'Brien Datsun, Inc., 479 Washington St., to install greenery around newly acquired property at 465 Washington

St. But the ward councillor and some License Board members feel O'Brien has improved the property and the cost of greenery would be prohibitive.

Owner Tom O'Brien was granted extension of the Motor (1 new car) license to include the new property, a former gas station, at the Oct. 4 License Board meeting.

O'Brien said it would be used to clean, prepare and park cars.

"The corner looks 1,000% better," said City Clerk John Gillis.

However, Building Inspector Allan MacDonald said that greenery is required.

"All I can tell you is what the law says," said MacDonald. "Put a planting strip in or see the Board of Appeals (Zoning)."

He's done a nice job with the building," said Ward Councillor Ted DeCristofaro. "Now to say he has to put up screening, that's a lot of dough."

Police Chief Francis Finn agreed "The money to put in greenery is outrageous," said Finn.

"He bought the property to display cars."

O'Brien said that he paid $140,000 for the 5,600 ft. plot of land.

"I wish I knew (about the greenery requirement) before I gave the $25,000 deposit," said O'Brien.

"We don't intend to break any laws," said Gillis, "but the economics are very simple."

The board suggested that O'Brien, DeCristofaro and MacDonald discuss the situation.

"See if you can work something out," said Finn, "so that it doesn't become an outrageous situation."

City To Start Towing Parking Ticket Scofflaws

Quincy is going to start towing the cars of people who have amassed large numbers of parking tickets and refuse to pay them.

"I don't consider these people shoppers," said Parking Clerk Robert Denvir. "I consider them career parkers, scofflaws."

All those motorists with more than five overdue tickets — and there are 961 of them with 10,860 tickets — received between Jan. 1, 1982 and Sept. 1, 1983, will receive warnings first.

"But the big numbers are not going to get any notice," said Denvir. "There are two people who owe over 200 tickets. They're going quick. I've had enough of them."

Denvir said there are 44 auto registration numbers on the list for towing without warning. Ten of them are from out of state and 34 from Massachusetts.

Police will order the tow by private towing companies, Denvir said, "and the car will not be released until the parking clerk notifies the company that all violations have been paid."

State law authorizes a tow charge of up to $25 and a storage charge of $10 for a 24-hour period, which would also have to be paid before the vehicle is released.

Denvir said the state law permits the city to order tows and also to "temporarily immobilize" the car by using such instruments as the Denver boot. The boot will not be used in Quincy, Denvir said.

Denvir said about 80 per cent of the people who owe 20 or more tickets register their cars outside of Quincy.

provide the necessary security but the authority was unable to do so because of state funding constraints.

McGrath said he then arranged with the Planning Department to obtain the funding from federal sources.

"It is extremely important that the city take all steps necessary to protect and enhance the safety and security of its senior citizens," said McGrath.

"These elderly residents have contributed heavily to the welfare of our city. We must now commit ourselves to their health and welfare and their safety should be a top priority."

Night Security For Tobin Towers

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath has announced that the Tobin Towers elderly housing project at 80 Clay St., Wollaston, is now provided with security services during the late night hours.

22,000 Being Readied

100% Reval Impact Notices In Mail Nov. 14

By TOM HENSHAW

Impact notices informing Quincy taxpayers of the new valuation that has been placed on their properties under 100 per cent revaluation will be in the mail Monday, Nov. 14.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley announced Tuesday that some 22,000 notices are being prepared by the assessors office along with letters explaining the reasons for reval and how the figures were determined.

Mailing of impact notices is the latest step in the court-ordered revaluation procedure that began four years ago with the appropriation of funds to hire a reval firm.

The next step will be to listen to the appeals of unhappy property owners.

McCauley said taxpayers who wish to appeal their valuations will have until Friday, Dec. 2, to make an appointment for a hearing.

A special telephone number will be used to make it.

Six hearing officers from Municipal Appraisal Services of Fall River, the last firm to update reval figures, will conduct the hearings daily in City Hall starting Monday, Nov. 21.

McCauley said the appraisal company told him that usually 15 per cent of those revalued will ask for a hearing and that the hearings take an average of 15 minutes.

Any changes in valuation that exceed 10 per cent must be approved by the state.

When all the hearings are finished, McCauley said, he expects that the total valuation of all property in the city will be about $1.8 billion. In recent years it has been calculated at $274 million.

Knowing the total valuation will enable the city to set a tax rate for fiscal 1984 in time for the April 1 mailing of second half bills. First half bills that went out Oct. 1 were estimated.

The impact notices going out Nov. 14 will include residential, commercial and industrial properties and open space. Personal property valuations will be sent out separately.

The next task for the Mayor and the City Council will be to classify the property in the city so that the various uses of the land and buildings can be taxed at different rates.

McCauley Asks GD Deadline Extension

Mayor Francis X. McCauley has asked General Dynamics for an indefinite postponement of the Nov. 1 deadline for issuance of a bond to repay $28 million in principal and interest for a property tax over-assessment.

The City Council has not yet approved the bond and it will not meet again in regular session until Monday, Nov. 7, six days beyond the deadline. The bond issue also needs approval of the State Legislature.

McCauley wrote to Gary Grimes, general manager of the shipyard, in a letter that was hand delivered on Tuesday.

"On Aug. 31, the city of Quincy entered into an agreement with General Dynamics for the buyback of some $17,997,000, the amount of money that was owed to General Dynamics because of over-assessments by Fore River shipyard as so determined by the court.

"The agreement provided that the bond be issued no later than Nov. 1, but that this due date could be waived by mutual agreement.

"At the present time, the matter is before the City Council for their action which is necessary for the city to borrow the money. If and when the City Council approval is obtained, the matter must then be sent to the State Legislature for their approval.

"Since it is now apparent that we will not make the Nov. 1 due day for the issuance of the bonds, I request that the due date be postponed until such time as the City Council and the State Legislature have the opportunity to act on this matter."

The city is under court order order to repay General Dynamics $12,405,266, including interest, for over-assessments for the years 1977 through 1980. The city also negotiated a settlement of $5,591,734 for the years 1981 through 1983.

As a result of the settlement, the city agreed to issue a bond of $28 million, held by General Dynamics at 8 per cent interest, and pay it back at a rate of $2.8 million a year for the next 10 years.

The City Council refused to permit a referendum on the Nov. 8 city election ballot to exempt the $28 million from Proposition 2½ and has not yet acted on the bond issue.

"I hope the Council will act on the bond Nov. 7," said McCauley. "Postponing the deadline will give the councillors a little more time to study it. After all, they did not get it until September and it is a major step."

In the Spring we sprang forward.

Now it's time to fall back.

At 2 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 30, time will not only stand still for residents of Quincy it will move back an hour to 1 a.m. Of course, it won't move by itself. You'll have to move the hands of the clock back.

But you don't have to get up at 2 a.m. to do it. Just set the clock back an hour at bedtime and go to sleep. You'll be on time in the morning.

Colonial 1600 Granted All Alcoholic License

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Customers of the Colonial 1600 in Quincy Sq. will be able to enjoy an alcoholic beverage in the restaurant which is about to undergo $60,000 in remodeling.

The license board granted a change of license Tuesday from common victualer-wine and malt to common victualer all alcoholic for the establishment at 1600 Hancock St.

The transfer must be approved by the ABCC. Atty. Carl Johnson, representing restaurant manager Constantine T. Kechris, said that improvements have been made to the exterior, and remodeling of the interior is planned.

Johnson said the remodeling, scheduled to begin in January, will include a new food dispensing area, new seats and carpeting, and an oak and brass motif. Seating will accommodate about 100 customers, Johnson said.

Closing hour will be extended to 9 p.m., with the possibility that it may be extended further, said Johnson.

Bernie Reishberg, past president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and owner of Bernie's Modern Formal abutting the restaurant, said he has no objection to the all alcoholic license.

"Kechris has a fine character and is a fine family man. He runs a nice operation," said Reishberg.

The remodeling is scheduled to take about two months, Kechris said he hopes to remain open during the remodeling.

Board Grants License For Jacqueline's Bakery

Quincy/Sun/10-25/dy

The License Board voted 3-1 Tuesday to grant a common victualer-Lord's Day-take out only license for Jacqueline's Bakery, Inc., 764 Hancock St., Wollaston.

The license was formerly held by Mottola's II Pastry Shop, with no baking on the premises.

Police Chief Francis Finn, who was concerned about cooking odors bothering neighborhood residents, was opposed. Fire Chief Edward Barry did not attend the meeting.

The license was granted to applicants Eugene J. Dalgewicz and John Cristina with the stipulation that they correct any odor problem that may arise.

The matter was continued from last week's meeting when the board asked Cristina to provide information about electric ovens which he indicated did not give off cooking odors.

Hyman Rohnstein, a representative for new and used bakery and restaurant equipment, told the board this week that stoves would be too expensive to use.

Rohnstein also said "the only aroma you get is a nice aroma" from cooking at a bakery.

"I don't want the neighbors down here screaming bloody murder," said Building Inspector Allan MacDonald, referring to problems in the past with cooking odors from establishments in residential areas.

"If there is a problem," Gillis told Cristina, "it's up to you to correct it or close."

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday morning's meeting at City Hall:

- Granted a one day all alcoholic license to the Ward 2 Civic Association for its annual installation of officers Saturday Nov. 5, 8 p.m. to midnight at the Fore River Clubhouse.

- Granted a request from the North Quincy High School Girl's Soccer Team to conduct tag days Friday night, Oct. 28, and Saturday, Oct. 29, most of the day.

Leo Donovan, who represented the group at the meeting, said team members will solicit outside stores, not at intersections.

- Granted a request from The Egg and I, 258 Willard St., for a common victualer-Lord's Day license.

The license was granted with the restriction that toilet facilities be in accordance with Health Department requirements.

Applicant Domenic J. Mignosa said he hoped to open Dec. 1.

- Granted a request from the Quincy Fathers

Nut Island To Close A Week For Repairs

The MDC is planning to close its Nut Island Sewage Treatment Facility for a week to replace chlorination equipment.

During that time, said a spokesman for the MDC, the sewage inflow will be screened and chlorinated and released into Quincy Bay and Boston Harbor without full treatment.

The closing could come as early as Saturday, Nov. 12. "It will have no effect on the harbor," said the MDC spokesman. "This is the time of year that we don't have to worry. It's not the rainy season and there is not a lot of current activity."

Noel Barrata, the director of the MDC's Sewer Division, was not available to provide further information.

Robert Gibbons, an aide to Rep. Thomas F. Brownell, said his office was informed of the closing and, he added, "painful as it is, it seems that nothing else can be done."

The replacement of the chlorination equipment is part of the $8 million short term upgrading of the Nut Island plant.

"It's an uncomfortable situation," said Gibbons, "and we wish the work could be done in a different way but Barrata and Commissioner William Geary assured us it was the only alternative. We'll take them at their word."

Gibbons said the MDC assured Brownell that the closing will be for not less than four days or more than seven.

Shipbuilders Union Ratifies Three-Year Pact

Members of Shipbuilders Union Local 5 voted overwhelmingly Sunday to ratify a three-year pact with General Dynamics Quincy shipyard.

The vote was between 4 to 1 and 5 to 1, according to union president Jonathan Brando.

The meeting at Veterans

Memorial Stadium lasted just over an hour. Brando said, and about 20 rank and file members spoke.

"There was a very good tone to the meeting," said Brando, "members asked if we got as much as we could have, and I said yes."

The contract, tentatively agreed upon by shipyard and union officials last week, calls for $2.46 an hour raise over three years for skilled workers, bringing their hourly wage to $11.53.

All workers will take part in a profit sharing plan for the first time. The union will relax some of the work rules, notably permitting ship fitters to do the work of the burners and grinders.

Quincy Residents Due Federal Tax Refunds

More than 20 residents of Quincy are listed among 340 people from Massachusetts who are owed income tax refunds by the federal government for overpayments in past years.

In most cases, the refunds were mailed to the recipients but the checks were returned as undeliverable. The refunds total $88,394 and range from $1.09 to $5,930.50.

The Quincy residents are: Colin W. Gillis, for Samuel J. Craddock, deceased; Jean Moschella, Marianna and Wincenty Jakubiak, Wandy and Fung Yiu To, Patrick J. Dennehy, Patrick A. Doherty, Mary Ellen Gately.

Barbara M. Main, Bernard G. Moran, Edward M. Ross, Alice H. Ryan, for Marie G. Ryan, deceased; Theresa L. Smith and James W. Haberlin, David Ferguson, Giuseppe and Mary Gulla, Joseph A. Larkin, Jo-Ann and Joseph Larkin, Santa B. Benoit, Robert Collier, Glenn M. and Mary Anne Culley.

McGrath Receives $5,221, Spends $1,125

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath has filed a financial report showing $5,221 in receipts and $1,125.95 in expenditures for the early stages of his campaign for reelection in Ward 5.

The report was due Sept. 6, eight days before the Sept.

13 primary. Only one candidate, Leo J. Kelly, seeking reelection in Ward 1, has not filed a report yet.

State Contributes To QNHS Program

The state became the newest contributor to the Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services recently when Rep. Michael W. Morrissey and Sen. Paul D. Harold presented a check to Charles A. Pearce, the QNHS treasurer.

"It was a pleasure to finally be able to present Quincy NHS with $96,500 for its revolving loan account," said Morrissey, "after a two year interim of road blocks."

"The money should help refill the coffers of the account which has already committed close to a quarter of a million dollars in the Southwest Quincy area."

"The operating funds of $28,950 will help Quincy NHS to continue its successful rehabilitation program in Southwest Quincy, a program done with a minimal amount of money for administration," said Harold.

"It's one of the most successful programs in the state and has put Quincy on the map as regards housing and neighborhood renewal."

"We are pleased to receive these state funds for two reasons," said Pearce. "They will enable us to do more for the program in Southwest and they serve as recognition that we have been successful."

City To Spend $170,000 For Elderly Services

Mayor Francis X. McCauley has been touring the senior citizens' housing facilities during the past few weeks, noting that the city will spend more than $170,000 on services to the elderly in fiscal 1984.

McCauley pointed out that the Council on Aging has seven out-reach workers to aid senior residents with problems.

Lunches for senior handicapped persons are provided in three localities in the city, he said, and there is also a meals-on-wheels program for shut-ins.

Other services available for seniors are income tax assistance, free flu shots and transportation by appointment for visits to doctors' offices and for shopping.

The Mayor suggested that senior citizens call Brian Buckley, director of the Council on Aging, at City Hall for further information and assistance.

His Honor Is In Good Shape

MAYOR Francis McCauley had a physical checkup the other day — his first since being elected mayor in November, 1981. And, apparently the headaches of being mayor, don't bother him.

His weight is down by six pounds and more importantly his blood pressure is down from two years ago.

"Physically," the doctor told him, "you could be mayor indefinitely."

His Honor attributes his good health partly to walking.

He walks what he calls the City Hall block — Granite St., Upland Rd., Dimmock St., Hancock St., etc. almost every work day at 7:30 a.m. It's a little more than a mile. And he averages 10 to 12 miles on weekends.

He walks briskly — covering a mile in 13 minutes. McCauley this week also donated his 21st pint of blood since 1978 at the Red Cross bloodmobile at Quincy Point Congregational Church.

And when he goes to the bloodmobile, he usually brings six or seven more pints with him. He rounds up people like Administrative Aide Arthur Foley, Executive Secretary Peter Kenney, Asst. City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie, Personnel Director Don Hansen, Planning Director James Lydon and Susan Spelios of the Planning Dept. to also donate.

McCAULEY

During the presentation, someone asked her if she had gone to the Woodward School in Quincy.

"Hell no," she said with a smile. "I didn't go to the Woodward School For Girls (the former name). I went to Quincy High School where the boys were."

During the presentation ceremonies for the Theatre District Award, she broke up the place with: "I came here to get an award. Where is it?"

FORMER Mayor Walter Hannon who underwent triple by-pass heart surgery in August, is back on the job as Director of Development at Boston Harbor Marina. He's taking it easy but looks and feels good. Good news for all his friends.

HANNON

CITY COUNCILLOR Pat Toland can count on at least three new Quincy voters in her bid for re-election. Her mother, Mrs. Veronica Nagle, 90, recently moved to Quincy from Dorchester. And two of her children, John Toland, III and Livi have become of voting age since the last city election.

BERNICE C. MADER of 108 Connell St., West Quincy, who led the fight against excessive noise from Logan Airport aircraft, has taken out papers to run for the Democratic State Committee in the March 13 election.

The current Democratic State Committeewoman from the Norfolk senatorial district is Kathleen O'Donnell of Quincy.

WILLIAM BRABAZON, husband of Louise Brabazon, the City Council's secretary, is retiring Dec. 31 after 42 years with the MBTA where he is chief legal assistant.

"We still plan to live in West Quincy," says Louise. "We're still educating a daughter Ann Marie, a Junior at Bentley."

RUTH GORDON, in Boston the other night to receive the Annual Theatre District Award, also was presented with a personal copy of the new book, "Quincy: A Pictorial History of Quincy," by Paul Robert Lyons. The copy was a gift from Charles Pearce, president of the Quincy Savings Bank which underwrote the publication of a limited edition of 2,000 copies.

She was presented with the book by Garry Brennan of Quincy active in the Boston Theatre District Association. "Oh, this is wonderful," she said, looking at the book spotlighting her beloved Quincy. "I'd like to get my hands on a few more for friends."

Jim Nance Thanks Quincy Hospital For 'Superb Care'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I would like to publicly thank the staff of the Quincy City Hospital for the superb care that I received when I recently suffered a heart attack and a stroke.

To Drs. G. Rosenblatt, G. Connelly, T. Riley, D. Goldin, K. Einstein, R. Sipzner, and I. Schwartz my thanks for their excellent care. To the nurses in Intensive care, Progressive Care, and Medical-6 my sincere appreciation for their overwhelming help and constant assistance. To the therapists in Physical Therapy for their encouragement. To Mr. Henderson in Community Relations for his assistance to my wife, Marjorie in dealing with the news media, day and night.

Sell Pollard School To General Dynamics

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am answering Tobin's proposal in The Quincy Sun Thursday, Sept. 15, in regards to giving General Dynamics the Dam and the Quincy Hospital. Why not give them the Pollard School at Quincy Point instead as it is a vacant and valuable piece of property and could easily be turned into apartments for their workers.

New Quincy Book A Picture-Perfect Documentary

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

"Picture perfect" would be an apt appraisal of "Quincy: A Pictorial History," the recently published limited edition of illustrations and commentary on our city's rich and multi-faceted history.

For author Paul R. Lyons has indeed done himself and the "City of Presidents" proud with his well-designed artistic creation, replete with an array of rare photos, many heretofore unpublished. And so intriguingly will the gold-stamped documentary appeal to those enamored of our fair city that they will doubtless find themselves impelled to browse non-stop through all 225 captivating pages.

But as I closed the book on the final chapter, there seemed to be a glaring omission. Correct me if I err, but nowhere could I find a single mention of the one living person who best epitomizes the proud Quincy tradition and heritage. That, of course, could be none other than Thomas S. Burgin, the "elder statesman" of the community and one of the most competent, dedicated and popular mayors in Quincy's 95-year history as a city.

A gentleman so devoted to his birthplace and so revered by all that he richly deserves the sobriquet "Mr. Quincy." The sole mention of the highly-respected Burgin name I could find in Paul Lyons' most attractive volume was a reference to "Burgin Parkway" but my tired old orbs failed to ferret out "Tom" Burgin's name. Ironically, the book was underwritten by Quincy Savings Bank where Clarence Burgin (Tom's dad) was president for so many years.

Save for this unfortunate oversight, Lyons earns high remarks for his pictorial production. For the only mis-spellings I encountered were involved with the common mistake of adding the letter "i" (eight times) to the name of the World War I hero who gave his life to "keep the world safe for democracy" — George F. Bryan, for whom the local VFW post is named.

Tobin Says He's Ready For Judgeship, If Offered

By TOM HENSHAW

Former Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, now clerk-magistrate of Quincy District Court, says he is prepared to apply for a judgeship now if the occasion arises.

Two years ago, he told interviewers on the Quincy Cablesystems program "Newsmakers," there was some talk about him making application to the Judicial Nominating Committee to fill a judicial vacancy.

"At that time," he said, "I felt that being away from the legal aspect of it when I was actively engaged in public office that I would feel more comfortable being offered the job of clerk."

"I have enjoyed this position because a lot of it has come back to me and a lot of the technical aspects that I was away from."

"Yes, I do feel that now I am much more prepared than I would have been two years ago."

Tobin said he wasn't sure that there was an application for a judgeship for him two years ago "but I was told to make an application at that time if I was interested."

"That does not necessarily guarantee that you will get the appointment," he added, "but you would be interviewed by the Judicial Nominating Committee."

Tobin a supporter of former Gov. Edward J. King, who appointed him clerk-magistrate, said he does not think that support would hurt his chances with

Gov. Michael Dukakis if he applied.

On other matters, Tobin said:

His recent letter to Council Finance Chairman Stephen J. McGrath suggesting alternatives for the General Dynamics tax pay-back case does not mean he is planning to return to the political arena.

"The chairman of the Finance Committee asked for suggestions," he said, "and I thought it was incumbent on me as a citizen of the city to respond."

"The letter was not sent in a critical sense. It was a sincere, honest attempt to offer some alternatives to the Council."

"The only comment that was being made at the time was: You have this proposal before you and the alternative is drastic budget cuts. That's not much of an alternative."

Tobin said his administration instituted the law suit in the case "to let General Dynamics know that as mayor I wasn't going to sit back and get pushed around."

"They attempted to dictate policy and that was not my way of seeking a solution. My alternative was to go to court. I wasn't too happy with the decision of the judge but I thought that was the best avenue to go."

"At no time did General Dynamics ever contact my administration and offer to settle the case. That was a misstatement the mayor's office made."

"But it's not my purpose to go back and rehash old things. The present mayor is trying to seek a solution and I think it's incumbent upon all the people of the city to help find that solution."

Tobin was interviewed on the program by John Noonan of the Quincy Sun. Win Bertinson of WJDA and Ray McEachern of the Patriot Ledger.

MBTA To Extend Squantum Bus Runs

The MBTA is planning to extend its bus service to Squantum by a half hour starting with the winter timetable in January. The weekday bus will run until 6:30 p.m. instead of 6 p.m.

City Councillor Joanne Condon recently criticized the 6 p.m. cessation of bus service, citing the severe inconvenience placed upon Squantum residents who return home from work after 6 p.m.

In a return letter, MBTA Gen. Mgr. James F. O'Leary said the T's Service Committee "has recommended and I have approved an extension of the hours of service."

"The committee felt that ridership on the route did justify an additional trip in the evening."

O'Leary said the MBTA also will further evaluate Condon's request for Sunday service to Squantum, possibly as soon as the spring timetable.

"We realize a need to reevaluate our bus service in the South Shore and have requested that the Central Transportation Planning staff undertake such study as soon as possible."

said O'Leary.

"The objective of the study would be to determine better ways to serve the South Shore given the existing levels of buses and manpower."

"We do expect to have much community interaction with this study and thus will be sure to contact you as soon as we get underway."

McCauley Urges Vote To Keep Rec Facility

Mayor Francis X. McCauley has urged voters of Quincy to vote "No" on the Nov. 8 referendum question proposing the sale of the Norfolk County Recreation Facility in North Quincy.

"I believe it is very important that the Wollaston facility remain a recreational open space," said the Mayor.

"Although the referendum question is non-binding, it is important that the citizens of Quincy make their feelings known to the Norfolk County commissioners who oversee the operation of the facility."

McCauley noted that the operation ran in the red for several years after it was purchased by the county in 1975 but it has been operated at a profit for the past two years.

The 27 towns in the county have already voted 37,855 to 31,028 to sell the facility. A heavy vote in Quincy could easily turn the tide.

Brownell In Environmental Caucus

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell is among a group of state legislators who have launched a campaign to address key environmental problems in Massachusetts "and help fill the void left by lagging interest on the federal level."

Brownell said the group, known as the Environmental Caucus of the House of Representatives, will focus on nine major policy areas, including acid rain, hazardous wastes and harbor pollution.

"In light of the federal void," said Brownell, "I feel my constituents want the state to step in, to stride forward in environmental protection."

"They will not approve if their state government loses its will to act decisively for the public good as has seemingly occurred at the federal level."

Caucus members will concentrate on assessing state environmental agencies and programs, proposing new legislation and new approaches to on going environmental problems and evaluate current state spending.

"Many members of the House," said Brownell,

Have a deep concern for the future of our harbors, lakes, forest and all other aspects of our environment."

"By pooling our numbers, out time and our ideas, we hope to bolster the state's approach to this most critical area of public policy."

In addition to harbor pollution, acid rain and hazardous waste, the caucus will focus on air quality, coastal protection, land use, low-level radioactive wastes, solid wastes and water quality.

Stevenson Warns Of Smear Attack By Sen. McCarthy

Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic candidate for president, told a whistle-stop crowd of some 2,500 at the Quincy railroad station: "Tonight you will hear, perhaps, the most magnificent smear of all time when the junior senator from Wisconsin speaks."

Stevenson, the first presidential candidate to speak in Quincy since President Truman spoke from the steps of First Parish Church in 1948, was anticipating a televised talk by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy a week before the Nov. 4 election.

The Illinois governor turned his rapier wit on the Republican presidential candidate, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"When the general announced that he was going to Korea to stop the war, he took the wrong bus," he said. "The Korean war will not be stopped in Korea but in Moscow."

Accompanying Stevenson to Quincy were Gov. Paul A. Dever, Cong. John F. Kennedy, candidate for the Senate, Stephen Mitchell, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Mrs. India Edwards, its vice chairman and City Councillor David J. Crowley. They arrived at 9:30 a.m., pulled out at 10 a.m.

ANTI-PR DRIVE OPENED

Mayor David S. McIntosh and his associates kicked off a major offensive against proportional representation as they prepared to send out some 18,000 pamphlets urging voters to repeal that form of balloting in a referendum in the Nov. 4 election.

"My chief argument against PR," said the mayor, "is that the individual voter is disenfranchised to the extent of approximately six-seventh of his rightful voting privileges."

"We elected seven city councillors. A citizen's vote counts for only one candidate in the final analysis. Under the old form of plurality voting, a citizen's vote is counted for seven of the candidates in the field."

Ruth Gordon Receives Theatre District Award

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
Wollaston-born actress Ruth Gordon will celebrate her 87th birthday Sunday, but her career shows little sign of slowing down and the awards keep coming.

The Academy Award winning actress was honored Friday with the Annual Theatre District Award during the Fifth Annual Footlight Parade Ball at the Boston Park Plaza Hotel.

And she also had a tree planted in her name, received a proclamation from Mayor Francis McCauley and a personally embossed copy of a book on Quincy, all in the same day.

The Theatre District Award, a sterling silver medallion designed to represent a theatre ticket, is given annually to a notable stage or screen personality who has significantly contributed to the world of theatre and originally hails from the Boston area.

Previous recipients have been Ray Bolger, Bette Davis and Lee Remick.

According to Garry Brennan of Quincy, who was in charge of television public service announcements and coordinating wire services, the event was "terrific."

"It was one of the largest crowds we have ever had," said Brennan of the event sponsored by the Boston Theatre District Association.

And Miss Gordon got in a number of plugs for her hometown, said Loren Strout, president of the Quincy Tourism Association, who attended the black tie event with his wife, Nancy.

The stage and screen actress also kept the audience "in stitches," said Strout.

For instance, she spoke about performing in a play in Boston years ago, said Strout. She talked to actor Orson Welles on the phone about how the play was a "bomb."

"The Mayor gave me the key to the city," Miss Gordon told Welles; "but the people gave me the gate."

Also attending the event from Quincy was Sen. Paul Harold.

Brennan and Strout attended the tree planting ceremony held earlier in the day at Elliot Norton Memorial Park in Boston Theatre District.

Strout presented Miss Gordon with a certificate of appreciation from Mayor McCauley.

It commended her for "her outstanding achievements" and "dedication in the area of entertainment."

Brennan presented her with a copy of "Quincy: A Pictorial History" from Charles A. Pearce, president of Quincy Savings Bank.

When Brennan made the presentation, photographers suggested he give the actress and writer a hug and a kiss, and he obliged.

Not to be upstaged, she looked up at Brennan, and with a twinkle in her eye, quipped, "Your nose is cold!"

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Do you know any one who is completely free from worry, fear, self-doubt, self-torment, irritability, unexplained low spirits, nervousness, etc? In the confusion, grief and violence of our times, these are common traits. It is also a tragic fact of life that these traits in certain cases can cause mental disturbances.

Authorities claim at least one out of ten people are in some degree mentally disturbed. They go further. They claim one out of ten people will spend some time in a mental institution. Even if exaggerated and only one out of twenty, thirty or fifty are doomed to such a destiny, it is still far, far too many. Common sense should dictate that all of us must become aware of the urgent need to show more concern for the mentally retarded and mentally ill.

Human understanding of others, prayer for help to avoid individual moral disturbances, and financial help for mental illness programs are all badly needed. Without it, none of us can avert or minimize the tragic and always distressing consequences of mental illness.

Now you can teach your old phone some new tricks.

When the Bell System breaks up on January 1, 1984, a whole new range of possibilities will open up.

That makes it a perfect time for you to re-evaluate your phone service. Because the same old service you've always had isn't necessarily the best for you now.

Choosing a different local calling plan could save you money. Buying phones may be more economical in the long run. And you may be able to save with the new long-distance options, too.

There are a lot of new tricks you can teach your old phone. We'll be sending you more information in upcoming bill inserts, but here's a brief rundown of some of your options now.

Local service

New England Telephone will still be your phone company for local service. But that doesn't mean your local calling plan has to be the same as everyone else's.

If you make a lot of local calls, your best bet is probably Unlimited Service, where a flat monthly fee buys you unlimited calls within your local exchange area.

However, if you don't make many local calls, Measured Service could save you money. We offer different Measured Service plans in different areas, but they all give you the same benefit: the less you call, the less you pay.

Toll calls within your own area code

New England Telephone will still provide you with this service. And give you options to help you cut your calling costs.

We offer options for people who make a lot of toll calls to the same few nearby towns. Choices for people who call a wide variety of toll exchanges. Even plans that let you make two or more hours of toll calls all around your own area code. Different options for different needs. All designed to help you save.

Long-distance calls outside your area code

After the break-up, New England Telephone will continue to give you access to long-distance service. So you can still make and receive long-distance calls. Your present long distance service will continue after January 1. Or you can choose a new long-distance company if you wish. Just check your Yellow Pages for a complete listing, compare rates and services, and make your choice.

Equipment

When it comes to choosing telephones, you have more choices than ever!

If you prefer to lease your phones, simply keep the ones we've provided. After January 1 you'll automatically be leasing them from AT&T.

Want to buy the phone you now have? Contact your New England Telephone business office and they'll tell you how.

What if you'd rather buy your telephone equipment elsewhere? Just check your Yellow Pages for a list of telephone retailers.

To change—or not to change?

The choice is yours. You don't have to make any changes if you don't want to—and you'll barely notice the break-up after January 1.

But now that you have so many different options to help you control your calling costs, it could benefit you to re-think your phone service. Because teaching old phones new tricks could mean your phone bill will take a smaller bite out of your budget.

If you have questions about the changes outlined here, call our special toll-free "Let's Talk" number. It's 1 800 555-5000. Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Or watch for more detailed information in your bill inserts.

Good Shepherd To Hold Pony Express

More than 180 members of The Lutheran Church of The Good Shepherd will become saddlebag-carrying "trail bosses" and "route riders" within the next few weeks in their parish's Pony Express finance campaign.

The Rev. Larry Peterson, pastor, said the program is based on the same concept as the Pony Express of more than a century ago - teamwork.

Dan Conatser, general manager of the campaign, said six leaders of the parish have been designated trail bosses, to supervise the relaying of the saddlebags to each of the parish families on Pony Express "run" routes.

Each saddlebag bears the names of 10 church families on the run route, he said. A family fills in an "estimate of giving" card, seals it in an envelope and inserts it in the saddlebag, which then is hand-carried to another family on the route.

"We decided to use this unique approach because we believe parish finance campaigns should be exciting and enjoyable, in addition to having their serious moments," he said.

"And, many dedicated members of the parish are hesitant to solicit pledges from their friends and neighbors. With this Pony Express program, there are no solicitations and no pledges."

The Rev. Larry Peterson explained that each member is asked to estimate the amount he or she will be able to give to the parish during the coming year.

"Each family makes their decision in the privacy of their home, without any over-the-shoulder 'supervision' of someone from the parish," he said.

He said the Pony Express theme was chosen because of the example set by the highly dedicated riders of the original Pony Express.

"In addition to their personal commitment, the secret of their success lay in their ability to work as a team - each rider dependent on the other to make the relay system work and speed the mail on to its final destination," he said.

Likewise, he said, the success of the parish's finance program depends on the dedication, commitment and teamwork of each member.

"We trust each family to act responsibly in making a decision about the support they will give their parish during the coming year," he said.

'Generous' Theme At Bethany Church Sunday

Stewardship Sunday will be observed Oct. 30, at the 9 and 10 a.m. worship services at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Centre.

"Generous" will be the title of the sermon to be preached by the Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister.

The service will also be broadcast over WJDA, 1300 kc, on Sunday at 11 a.m.

Scriptures readers will be William F. Greene in the chapel, and Clifford Evers, in the sanctuary. The associate minister, the Rev. Joel F. Huntington will assist in leading the worship at both services.

The chancel choir, under the direction of Peter E. Krasinski, organist, will sing, "Rejoice, the Lord is King" by Handel, and "Now Let Us All Praise God and Sing" by George Young.

An Every Member Visitation will be conducted throughout the Bethany parish over the next two weeks, Oct. 30 through Nov. 13. This is a major event in the congregation's life and 70 persons have volunteered to be visitors.

During the worship this Sunday, these 70 persons will be consecrated at the chancel for their special task of visitation.

Goals of the visitation program are: (1) to sit down in the home of every member and friend of Bethany Church and talk over matters of faith and the work and ministry of the parish; (2) to discuss plans for church growth and obtain the names of prospective members; (3) to encourage everyone to support the church through pledged giving and/or the use of offering envelopes; (4) to receive pledges underwriting the proposed 1984 budget; and (5) to encourage persons to contribute to the endowment fund in order to double the church's endowment within the next decade.

A dinner and training session for all the visitors will be held Friday, Oct. 28, 6:30 to 9:15 p.m. at the parish house. The training session will be led by Jack Hill, stewardship consultant of the Massachusetts Conference of the United Church of Christ, and by Pastor Arnold. Comments will also be made by Jean Ross, chairperson of the Finance Committee, and Gilbert Fitzgerald, chairman of the Endowment Committee.

The annual fall meeting of the Metropolitan Boston Association of the United Church of Christ will also be held this Sunday, 3 to 7:30 p.m. at Andover Newton Theological School.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell D. Hodgkins, Sr., and the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. J. William Arnold will attend and represent Bethany Church.

Special All Souls' Day Mass At St. John's

All members of the parish who have died within the past year will be remembered in a special All Souls' Day mass at St.

John the Baptist Church, 44 School St., Quincy Center, Wednesday, Nov. 2, at 7:30 p.m.

The names of the faithful departed will be read in the Church's Prayer of the Faithful at this liturgy, which will be offered by Rev. William R. McCarthy, pastor, and all the other priests of St. John's.

Action - Action

Speaks louder than words or billboards!

• Anselmo's record of Action:

Actively and successfully supported all that would help the education of the children of Quincy. He fought for the renovation of the Squantum School, the Merrymount School, the building of the Vocational-Technical School and the renovation of the North Quincy High School.

Anselmo moved for the introduction of the R.O.T.C. into the School System.

Anselmo supported, long before 766 (law) special classes for special needs students and special classes for talented students.

Anselmo fought to save the nursing program that was being closed at City Hospital, thereby saving the City $560,000 per year by incorporating the program into Quincy Junior College.

Anselmo also moved to introduce Computer Science in the Quincy Vocational-Technical School; being one of the first in the state to do so.

Anselmo successfully fought a long battle to kill the construction of a new High School in the Squantum marshes, thereby saving Quincy taxpayers more millions of dollars than that involved in the General Dynamics tax issue.

Yes Action speaks louder than words or billboards.

Business/Real Estate

Richard Cahill Honored As 'Massachusetts Realtor Of Year'

Richard F. Cahill of Quincy, Executive Vice President of the Jack Conway and Company real estate firm, has been named the "Massachusetts Realtor of the Year".

Cahill was honored with a plaque presented him by John D. Walsh Jr., of Pembroke, State President of the Massachusetts Association of Realtors, during the M.A.R.'s 59th Annual State Convention held recently in Hyannis with a record attendance of more than 700 registration.

Cahill, President of the Quincy-South Shore Board of Realtors, topped a field of 21 other Realtor of the Year candidates selected by their respective Board of Realtors throughout the Commonwealth.

Cahill was introduced at the annual banquet by Realtor Peter Warren of Harvard, 1982 recipient of the distinguished award. Warren noted that Cahill oversees 26 offices in "Conway Country" which have more than 400 sales associates from Boston to Cape Cod. Cahill is also their senior educator for in-service training programs.

Cahill is a general spokesman for the real estate industry and often called upon to comment on current issues or appear for the broadcast media.

A graduate of Archbishop Williams High School, Braintree where he is active annually during "Career Day Expositions", Cahill is a charter trustee for Quincy Junior College from which he was also graduated. He earned his undergraduate degree at Boston University.

Cahill has been active with Survival, Inc., a non-profit agency assisting troubled families on the South Shore. He received a community award for aiding in the purchase of a permanent shelter for battered women and children served by DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) for which he raised the funds to retire the shelter's mortgage. As a community partner, he was instrumental in publicizing the academic enrichment programs for the Quincy-based Beechwood Community Life Center, raising funds and distributing a news supplement to 10,000 subscribers of the Quincy Sun.

Attending the banquet was Cahill's wife Carol. The Cahills make their home on Beale St., Quincy, with their 14-year old daughter, Joan.

Piano Learning Center To Open

The Piano Learning Center, the first of its kind in Massachusetts, will open later this month at 747 East Squantum St., Squantum.

The announcement of the Center's opening was made recently by Mrs. Margot S. Herbert, head of Precision Piano Services, of which the Learning Center is a wholly owned subsidiary.

The Center is using the Baldwin system which features the Baldwin EP100 electronic pianos around which group instruction is relatively simply. The pianos have no moving parts, other than their 88 keys and their mechanical components are simply printed circuits. The teacher and the class members use headsets; the pianos can be silent except through the headsets, if silence is desired.

Group instruction for learners, especially young people, has been found to create an esprit de corps among the students, something that is lacking many times with individual instruction.

New Scandinavian Gift Shop Opens

Scandinavian imports are now available at Elaine's Butik, 52 East Main St., Avon.

The shop, which sells a wide variety of traditional items of wood, glass or straw, cook books and language books, hopes to help those of Scandinavian background to know and enjoy their special heritage as well as introducing others to the universally charming and brightly colored decorative art.

The shop is owned by Elaine Peterson Sawler, a Swedish-American who operated a Scandinavian gift shop for several years in Quincy, and Joan Winters. Together they are business partners.

A third member of the team is Gunnar Peterson, Elaine's 83-year old father, who came from Sweden to settle in Avon in 1924.

While helping with customers, he also advises on Swedish customs and traditions. Many Peterson relatives still live in Sweden, keeping the Swedish-American bonds strong and authentic.

The shop also carries handmade gifts such as stuffed dolls, pillows, wooden items, wrapping paper and cards. Shop hours for the fall are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily; until 9 p.m. on Fridays; and from 1 to 6 p.m. on Sundays.

Visiting Nurse Association Seeks Hospice Volunteers

The Quincy Visiting Nurse Association is starting a Hospice Program for the care of terminally ill patients and is seeking volunteers to assist.

The association will conduct a seven-session training course for volunteers. For further information and registration, contact Janet Mullen at 472-2828 or 472-4591.

Sullivan Asks Ethics Code For Campaign

John J. Sullivan, a candidate for re-election to the School Committee, says he would like all candidates to adopt a code of ethics on political signs and personalities during the remaining days of the campaign.

"I have confined my outdoor advertising to one foot by two foot posters," he said. "These signs are being consistently knocked down and destroyed. It is happening much too often and is too widespread to be mere coincidence."

"Candidates using the large four foot by eight foot panel board type advertising, despite their being somewhat unsightly to the community, appear to be immune from attack."

Sullivan said he also proposes that candidates refrain from indulging in personalities.

"Speaking for myself," he said, "I have always conducted a dignified campaign. Never in my political career have I referred to a fellow candidate in a disrespectful manner."

"I have always held the opposition with a special degree of esteem and have always maintained a high regard for their respective candidates."

"I shall continue to be aloof from any negativism and shall keep a positive direction in my approach to the electorate."

Sullivan said he has been informed that his candidacy has been endorsed by the Norfolk County Labor Council, the Greater Boston Building Trades Council, the National Association of Government Employees, the International Brotherhood of Police Officer and the Montclair Men's Club.

Toland Presses For 'The Ride' In Quincy

City Councillor Patricia Toland met last week with representatives of AID (The Association of Individuals with Disabilities) to discuss "The Ride," an MBTA program of transportation for the disabled.

The city is petitioning the MBTA to extend "The Ride" into Quincy.

"It will provide door-to-door transportation at a nominal cost for any person unable to use public transportation because of medical or mobility problems," said Toland.

"I see it as a great asset to the whole community. It makes medical treatment easier and socializing possible for many previously housebound individuals."

Toland has solicited the support of the Quincy legislative delegation and urged those with disabilities to show their interest in "The Ride" by writing to:

James T. O'Leary, general manager, MBTA, 50 High St., Boston 02110; or Thomas O'Brien, special needs transportation,

Santoro Sees Little Time Spent On Issues

Frank Santoro, a candidate for the School Committee, says that, after attending School Committee meetings for the past three years, he has become discouraged at how little time is spent on important issues facing education in the classroom. This induced him to run for the Committee, he told a gathering of friends and supporters at the home of his campaign treasurer, Coleman Flaherty. "Because of Proposition 2½," he said, "budget restraints have created important decisions concerning education. "With not much promise of additional funds, time has come for the School Committee to focus on being more efficient in its operation and see that money is spent in the most important place, the classroom."

Santoro listed among the other major goals in his campaign:

— "Setting up a fair, working evaluation system for both teachers and administrators so that the incompetent are replaced and the competent are rewarded. Seniority should not be the only criteria for rehiring.

— "An enforced student centered learning system and citywide curriculum so that children across the city receive consistent educational objectives."

— "Encouragement of more parental involvement so that the community has a louder voice in its school operations. A good start may be to hold School Committee meetings in different communities through the year to hear the local concerns."

"Education no longer has carte blanche spending," said Santoro.

"It is time for the School Committee to see that the School Department runs efficiently with a devoted, competent staff and with larger input from the community," he said.

Norfolk County and the south shore have an economic vitality, with fresh ideas, greater opportunities, and a vision that looks beyond this area to all of New England.

Helping to bring this vision to life is a bank with over a half century tradition of service. A bank that is proud of the role it has played in the south shore's past and confident of the role it will play in its future. A bank that has expanded its resources, broadened its capabilities, and chosen a new name. Hancock Bank is now Bank of New England-Hancock.

We've joined forces with one of the country's leading financial institutions to better serve the people and businesses of this region. We will, of course, continue to provide our customary personal, friendly service at our sixteen conveniently located offices in Norfolk County and at our new office in Plymouth County. ## $780, 462 In New Construction through construction and three more added through alteration.

The department collected $6,597 in fees and $348 from public safety inspections.

Quincy Business Leaders Optimistic On Economic Outlook

A positive outlook for business was voiced by a number of Quincy businessmen for the year ahead at a recent meeting of the Board of directors of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

According to the chamber's executive vice president, some 35 board members attended the session which is now an annual event.

"The chamber board is a good cross-section of business on the South Shore," said Ronald E. Zooleck, executive vice president of the 1,400 member business organization. "Hearing our directors report of the business climate provides us with an excellent business barometer."

Taking part were a number of Quincy businessmen, including William Austin, president of the South Shore Bank. He pointed out that three basic conditions affect the banks operations - the state of the economy, banking regulators and the bank's ability to respond to customer needs.

With the announcement of his firm's move into the development of hydropower at sites throughout New England, Peter O'Connell of OBC, Inc. indicated his company expects to do $250 million of business in this field over the next few years.

"We like it because it is an American business," O'Connell told the directors. "The money stays here in this country."

Reporting that the steel industry has had the worst year in its history, James Stearns, executive vice president of L. Antonelli Iron Work, said that six new jobs in the last three weeks suggest that improvement is in sight.

Stearns said that Antonelli's new crane rental division is going well and that four new cranes have been added to the company's fleet.

"The cost of materials are still a serious problem in the publishing business," said Quincy Sun publisher Henry Bosworth. "Our printing is way up over last year," he added.

Bosworth told the directors that his Quincy

Cable News would inaugurate a regular evening news program on The Quincy Sun's Ch. 8 on Quincy Cablesystems. "It's going to be our version of 'Cet and Natalie,'" said Bosworth. "We're going to make it possible for Quincy residents to see the news as it happens."

Larry Welch, treasurer of Pneumatic Scale Corp. said the company's backlog is growing and that 1984 should be "a good year" for the local manufacturer of packaging machinery.

"Our biggest problem is foreign competition in foreign markets," said Welch. "Lower labor costs and government subsidies of our competitors make competition difficult."

The president of the Quincy-based Commercial Union Life Insurance Company said his company has doubled its premium income and assets over the last three-and-one-half years.

"Prop. 2½ has had a positive effect on our business," said marketing manager Thomas Galvin of Boston Gear. He reported on an innovative labor contract which allows the firm to hire new employees at about $3 an hour less than present employee rates. Galvin feels that both Prop. 2½ and the wage contract will allow the company to remain competitive. He indicated that Boston Gear had moved some of its facilities to the Sun Belt several years ago in order to reduce operating costs.

Summarizing the reports by the directors, Zooleck indicated that "in spite of the recession of the last two years, it appears that Quincy and South Shore businesses are strong and ready to move ahead in 1984."

Major Improvement in City Finances

In 1982 - 1983

City finances showed a marked improvement during the first two years of the McCauley administration. During the preceding six fiscal years (1976 - 1981) revenue deficits totaled $13,900,000. Short term borrowing skyrocketed during this period, reaching 79% of total taxes collected in fiscal 1982.

However, revenue deficits were eliminated in fiscal 1982 and 1983 and short term borrowing was reduced to 51.8% of the tax levy in 1983.

During the first 21 months of the McCauley administration over $2,150,000 in delinquent property taxes and interest were collected. During the same period of time, $9,845,000 in city debt was retired.

Montclair Men's Club Urges 'No' Vote On Sale

The Montclair Men's Club is urging residents of Quincy to vote "No" on the question of whether or not Norfolk County should sell the Wollaston Recreational Facility.

The (non-binding) referendum will be on the Nov. 8 city election ballot. The 27 towns in the county have already voted 37,855 to 31,028 to sell the facility so Quincy's vote is critical.

The area, which includes an 18-hole golf course, 11 lighted tennis courts, a children's play area, a family picnic area and a function room is one of the few remaining open space sections of Quincy.

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey, chairman of a committee to retain the facility, said he will welcome calls of assistance at his State House office, 722-2470 or his home, 328-0900.

Quincy Children Need Home

Editor's Note: In an effort to address the need for foster homes in Quincy, space will be reserved periodically to describe a child or a sibling group in need of a foster home. This description does not describe a particular child or sibling group, but is representative of many children in our area who are presently waiting for foster homes.

Joe is 8-years-old, and has begun third grade in Quincy this year.

His younger sister Jill, who is 4-years-old, is in daycare five mornings a week. Unfortunately, three months ago, the children's mother was severely disabled in a car accident.

The children's father abandoned the family when Jill was less than a year old. It does not appear that their mother will be able to care for the children for several months. The children are living temporarily with their maternal grandmother, who is 79 years-old, until they can be placed in a foster home.

Joe has dark brown hair and big dark eyes. He has shown an interest in sports, and with his "Big Brother" has done a lot of swimming this summer, as well as having gone to several Red Sox games. Joe appears to have difficulty in school but he tries hard.

His younger sister Jill is a quiet girl. She is small for her age but does not appear to be developmentally delayed. Jill likes to go to day care, and has a few special playmates. Her favorite activity is playing in the doll corner. The daycare center is concerned about Jill missing her mother. She seems to cry more frequently and since the accident, has talked about her mother every day.

The doctors estimate it will be six to nine months before the mother is able to care for her children again. If you are able to help out children like Joe and Jill, please call the Foster Home Recruiter, Jennifer Holme, at the Department of Social Services, 773-8920. She is eager to talk to you about foster parenting.

Kennedy Hails Rise In School Writing Skills

Christopher F. Kennedy, a candidate for re-election to the School Committee, says one of the goals of his two previous terms has been the improvement of student writing skills.

As a result, he said, "in the Proposition 2½ era, the writing program of the Quincy Public Schools stands out as a shining light."

"There has been wide spread criticism locally and across the nation of high school graduates and their inability to write clear and cohesive statements and reports," said Kennedy.

"Television and the substitution in the College Board Examinations of objectives instead of written tests on English composition have contributed heavily to the demise of writing skills."

"I am pleased to state that during my eight years on the School Committee the Quincy schools have instituted new programs in writing at all levels from kindergarten through high school.

"The students' writing is carefully monitored and they are shown errors and omissions and they are complimented for good writing."

Presidents Need Lightning At Fitchburg

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy's football team, still looking for some scoring punch, found New Bedford's hex was still alive last Saturday as the Whalers handed the Presidents a 17-0 defeat, dropping Quincy's record to 2-4.

It was the third year in a row that New Bedford had defeated or tied Quincy.

The Presidents hope lightning will strike twice Saturday when they go to Fitchburg to face the undefeated Central Massachusetts power, Fitchburg is 6-0.

Last season came to Quincy unbeaten as the top-rated Central Mass. team and the Presidents pulled a 14-6 upset, one of their biggest wins in a 7-3 season.

"I am disappointed at today's loss but I feel better about the game than I did last week (a 15-6 loss to Newton North)," Quincy coach Bill Mayer said. "We just didn't show anything against Newton but today the boys played a good game despite the loss. We moved the ball well but not well enough. We have to start putting some points on the scoreboard."

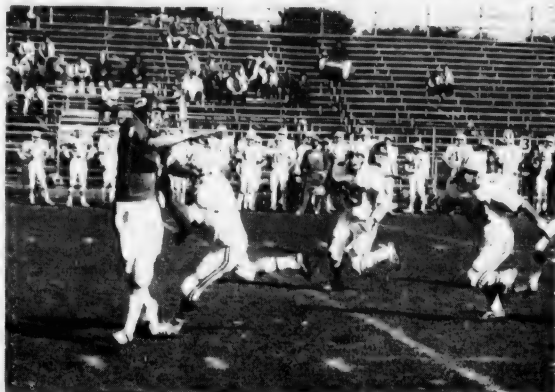

"When they scored their second touchdown I called the boys together and told them not to be down on themselves. We made a fine goal line stand and had them stopped but when they recovered their own fumble and scored on fourth down, it was tough to take."

Quincy moved the ball well on several occasions but lost the ball twice on fumbles and New Bedford also came up with two key pass interceptions.

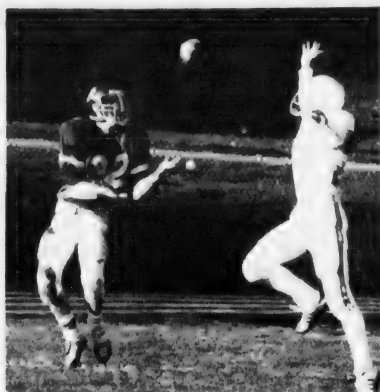

The Whalers, led by hard-running Dave DiPina, who scored his eighth touchdown of the year, and Brendan MacDonald, who had two outstanding pass receptions and scored 11 points, had 120 net yards on the ground to 79 for Quincy. Quincy quarterback Bill Shaughnessy completed nine of 21 passes for 92 yards but had two intercepted, while New Bedford's John Bennett had only three of 16 for 41 yards and an interception, but two other long strikes were dropped, one of which would have been a sure touchdown. New Bedford had 11 first downs and Quincy 10.

"John Cacciatore, who weighs only 155, was really outstanding again on defense," Mayer said. "Austin O'Malley, Rich Ready (back from an injury), Walter Rollins, Chris Conner and Joe Cullen also played well on defense. Sully (Defense coach John Sullivan) has done a great job."

Cullen and little Mike Notarangelo ran well and Conti, who shares the quarterbacking chores with Shaughnessy but who played halfback last week,

CHRIS SHAUGHNESSY of Quincy gets set to catch pass in end zone from his brother Billy in last week's loss to New Bedford. He made the catch but was out-of bounds.

QUINCY SCORING

|                | TD | PAT | Pts. |
|----------------|----|-----|------|
| Notarangelo    | 2  | 0   | 12   |
| W. Shaughnessy | 1  | 2   | 8    |
| Keefe          | 1  | 0   | 6    |
| Cullen         | 1  | 0   | 6    |
| Tucker         | 1  | 0   | 6    |
| Frazier        | 0  | 1   | 1    |
| Conti          | 0  | 1   | 1    |

had three pass receptions. Daron Tucker and Notarangelo had two each and Cullen and Chris Shaughnessy one apiece.

Rich Pettinelli and Gary Minassian, in their first games in the offensive line, turned in excellent performances and Steve Perfetuo played well at center.

Quincy dominated the opening quarter. After being stopped on their first possession the Presidents got the ball back when Cacciatore intercepted a pass on New Bedford's 45. Shaughnessy hit Tucker for 13 yards but running a play for no gain and two incompletions stopped Quincy and Conti punted out on the Whalers 16.

Quincy held and, following a punt, drove to the Whaler's 20, clicking off three first downs. Passes to Conti for 11 yards, Notarangelo for eight and Conti again for 13 led the march. With fourth down and 10, Quincy tried a screen pass that was intercepted for only yard to Notarangelo and New Bedford took over on its 19.

Quincy held again and New Bedford's punt went only to the Whalers' 35.

Shaughnessy threw a bomb which was intercepted by Preston Perry in the end zone.

Here the Whalers drove 80 yards, eating up 6:16 on the clock, to score. DePina finished off the march, which saw New Bedford rack up four first downs, by scoring from the three.

MacDonald kicked the extra point.

Quincy had a great chance to tie or take the lead in the third quarter after taking the kickoff. The Presidents picked up five first downs as it went downfield and had a first down on the New Bedford eight. Three running plays netted only four yards and Bill Shaughnessy's pass to brother Chris bounced off his fingertips.

A Quincy fumble was recovered by New Bedford's Matt Maillet on his 37 and the Whalers drove 63 yards in 12 plays to score again.

Quincy staged a fine goal line stand but with fourth down and inches to go for a score, the Whalers fumbled and it looked as if Quincy was out of the woods but the ball bounced into MacDonald's hands and he scored from the five and again kicked the point.

MacDonald finished off the scoring with a 23-yard field goal with 1:03 to play.

Quincy appeared to have averted a shutout on the final play of the game when the Shaughnessy brothers teamed up for what looked like a TD pass but Chris was out of the end zone when he made the reception.

North Wins Big One But Then Has Streak Snapped

The North Quincy boys' soccer team had a seven-game unbeaten streak snapped by Cambridge Rindge and Latin last Friday after the Raiders had captured its biggest win of the year over Suburban League leader Newton North.

But, with a 7-2-3 record, North appears headed for an Eastern Mass. tournament berth. Paul Gregoi's Raiders, needing seven points in five games to qualify, played Quincy Tuesday, will play at Bishop Stang Friday in the makeup of a rained-out game and will host Waltham next Tuesday at 3 O'clock.

After playing one of their better games in up setting Newton North, 1-0, North, playing its sixth road game in the last seven, played uninspired ball against Cambridge.

Cambridge scored two goals in the opening 10 minutes of the game and held on for a 2-0 victory.

The Raiders could not generate any offense on the cold and windy day and only Mark Hubbard's sharp goaltending and inspired defense by Mike Cocce, playing only in his second game since suffering a broken collar bone in pre-season, kept Cambridge from scoring again.

The third quarter saw more of the same as only Mark Scanlon and Dave Blaton showed much life up front.

North made some changes in the final quarter as Mike Walsh and Craig Orrock were inserted at wings and North began to show some offense. David Brown also began exerting pressure as the Raiders played their best with eight minutes left. Orrock made a fine cross to Scanlon, whose head shot went wide and Walsh, hustling all day, nearly scored from 12 yards out but his shot went wide. Scanlon had another chance late but as he broke by the last defender, he was tripped. North's indirect kick try went high and wide.

North played a tremendous game both ways in its win over Newton, ranked 10th in the Div. 1 coaches' poll. The Tigers had topped the Raiders, 3-1, earlier.

North didn't have many good scoring chances in the first half but the defense was outstanding with Jaime Paz, Pat Marcham and Eric Roukey controlling the back line to defense superbly. Hubbard, the Suburban League's top goalie, made a fine save on a high rising shot.

North, with all its injured players back for the first time all season, got a scare in the first quarter when Nunzio Carbone went out with knee injury but he was able to return.

Brown made a fine run with the ball midway through the quarter but his shot from 25 yards out went wide.

Momentum shifted to the Raiders in the fourth quarter as Newton appeared to tire. Terry Stark, John Joseph and Steve Golden took control of midfield, beating the home team to the ball many times.

Seven minutes into the quarter Carbone hit a rocket to the top corner of the goal but goalie Dave Vento made an excellent save. A minute later Walsh crossed to Chris Archer but again Vento made a big save.

North was not to be denied a third time as Cocce, in his first game, took a direct kick from 45 yards out.

Scanlon, who had his first two goals in the previous game against Brookline, deflected the ball past the outstretched arms of Vento for his third goal and the game winner.

Hubbard took control of the game in the final minutes with two great saves as he recorded his fifth shut-out.

Again the Raider defense rose to the challenge as Newton boasted the league's two top scorers in Peter Bourland and Steve Kasha. Stark and Cocce marked both players and limited the pair to just three shots on goal.

"I was ecstatic over our win at Newton," Gregoi said. "The boys played well with a lot of heart and really earned the big victory. Against Cambridge we just played uninspired soccer until the final eight minutes. However, we were due for a bad one after having so many great games in the last several weeks. Remember that we hadn't lost since Sept. 21. Our journey chances are bright and this team really believes in itself."

Crowley Leads N. Quincy Romp Over Belmont

Joe Crowley, the 142-pound junior halfback, ran for two touchdowns and caught a pass for a third as the North Quincy High School football team romped over Belmont, 31-7. The Raiders outgained the opposition by 350 yards to 47 on the ground and in the air.

Crowley scored the first North touchdown in the first five minutes, going 17 yards through right tackle. Then he caught a pass from quarterback Ed Gilbody on the Belmont 11 and fumbled into the end zone where end Charlie Norton fell on the ball.

Crowley caught another Gilbody pass for a touchdown in the second period and in the third he took the final handoff on a double reverse and raced 47 yards for the score. He also netted North's only conversion after touchdown, bucking over from the two.

The North Quincy lineup included: Norton, Rizzo, Mcleedy, ends; Rielly, Penzo, J. Baker, Crapanuk, Menslage, tackles; Sargent, B. Fallon, Wojciechowski, J. Fallon, Harding, Taves, D. Baker, Gibbons, Lyons, DiStephano, centers.

The two teams were neck and neck for the Quincy Little League football title.

The Mayo's lineup included: D'Allessandro, Mahar, Dwyer, ends; Paiten, Conley, tackles; Malvesti, Reardon, Coughlin, guards; Travis, Walker, centers; Mayo, Corbin, Grutchfield, Vient, Balducci, Amiraull, backs.

Raiders Seek Offense Against Brookline

If North Quincy football coach Ken McPhee is talking to himself these days, he can't be blamed.

The Raiders, following a heart-breaking last second loss to Weymouth North, outplayed strong Waltham (3-0 in the Suburban League and 5-1 overall) last week but wasted several golden opportunities as they dropped a 12-7 decision, lowering their record to 2-4.

McPhee hopes his team will generate some offense Saturday when the Raiders host Brookline in a 1:30 p.m. Suburban League game at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Brookline has its best team in several years and won its last two games to even its record at 3-3. Last week it defeated Madison Park, 21-6.

"This is getting frustrating," McPhee said. "These kids have to get motivated. People keep telling us what a good team we have, but we aren't that good. A good team doesn't waste scoring chances like we have. When you score only seven points you don't deserve to win."

"We never should have lost to Weymouth after making a tremendous comeback to take the lead with 29 seconds left, and we should have beaten Waltham. The defense certainly did its part but we

"We have to start scoring some points. We have four games left and I told the boys they have a chance to finish at 6-4 but they have to have more motivation."

North had three drives stopped by pass interceptions at Waltham and another sure touchdown went out the window when a receiver dropped a perfect pass from Steve Hogan with a clear field in front of him.

North had 81 yards on the ground but no one was able to break loose and Jim McNamara was the leading ground gainer with 26 yards. He and Mike Gill, both of whom played excellent two-way games, were the leading ground gainers. Waltham had 146 yards rushing.

Hogan completed six of 17 passes for 76 yards but the three interceptions were costly. Waltham had 85 yards on five for 10 and had no interceptions.

Waltham had 11 first downs and North Quincy 10.

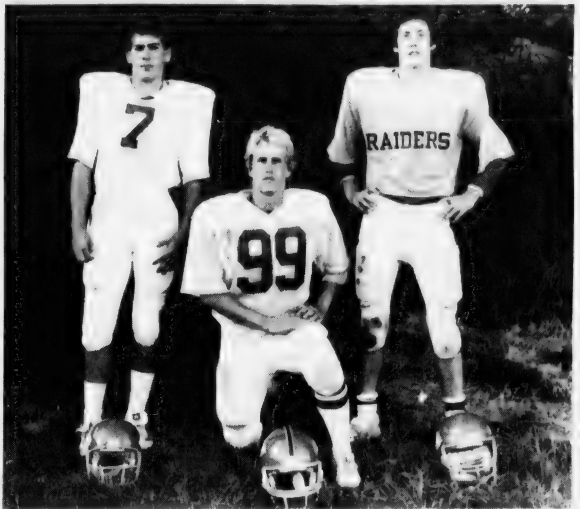

The defense couldn't be blamed and had one outstanding goal line stand. "Our defense blew them out in the second half," said defensive coordinator Jack Raymer. "Except for their two scoring drives, we completely bottled them up."

Raymer had good words for McNamara, Gill, Mike Barry, Kevin Kelly (back from an injury), Steve Waltham took an early 6-0 lead when Scott Giusti scored on a 13-yard run.

North came back in the Waltham scored the winning TD in the third quarter when Steve Giusti scored from the four.

North had a good drive going in the final quarter but another pass interception stopped it.

Raiderettes In League Championships

The young North Quincy girls' cross-country team, with only one senior, finished its Suburban League season Tuesday at Newton as it sought its second straight undefeated Suburban League championship.

The Raiderettes will face undefeated Boston Latin, the favorite to win the Dual County League title, Friday.

at Franklin Park and next Tuesday will run in the league championships at Franklin Park at 2:30.

Lou Tozzi's North girls shut out Quincy, 15-47, last week to improve their record to 5-0. It was their 21st successive league victory.

The Raiderettes took the first seven places for the shutout.

Sophomore Mary Anne Kelleher continued her outstanding running and won the meet in 13:51. Freshman Patricia Barrett took second in 14:05, only five seconds slower than her personal best.

The Raiderettes' Tracy Corrigan was third, Diane Lindenfeller fourth, Ann Toland fifth, Tricia Leary sixth and Sharon Barrett seventh.

John Franceschini's First Ladies might have averted a shutout if their top runner Joan Sullivan, hadn't pulled a muscle midway through the race and had to pull out.

Quincy's Julie Coste finished eighth, Sharon Steen ninth and Kristine Mul-lancy 10th.

"These kids are very young and inexperienced but very good," said Tozzi. "We haven't really been tested yet. The closest meet was against Cambridge and was the key meet for us."

"We are very young," said Franceschini, whose team has only one victory. "We're a little disappointed, but we ran well. It didn't help to lose Joanie but we'll be there. We faced a really great team."

The Quincy girls finish their regular season Friday when they host Newton North.

Barrett Has 55% Pass Mark

Although Curry College's outstanding freshman quarterback, Bob Barrett of Quincy, had a rough day last week in a 34-12 loss to Bridgewater State College, he has had a sensational season for the Colonials, who fell to 2-4 after last week's loss.

Barrett, who played his high school ball at Cathedral High in Boston, had two passes intercepted last week, both setting up Bridgewater State touchdowns.

Barrett has a 55 per cent pass completion mark, has passed for over 1000 yards and three touchdowns.

For his winning effort (14 of 24 for 292 yards) against Western New England two weeks ago, he was designated Co-Rookie of the Week by the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference. He also scored the first touchdown on a quarterback sneak.

His favorite receiver, Mike Blau of Sharon, second leading receiver in the conference, was once again his top target in that game, catching six passes for 101 yards.

Sophomore Mike Donovan of Quincy/accounted for two points in that game when he tackled the Western New England quarterback in the end zone for a safety.

Quincy Girls Extend Win Streak

The Quincy girls volleyball team extended its amazing streak last week with three victories to improve its record to 11-0. In the process the First Ladies have not lost a game.

Quincy will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday, next Monday will host North Quincy at 3:30 and next Wednesday will finish the regular season at Newton South.

Last week the Quincy girls faced Boston Latin, a team which had come close to knocking them out of last year's tournament and rose to the occasion to top Latin, 2-0 (15-9, 15-4).

Co-Capt. Christine Gallery led the offense while sophomore Marlo LeVangie sparked the defense.

The First Ladies then went to Waltham where they won again, 2-0 (15-7, 15-1) Beth Veneto played an outstanding defense game while Co-Capt. Gallery and Susan Beven owned the offense and Karen Marnell and Colleen Dunn led the setting.

Quincy also swept Brookline for its 11th victory, 15-2, 15-6.

The Brookline squad will not forget the combination of Dunn and Beven. Dunn served 18 times in the two games, scoring nine points on her serve alone. At the same time she set several balls to Beven, who spiked nine balls with such force the Brookline girls never saw them.

Quincy's junior varsity is also 11-0 and has lost just one game to Boston Latin. The jayvees swept Latin, 15-4, 15-0, in their second meeting.

Pam Austin and Chrissy Zupkowska led the second game, serving 10 of the 15 points, while Donna McLoughlin set the offense.

Quincy topped Waltham, 15-1, 15-3, as Stephanie LeVangie, Karen Eames and Darline Derbes dominated the offense, hitting and setting. Susan Parry and Zupkowska did the serving and Terry Dunn sparked on defense.

The junior varsity also defeated Brookline, 15-2, 15-5, as freshman Lilybeth Mandane made her debut, serving and passing well. Parry had an excellent offensive game along with Leanne Dondero, Lauren Standing and Austin. Ginny Duggan led the serving.

North Girls Lose To Cambridge, Come Back To Defeat Waltham

After losing a tough 87.5-84.5 decision to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, the North Quincy girls' swim team bounced back Friday to defeat Waltham for the first time ever 101-70, making its record 4-5.

Bill Walker's Raiderettes will face Quincy Friday night at 6:30 at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool in the final regular season meet.

Nee was second and Killian third in the 100 freestyle, Michelle Casey second and Krantz third in the 100 backstroke, Jean Boudreau third in the 100 breaststroke, and Kathi Koski (diving) and Marine Elena Dawson (butterfly) also scored.

At Cambridge the Raiderettes lost the first event, the medley relay, which put them 10 points behind but many girls swam well throughout the meet and the team had the chance to win it all in the last event, the freestyle relay. North needed a first and third to win but could only manage first place and fell short by three points.

Burke won the 500 freestyle and took second in the 200 freestyle, Quintiliani took second in the 500 freestyle and third in the 200 freestyle, King won the 100 butterfly and took third in the 200 individual medley, Nee took second in the 50 freestyle and third in the 100 freestyle, Traficante won the 50 freestyle and took second in the 100 freestyle and Killian won the diving.

Panthers, Apaches Romp

The Quincy Point Panthers and North Quincy Apaches continue to dominate the Quincy Youth Football League, the Panthers leading at 6-0 and the Apaches right behind at 5-1.

Last Sunday the Panthers rolled over the Squantum Sailors, 29-0, while the Apaches romped over the Houghs Neck Manets, 28-0.

Next Sunday the Panthers and Apaches face each other for the second time at 2:30 at Veterans Memorial Stadium, while the Manets and W. Quincy Elks meet at 1.

With seconds remaining in the first quarter, the Panthers took over on the Sailors' 28 following a fake punt attempt by the Sailors. Quarterback Dan Overby bootlegged to the left and was stopped at the 15 to end the quarter. On the first play of the second quarter Bobby Roche hauled in a Dan Overby pass for the first score. John Pennellatore, with Overby holding, kicked the extra point.

Following Frank Ienello's 42-yard second half punt, the Sailors fumbled on the second play, the Panthers recovering deep in Sailor territory. Three plays later Roche carried to the one where he was stopped by Kevin McDonough. On second down Tim Brillo went up the middle for the TD. Overby rushed for the two-point conversion.

On the third play after the kickoff, the Sailors fumbled again and John Caporale recovered. The Panthers then handed the ball back when they fumbled on a reverse. Again the Sailors fumbled and Joe Taylor recovered for the Panthers, who scored on the first play on a pass to Taylor. Overby pitched out to E. J. Hartnett, who added the two points.

The Sailors were stopped cold after the kickoff and the Panthers took over on the Sailor 18. Vin Digiacomo carried to the one and Brillo passed to Caporale for the final touchdown.

The Panthers kicked off and the Sailors were stopped deep in their own territory when Tommy Mayo sacked the quarterback on the 13. The Panthers took over, Bobby Crespi carried to the eight with one second remaining and Joe Russell was stopped at the five as the game ended.

The Panthers' junior varsity edged the Sailors, 20-16.

Brian Durgin gave the Apaches the lead on the first play of the game when he ran 41 yards for a touchdown and Michael Shields added the two point conversion on a pass from Joe Mulvey.

Elks Present Barbecue Grill To Happy Acres Camp

The exalted ruler of the Quincy Lodge of Elks, Francis (Bud) Morrell, recently presented a propane barbecue grill to the Quincy Recreation Department's Happy Acres Day Camp for special needs children on behalf of the Elks.

This donation was made to the camp which is celebrating its 20th year, in memory of William F. Ryan, the founder of Happy Acres and Quincy's first recreation director. Ryan was for many years chairman of the Quincy Lodge's Youth Activity Committee, and Elk of the year.

In accepting the presentation for the Recreation Department, Barry J. Welch, director of recreation pointed out that this was part of a continuing support of the recreation programs by the Quincy Lodge of Elks. "In the past years, the Elks' generosity and support has provided aquatic school scholarships, outboard motors, row boats and annually hosts the Elks National Foul Shooting contest. Many countless residents of Quincy have enjoyed worthwhile recreation programs because of the Elks' commitment to our activities," Welch said.

"The latest donation of the barbecue grill will make the summer experience at Happy Acres more enjoyable for these most deserving of youngsters."

Happy Acres Day Camp provides recreation programs for 50 of Quincy's handicapped children and adults during July and August, and is located in Merrymount Park.

CAR VS KIDS

It's a chilling fact that more children are killed by accidents than by all the major childhood diseases combined. The combination of cars and kids is a dangerous one causing many of these accidents - usually serious ones. That makes it vital to observe the following safety precautions. After all, it could mean your child's life.

Rigidly enforce rules prohibiting young children from playing in streets, running out from between parked cars and crossing at unguarded intersections.

Don't allow children to play in, around or under parked cars. Before getting in your car to back out of your driveway or parking spot, check carefully that all is clear behind you.

In the car, always buckle children into seat belts and remember that they'll be safest riding in the back seat. Never leave a child alone in a car - it's easier than you think to disengage the brake or start the engine.

Halloween Special On Cable Talk

A Halloween special was cable cast on Quincy Community Channel 3 Television Wednesday at 7 p.m. and will be repeated to-night Thursday at 9 p.m., and Friday and Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

The Cable Talk program deals with various aspects of Halloween and its customs. Kay Borek and Edna Diane and Dale Solanders are featured in the half hour program designed to be of interest to children.

Officer Anthony Pollara of the Quincy Police Department Traffic Division is interviewed during the program and offers safety tips for parents and youngsters who may be making trick or treat rounds on Halloween. The program is entitled Hello Halloween and traces the origin of the special occasion, how jack-o-lanterns and costumes became associated with Halloween, and how to carve a pumpkin. There is also a demonstration on how to cook pumpkin seeds.

Kay Borek and the Solanders pay a visit to Regina's Tea Shop for a taro card reading and a discussion about psychics and good witches. There is even a scene at the local pumpkin patch and a local cemetery to complete the Halloween special.

The program is being repeated four times at early hours in order to give children an opportunity to learn more about Halloween as well as to receive some safety tips from Pollara.

Cable Talk is a regular weekly public affairs program presented on Quincy Community Television by an all volunteer workshop production crew of Quincy residents.

Cable delivers. Just ask the Rabbit.

In high school, John Baldassini was so quick on the athletic field that he was labeled the Rabbit. That was 42 years ago. Today the Rabbit still gets around. Delivering mail on the same 3½ mile route in North Quincy to over 375 homes. The name has stuck and so has his love of sports.

So it was only natural that when cable came to Quincy that the Rabbit ran to cable. "It brings me all the sports I could possibly want. Twenty-four hours a day. Celtic games and title fights that aren't on regular TV. Games from as far away as Atlanta and as close as Quincy. There are even two channels with nothing but sports.

In fact, I became so involved with the programs that we had cable installed for my wife. Then my son and daughter. Everyone found something that they liked. It seemed a shame not to be able to see them all."

So, the Baldassini's became a three-cable family. The Eyes of Quincy show them their neighborhood, show them the world. Sports, health, music, films, you name it. The Rabbit and his family have it. It's just a hop, skip and a jump away.

McCauley Backs Anderson In Xway Delay Threats

By TOM HENSHAW

"If you don't stand up and let them know what your problems are," said Mayor Francis X. McCauley, "you never get them solved."

He added that he supports what Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson is trying to do by threatening to block reconstruction of the Southeast Expressway until certain city problems are corrected.

"Paul is simply trying to reinforce our position," said the Mayor. "I'm sure the matter will be worked out." The State Department of Public Works has been planning for the past 10 years to redo the Expressway in West Quincy. The $65 million project is scheduled to start in March and continue for two years.

This week it was disclosed that Anderson has threatened to hold up the work unless certain improvements are made that would reduce the flooding problems in the Cross, Ballou and Stedman Sts. area.

He said he also wants direct access from the Expressway to the West Quincy landfill, elimination of a hazardous crossover in East Milton and an added exit in Neponset from the northbound lanes.

He could do it by demanding a full-scale environmental impact study.

State officials have called Anderson's demands "extortion."

"Paul and I have discussed the problems that residents of West Quincy have," said McCauley. "I suspect what he is asking would minimize the problems of those residents."

"A few weeks ago I requested the state to take action necessary to protect our interest in the traffic situation."

Morrissey Seeks Better T Service To NQ, Wollaston

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey has asked the MBTA to turn every third or fourth Red Line train at Quincy Center instead of Braintree to make room for passengers getting on at Wollaston and North Quincy.

"At present," said Morrissey in a letter to T Gen. Mgr. James O'Leary, "the passengers waiting at Wollaston and North Quincy must sometimes let two or three trains go by before they can squeeze onto one."

"Turning the trains occasionally at Quincy Center should give the passengers in Wollaston and North Quincy a better chance of getting on less crowded trains."

"This would also shorten the run and ultimately increase the number of runs each of these trains could make during rush hour."

Morrissey said he has also requested that the South Shore Legislative Caucus invited representatives of the MBTA to explain Red Line problems at the next meeting of the Caucus.

Clothing Taken

Clothing valued at $650 was reported stolen by Ann Leary of Hanover Saturday from her Datsun while it was parked at the North Quincy MBTA station.

2 Quincy Students Back Reagan On Grenada

PAMELA LALL

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Across the country, President Ronald Reagan has received mixed reaction to the invasion of Grenada.

But here in Quincy, there are two medical students who are 100 per cent behind Reagan's actions and credit him with saving their lives.

Pamela Lall, 24, and Brian Gilfeather, 26, were among students at St. George's Medical School when the Caribbean island was invaded.

Now safely back in Quincy, they credit the president's action with saving them from a life threatening situation, and praise the military for its courage.

"There's no way we could have gotten out otherwise," said Miss Lall, daughter of Benjamin and Padmabati Lall of Newbury Ave.

"We were rapidly running out of food and water, and we would have just died without them."

A freshman, she was living in a dormitory next to the air strip where much of the fighting took place.

"There was gun fire five feet outside the door that Tuesday morning before the Americans landed," said Miss Lall.

"It was ironic, in between the gunfire, you could hear the birds singing."

"I was never so scared to death."

"Then we saw (an American) soldier at the door and we started cheering. It was such a relief."

A few days later, she and other students were on the first Air Force plane off the island.

Later, she was greeted at Logan Airport by her aunt and uncle, Joy and Joyful Ellis of Quincy.

"I was speechless. I didn't think I would ever make it," she said.

Gilfeather, son of John and Barbara Gilfeather of W. Elm Ave., was so grateful to be home that he sent President Reagan a telegram

Gillis Predicts 40%

Small Voter Turnout Seen In Election

A small voter turnout is expected next Tuesday in a municipal election that has aroused little passion and not much more interest.

City Clerk John Gillis, who has been observing elections for the past 30 years, predicted that only some 40 per cent of the city's 47,226 registered voters will show up at the polls.

Two years ago, with a mayor's fight and close contests among a full slate of candidates for councillor at large and the School Committee, the voter turnout was nearly 63 per cent.

"Unless there is a mayor's fight and contests for ward councillors, the turnout will be small," said Gillis. "You have to have interest in the wards to get a good turnout."

The most promising race, which pitted Ward 6 Councillor Joanne Condon against School Committee Vice Chairwoman Mary Collins for that council seat, was wiped out when Collins withdrew for health reasons.

The big contest remaining is for School Committee where three young challengers are seeking the seats now held by Frank Anselmo, John J. Sullivan and Christopher Kennedy.

The newcomers are William Arienti, Stephen Durkin and Frank C. Santoro.

Adding spice to that election is the fact that Sullivan and Anselmo both were beaten in 1981 and 1977 respectively but were returned to the committee when other members moved on before their terms expired.

The three City Councillors at large — Richard J. Koch Jr., Joseph J. LaRaia and Patricia M. Toland — all are seeking reelection.

They are opposed by Ronald P. Iacobucci.

Outside of Ward 6, where Collins' name is still on the ballot, the only ward councillor fight is in Ward 5 where the incumbent, Stephen J. McGrath, is opposed by newcomer John M. Dunlea.

The lone referendum question on the ballot involving the proposed sale of the Wollaston Recreational Facilities has excited some interest in North Quincy but little elsewhere.

The other 27 towns in Norfolk County have already voted 37,855 to 31,028 in favor of selling the facility so a margin of better than 6:827 in needed in Quincy to retain it.

The referendum, however, is non-binding.

A referendum that would have been guaranteed to

Mayor Plans New Equipment Lease-Purchase

By TOM HENSHAW

The city plans to obtain 23 items of equipment - some of it the first heavy equipment in some six years - for four departments under a lease-purchase agreement totaling $1,688,904 over six years.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said he plans to go to the City Council Monday night for an appropriation of $214,000 to meet the first annual payment. Five unsung yearly payments will be $294,981.

"This is the way to get a lot of badly needed equipment up front," said McCauley. "We have to start on it right away before the city falls down around our ears."

"We certainly could not spend $1.6 million on equipment tomorrow, no matter how badly we need it. The alternative is to bond the cost but our rates are still too high."

McCauley said Munilease Corp. of Stoneham was the only bidder on the lease-purchase agreement to provide the equipment for the Fire, Police, Park and Public Works Departments.

The agreement also provides for Munilease to repair and maintain all the vehicles during the life of the agreement. The city will own all equipment outright at the end of the agreement.

"There should be a large savings to the city in the maintenance area," said McCauley. "Preventive

Scofflaws Settling Up In Face Of Tow Threats

Two days after a story appeared in The Quincy Sun announcing that the city will tow the cars of parking ticket scofflaws a man who owed on 207 tickets showed up at City Hall and paid them.

"Since Thursday," said Parking Clerk Robert Denvir, "we have collected a little over $2,100 on these special cases."

So far, three cars have been towed, two on Monday and one Tuesday morning. All three were retrieved by their owners and the tickets as well as towing and storage charges paid.

Denvir said the cars were towed from the John Hancock Parking Lot, the Ross Parking Garage and Hancock St. near Russell Park. One of those towed owed on 81 tickets, another 28 and the third 12.

"None of them had the slightest resemblance to a shopper," said Denvir. "As a matter of fact they were taking up spaces that could have gone to shoppers."

In addition to the three who were towed, nine others came to City Hall and settled up voluntarily.

Denvir said the most (Cont'd on Page 5)

General Dynamics Extends $28 M Payback Deadline

General Dynamics has agreed to extend the deadline under which the city is required to float a $28 million bond issue to repay the company for seven years of overassessment of property taxes.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said General Dynamics has given the City Council until Nov. 30 to approve the bond and set a deadline of March 1, 1984, for legislative approvals and issuance of the bonds.

McCauley said he had hoped that the legislature would approve the bond this year but latest reports he has from Beacon Hill indicate that the legislature will prorogue soon.

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday morning's meeting at City Hall:

- Granted a request from the North Quincy High School Drama Club to conduct tag days Friday, Nov. 18, Saturday, Nov. 19, and Sunday, Nov. 20. There is to be no soliciting at intersections.

- Granted change of manager of the Quincy Lodge of Elks from Joseph Shea to Edward Riley of 92 Dugmar Drive, Brockton. Riley told the board he has had 10 years experience in the liquor business.

- Granted a request from North Quincy Taxi Service, 2 Billings Rd., for an additional cab. Wayne E. McCulley, representing the taxi service, said that he has sufficient off street parking available for the taxis.

- Granted a request from Richard N. Bucchieri for transfer of the license for 34 and 58 South St. to the new owners, Aquarius Condo #2 and #3 and 520 gallons of gasoline in tanks of cars. Police Chief Francis Finn told trustee John Fitzgerald that a permit is needed for storage of gasoline in tanks of cars.

- Continued to Nov. 8, a hearing on extension of the Motorist (new cur) license for Tom O'Brien Datsun, Inc., 479 Washington St.

- Allowed to be withdrawn without prejudice a request from Shell Oil Co., 315 Hancock St., for a convenience store operation. The board indicated it would not agree to the request if the parcel of land was not subdivided.

$5 Million In New Construction

Building Inspector Allan F. MacDonal reported that 141 permits were issued for building estimated to cost $5,068,646 during the month of September.

The big projects were two multi-family dwellings of 126 and 42 units valued at $4,183,000.

There was one one-family dwelling at $40,000 and one two-family dwelling at $50,000.

There also were 89 residential alterations at $512,896, 22 other alterations at $199,000, one garage at $9,000, two removals at $3,900, 12 signs at $21,000 and 11 miscellaneous projects at $49,850.

The department's receipts for September were $60,508 and receipts for public inspections totalled $424.

Geary Says:

Quincy Shore Drive Now Safeway – Not Speedway

Statistics gathered by the MDC police show a decline in fatal accidents and personal injuries and a greater number of citations since new safety measures were instituted on Quincy Shore Drive.

There is a general perceptual change among residents of Wollaston that the highway is a safe way and no longer a treacherous speedway. Commissioner William Geary told a news conference last week.

Geary was at the news conference in the Dorothy Quincy House on Butler Rd.

to thank local senior citizens who participated in creation of a poster highlighting changes along the Drive.

Majorie Skinner 73, of Wollaston was chosen to appear on the poster in a sprint start position under the caption: "It No Longer Takes an Olympic Effort to Cross Quincy Shore Drive."

"The poster is an example for how the community has gotten involved in an effort, initiated by the MDC, to change Quincy Shore Drive into a safer place to travel as well as to walk and recreate," said Geary.

Bid Accepted For Validated Parking

Mayor Francis X. McCauley announced Tuesday he has accepted a $273,435 bid by Cincinnati Time, Inc., of Norwood to provide and install equipment necessary for validated parking in downtown Quincy.

The bid is nearly $100,000 more than the $175,000 the city has one hand to pay for the equipment and work and McCauley said he will go to the City Council Monday for a $98,435 appropriation.

The mayor directed Arthur Foley, his administrative assistant, to confer with Kinney Systems, Inc., lessee of the two municipal parking lots, to see if the validated parking plan can be in place by the Christmas shopping season.

McCauley said it is doubtful if the complete system can be ready by Nov. 28, the traditional start of Christmas shopping, "but perhaps we can get a reasonable system to tide us over the season."

When the validated system is in effect, shoppers will pay 25 cents an hour in the Hancock and Ross Parking lots and garage and downtown merchants will be charged 20 cents for validating stickers for shoppers.

McCauley said that once the Council approves the transfer of the necessary funds from a 1980 bond issue, installation work can begin in 21 days.

The 1980 bond issue was floated in order to take property on the corner of Hancock and Grate Sts. to make way for Quincy Center Plaza. Not all of the issue was used for that purpose.

The mayor said Cincinnati Time, Inc., bid $210,000 for the equipment and $69,985 for installation. The equipment bid later was readjusted to $203,450.

Other bidders on the project were:

Ristan, Inc., of Providence, R.I., which bid $177,981 for equipment but did not bid on installation.

Seacom of New Jersey, which bid $217,841 for equipment and $126,750 for installation.

McCauley said the city looked into the possibility of having its own workers do the installation work but found that it would take the three School Department electricians four weeks of fulltime work.

It's A '4' Election

On a 1-to-10 scale next Tuesday's Quincy municipal election right now rates about a 4 for interest.

City Clerk John Gillis is predicting a 40 per cent voter turnout.

Which means, if he has his crystal ball working, that a lot more people are going to stay home than go to the polls.

Lack of a mayor's race is the biggest reason for the lack of interest. That's always the main bout — the one that brings the crowd out.

The best ward council race is still on the ballot but it doesn't exist.

School Committee Vice Chairwoman Mary Collins withdrew her candidacy on her doctor's orders because of a persistent high blood pressure problem.

Her name, however, is still on the ballot. It might be interesting to see how many votes she picks up against incumbent Joanne Condon who now is a virtual shoo-in for reelection.

A referendum question on whether Norfolk County should sell the Wollaston Recreational Facility (the old Wollaston Golf Course) will help bring some voters out, but it's not a big draw.

Perhaps, the most interesting aspect of the election will be to see how some of the new young faces do against familiar faces.

The one most observers will be watching is the four-way race for the three City Council at-large seats.

Incumbents Richard J. Koch, Jr., former Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia and Patricia M. Toland have one lone challenger: Ronald P. Iacobucci.

Iacobucci has been around the political scene for a while but this is his first run for office as a candidate. His campaign has been on the aggressive side.

Being the only challenger has its advantage. Voters have three choices. In addition to his own supporters, he could very well be the third choice of some voters who might go for two incumbents "and let's give a new face a chance."

He's up against three pretty good vote getters and has his work cut out for him.

Regardless of how he fares next week there's little doubt he will be back again two years from now.

Ward 5 incumbent Stephen J. McGrath is the only ward councillor with an opponent now that Mrs. Collins has bowed out of the Ward 6 contention. McGrath is challenged by young John M. Dunlea.

Leo J. Kelly (Ward 1), Theodore P. DeCristofaro (Ward 2), City Council President John J. Lydon, Jr. (Ward 3), and James A. Sheets (Ward 4) all have free rides to re-election.

Some observers think the School Committee race could produce a surprise or two.

Veteran incumbents Frank Anselmo, Christopher F. Kennedy and John J. Sullivan have three young challengers who can hardly be dismissed as threats.

William Arienti, Stephen Durkin and Frank C. Santoro have been out there campaigning. One of them, observers think, could come up with an upset.

But it isn't the kind of an election that many people are going to stay up late for the final results to come in.

JUDY CULLEN, principal planner in the Planning Dept., is leaving Friday, Nov. 4, to become real estate portfolio manager and asset manager for Copley Real Estate Advisors in Boston. Copley, a subsidiary of New England Mutual Life Insurance Co., has $2 billion in assets all over the country.

Judy, who is the wife of Atty. Neil Kirstein, was with the Planning Dept. for four years. She was project manager for the Campanelli Building and handled all federal UDAG grants for the city, including the UDAG garage, and off street parking grants.

She is the second member of the Planning Dept. to leave in a month. Robert Luongo left to be community development director in Wakefield.

"I guess we're all reaching the same level of experience at the same time," says Judy.

These are the bright young people that Rev. Bedros Baharian steered onto the Planning Department.

CITY COUNCILLOR Patricia Toland had an impressive list of guests at her fund raiser at the NFPA headquarters: Gov. Michael Dukakis, Dist. Atty. William Delahunt, Sheriff Clifford Marshall, MDC Commr. William Geary, Jean DeVeber, Dukakis' assistant appointments secretary and Jim French of the governor's personnel staff.

Dukakis, incidentally, was chatting with City Treasurer Robert Foye and told him that Quincy will get special attention with state aid because it is one of 13 cities that had to take three years to get down to 2½ per cent. Foye, a King supporter in 1982, was happy to hear the news.

Readers Forum JFK Meant So Much To The Young People

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Now that we are approaching the 20th anniversary of President Kennedy's death, TV will be airing specials on his life and his Presidency; there will be tributes in the papers, in magazines etc.

We have already had a plethora of books written about JFK. Some of the books sanctify him, others crucify him. I am sure that there are truths and lies in each book. For perhaps he was as deserving of praise as he was of rebuke.

The thing I remember most about Jack Kennedy's years as a political force (I was in my 20's during the "Camelot" years) was not so much what he did or said, nor do I know if 100 years from now he will be looked on as a great president or a mediocre one, what I do know that no President before or since has so captured the imaginations of the young people, some of them too young to even vote. Robert Kennedy had that same effect, I believe.

Young people were really interested in politics, really interested in what this young president had to say, even believed that somehow they could make a difference in this world by what they could do.

I feel for the young people since the Kennedy brothers were assassinated, because it seems to me that no one has captured their hopes, their energies or their desire to serve - to perhaps make a difference. A few years ago Time magazine named the Ayatollah Khomeini as the Man Of The Year. People were outraged, but Time editors said that Time's man of the year was not the one who had done the most good, but the one who had influenced the most people by his actions.

I do believe that Jack Kennedy surely did influence the most young people in the best possible way, during the late 50's and early 60's as no one has been able to do since.

I weep not only for our loss even after 20 years, but I weep for his children and our children because they never knew him. I'm glad some of us knew him.

Criticizes Officiating At Quincy - Fitchburg Football Game

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

A disgraceful exhibition of injustice was displayed this past Saturday by the officials at the Fitchburg vs. Quincy high school football game.

Can anyone who attended this fiasco truly believe that Quincy played against another school or could it be that they were harassed by the team in black and white stripes who truly dominated what should have been a good football game?

There's something wrong when Quincy ends up with fifteen penalties and Fitchburg one.

Are they really serious when they say they didn't see a player motion his hand for a fair catch? I believe it is their job to see this and their responsibility for the safety of all the players. Were they also not looking when a boy was tackled around the head instead of the body? Isn't it strange that what they saw on this very clear day was that visiting Quincy, a 2-4 team, could possibly defeat their undefeated team?

Could it be ego that gets in the way of their vision? Who knows why this could happen? The antics displayed by these men are so numerous, I could write a book.

These men leave the field with a grin in the knowledge that they displayed the poorest of sportsmanship and fair play while the boys they defeated must live with the idea that decisions of officials could and did cost the respect for their ideals?

Burgin Wins Plan E Seat On City Council

Former Mayor Thomas S. Burgin, leading the field of 59 candidates with 5,921 first choices, was assured of a seat on the seven-member City Council as counting continued of the 29,238 ballots cast in Quincy's first Plan E election.

Burgin's total of unofficial first choices was well over the quota for election, which was expected to be set at around 3,600, but the actual quota could not be decided until the official count was received of invalid votes.

Nov. 3, 1949
34 Years Ago This Week

That was expected Friday, three days after the election.

Other candidates followed in this order: David J. Crowley, 1,890; Amelio Della Chiesa, 1,782; Carl W. Anderson, 1,679; Edna B. Austin, 1,339; Frank N. Orcutt, 1,267; Alfred G. Helfrich, 1,191; John B. O'Connor, 1,137; William J. Papile, 1,127; Charles N. Ross, 1,065.

Experts at the proportional representation form of balloting said the transfer of Burgin's 2,300 surplus ballots would make significant changes in the totals of the other contenders.

CLEAN HARBOR PROMISED

The Metropolitan District Commission asked the State Legislature for an appropriation of $37 million in additional funds for water and sewage projects, one of which would guarantee the elimination of pollution from Boston Harbor and Quincy Bay.

A total of $12 million would be earmarked for completion by 1955 of the North and South District sewer projects, including a $2.5 million treatment plant at Deer Island, which, with another treatment plant on Calf Pasture, would assure a clean harbor.

SWAMP LAND COSTLY

The City Council was informed that the swampy character of the site on Fenno St., Wollaston, would run the cost of building a new seven-room elementary school up to $270,000. The Council was asked to appropriate $12,150 for architects' fees.

HOSPITAL ASKS MORE

Dr. Enzo K. F. Ronka, director of City Hospital, asked the City Council for $72,000 from the city's excess and deficiency fund to cover expansion of services at the hospital. Dr. Ronka said the number of nurses at the hospital had grown from 125 to 150 in a year.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Election Day is a day of decision. Each registered voter has the opportunity and the duty to go to the polls and vote. Yet, many do not. They ask, "What good is my vote. The politicians will do as they want. Does my vote mean anything?" Of course it does... Just think what would happen if these same people were denied the right to vote?

During the preceding months the candidates for public office have discussed many issues, offering solutions and making promises. We have had the opportunity to listen to each of them, read their literature, their newspaper advertising and in some cases hear them debate issues on the public platform. We let our ideas be known at the voting booth. A vote speaks for each citizen. It helps us control government. We lose part of our control each time we do not vote. We risk showing our preference for loss of freedom by not making the effort we can help protect our freedoms by making the effort.

It may take approximately five minutes to cast a vote - but its result could affect our lifetime... Isn't it worth it?

Good Shepherd To Hold Trail Boss Breakfast

A "trail boss" breakfast and commissioning of workers Sunday will signal the start of a Pony Express "run" at The Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, North Quincy.

The Rev. Larry J. Peterson, pastor, said he expects seven members filling the roles of trail bosses to be on hand for the breakfast briefing.

Parish families on the Pony Express run will be relaying finance campaign saddlebags to gather "estimate of giving" cards.

Dan Conatser, general manager of the campaign, will hand out the saddlebags and run route lists at the breakfast.

A relay of the saddlebags among parish members will begin early the same afternoon, he said.

Each saddlebag bears the names of 10 parish families. A family fills in a giving estimate card, seals it in an envelope and inserts it in the saddlebag pouch and then hand-carries the bag to another of the families on the route.

"We're excited because of the enthusiastic reception the plan has received thus far," he said.

"There's a spirit of teamwork and, at the same time, competition."

He said the teamwork is similar to that of the Pony Express riders of a century ago, knowing they can count on the next rider to relay the mail to its next destination.

The competition, he said, comes in the eagerness of the trail bosses to see that their run is completed before another's is finished.

"It's good, healthy competition for a good cause," he said.

Each trail boss is responsible for supervision of the relaying of one saddlebag to 10 families.

Trail bosses are: John Norden, Florence Steeves, Johanne Smith, Virginia Mirick, Doris Bingham, Tony DelGallo and John Allen.

Reformation Sunday At Squantum Church

The congregation of the First Church of Squantum celebrated Reformation Sunday this week with an all-church breakfast and worship service.

There was special emphasis on the life and teaching of Martin Luther this year since the 500th anniversary of his birth will occur Nov. 10.

Church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin preached on the subject, "Is God A Mighty Fortress For You?" taking his texts from Psalm 46, the psalm which Luther paraphrased in the hymn, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God."

The call to worship was a choral reading of the psalm by members of Ginger Snap, one of the youth groups in the church.

Readers included Ruth Adams, Blythe Bumpus, Marci Hurd, Lori Ogilvie, Kim Olson, Kristen Reister and Amanda Young. Later, the pastor read that psalm again as the scripture reading for the morning.

Since Reformation Sunday celebrates the Protestant Reformation of the Christian Church, nearly all the music used in the service was taken from Protestant composers active during the Reformation.

The organ prelude was "Jesus Christ, Our Blessed Savior" from the "Enchiridion" of 1524. The opening hymn was "Sing Praise to God Who Reigns Above" from the Bohemian Brethren's "Kirchengesange" of 1566.

The Junior Choir sang "Luther's Cradle Hymn" by Martin Luther. For the offertory, the Chancel Choir sang "Come, Holy Spirit, God and Lord" with words by Luther and melody by Melchior Vulpus.

One contemporary hymn sung was "The Church's One Foundation." The final hymn was Luther's "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God". The postlude was "Fail Me Not, O Holy Christ" by Samuel Scheidt who lived from 1587 to 1654.

Also on Sunday, the congregation dedicated its new church roof. Susan Scott and David Williams, representing the youth of the church, presented Calvin Bumpus, chairman of the church Board of Trustees, with a payment on the young people's pledge of $1,000 toward the cost of the roof.

Roy Hansen, Chairman of the Stewardship Committee, and Calvin Bumpus were commended by the congregation for their work in leading the church in getting a new roof.

Greeters for the morning were Henry and Pat Sorensen. Ushers were Tore Wallin and Don Frazer. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Edna Swanson and Ruth Goward with Halloween decorations by young people in the church.

A series of three sermons on "Our Pilgrim Heritage" will begin next Sunday morning. The first sermon will deal with the life of Pilgrim William Brewster, the second with the life of Pilgrim William Bradford and the third, on Thanksgiving Sunday, with the achievement of all the Pilgrims in coming to this land.

There will be two services again next week: the guitar service at 8:30 a.m. and the traditional service at 10:30 a.m. The sermon at both services will be the same but the Lord's Supper will be observed at the later one.

MDC Police At Full Strength, Geary Tells Wollaston Park Assn.

MDC Commissioner William Geary told members of the Wollaston Park Association that the MDC police force has been restored to its original strength since he took over the reins nine months ago.

Geary was the guest speaker at the association's 27th annual meeting at Walsh's Restaurant.

He also assured members that Quincy's drinking water, which comes from the Quabbin Reservoir in central Massachusetts, is so clear when entering the system that a quarter can be seen 40 feet down.

He agreed that the problem of sewage pollution of Boston Harbor is going to take a long time and a great deal of money to solve, but, he added, the MDC is already actively working to that end.

Members of the Association commended Geary for his actions in moving the drug dealers, drinkers and muggers off Quincy Shore Drive and Wollaston Beach during the past summer.

Geary was also commended for slowing traffic on the Drive and for making the beach safer with new lighting and intensive police surveillance.

He assured members that the MDC will continue to "improve the quality of life where we live."

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath told the Association that he feels

Toland Urges Aid To HN In Pollution Fight

City Councillor Patricia Toland says Quincy owes "a debt of gratitude to the people of Houghs Neck who have never flagged in their efforts to deal with the problem of the Nut Island Treatment Plant and the pollution of Quincy Bay."

"We owe them an apology for not paying attention when they told us that it was every one's problem, not just theirs," said Toland, who is seeking re-election to a second two-year term on the Council.

She spoke at a coffee hour, urging her listeners to support the efforts of city officials and state representatives to deal legislatively and in the courts with pollution problems.

"A recent editorial in the Patriot Ledger," she said, "pointed out that Long Island would be an attractive site for a proposed secondary sewage treatment plant because a strong and organized opposition would not be anticipated from the staff living on Long Island.

"All Quincy residents must adopt the concern and perseverance of the Houghs Neck community if we are not to lose Long Island as a valuable environmental and recreational resource."

maintenance that the city is unable to provide should give the equipment longer life."

The mayor said the department heads started out with a much longer list of equipment needs but the list "was cut back to a manageable list, one that would fit comfortably into the budget."

"We may do it again next year when we see how it works out," he added.

Munilease Corp. was to have provided the city with Mercedes police cars on a lease-purchase basis earlier this year but the particular line of cars was discontinued so the city purchased Fords.

Equipment included in the current lease-purchase plan:

Two fire pumpers, a stake body truck, a police wagon, a tractor loader and rototiller, a platform dump truck and winch, a bush chipper, a high velocity sewer cleaner truck, a compressor cab and chassis, a step van, a full-size automobile, a medium size automobile.

A three-ton diesel dump, sander and plow, three one-ton dumps, sanders and plows, two heavy duty utility trailers, five 3/4-ton pickup trucks, a trailer mounted compressor, a portable concrete mixer, two crew cab dumps, an asphalt recycler, a trailer mounted hot mix patcher, a curb loader.

Also 50 police radio units and one alarm circuit board and box transmitter.

McCauley said it will be the city's first heavy equipment purchase since the administration of Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia six years ago.

They are the Mary P. Sherriff award for highest class attendance and the Martha M. Smith award for most visitors.

This year, Sunday School has an enrollment of 44 persons with more children registering every week. An adult class will begin Sunday, Nov. 13 also at 9:30 a.m.

Survival, Inc., Sponsoring St. Maarten's Trip Prize

Survival, Inc., a non-profit social service agency serving all members of troubled families on the South Shore, is offering the chance to win a trip for seven days and six nights on St. Maarten's Island in the Caribbean as a way to raise funds.

Tickets are on sale now and those purchasing them will not only have the chance to win the trip, but will "be helping to support an agency of vital importance to the community," said Survival Director, Ken Tarabelli.

Originally founded to intervene in the lives of those heavily addicted to drugs, Survival, Inc. has expanded its programs to serve many other needs such as counseling for rehabilitation and providing an emergency shelter for adolescents in crisis.

A $1 tax-deductible donation to Survival buys the chance to win a trip for one, while a $2 donation buys the chance to win a trip for two.

The winner's name will be drawn on Friday, Nov. 4, at Survival, Inc. headquarters, Quincy.

The prize includes round-trip air travel and hotel accommodations and is planned in connection with the Jack Conway Realty Company which will be taking some 100 of its million dollar brokers to the Island in November.

Tickets may be obtained by writing or calling the Conway/McLain Public Relations Company, 79 Parkingway, Suite 5, Quincy, Mass. 02169, or by calling 773-0444.

Renovations Start At Wollaston Library

The Wollaston Library on Beale St. is being renovated.

Painters have begun working on the trim to improve the exterior appearance and it is anticipated that during the winter months interior work will be undertaken.

"It is imperative that the city maintain its cultural and educational facilities, particularly its branch libraries," said City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath.

QCA Seeks Protection For Squantum Wildlife

The Quincy Citizens Association has written to the Boston Edison Co. expressing concern for the wildlife habitat that would be destroyed by development of the old Squantum Naval Air Station.

QCA President Arthur M. Chandler noted in a letter to Boston Edison Chairman Thomas J. Galligan Jr. that wooded upland areas of the land are not protected by zoning and wetlands legislation.

He urged Boston Edison to take immediate steps to set aside the area and preserve it in its natural state for the more than 100 species of birds and other wildlife that live there.

The land is owned by Boston Edison but is under option to the Marina Bay Corp. for development.

The QCA urged Boston Edison to "keep it under Boston Edison Co.'s ownership and protection. We'll all benefit from Boston Edison Co.'s environmental concern."

Sub Chef Withdraws Beer, Wine Request

Sub Chef, 195 Newport Ave., Wollaston, won't be serving beer and wine with its meals, at least for the time being.

Manager Stephen K. Richmond withdrew without prejudice Tuesday his request for a common victualer-wine and malt license after motions to grant and to deny the license died.

Richmond can reapply for the license.

The matter was continued from an earlier License Board hearing when Police Chief Francis Finn requested that a juvenile officer investigate the area where the restaurant and a number of other businesses are located.

At this week's meeting,

Police Capt. Paul Nestor reported that there have been problems in the past with youngsters soliciting at a local liquor store.

Richmond told the board that he needed the beer and wine license for the restaurant to survive.

"I don't want a barroom," Richmond explained to the board. "I have pride in my restaurant and in the city."

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald cautioned the board against granting the license "unless you are ready to put one in every sub shop in the city."

"It's a nice, clean place, but it's the precedent that bothers me."

Fire Chief Edward Barry agreed. "If you give to one, you have to give to another," Barry said.

"It's a good place," said Health Commissioner Dr. M. Grace Hussey, "but I don't really like to extend liquor licenses."

MacDonald's motion to grant the license died when no second was made.

"I see nothing wrong with a glass of beer or wine with a meal," said City Clerk John Gillis.

A motion by Finn to grant the license also died when no second was made.

2 Quincy Students Back Reagan On Grenada

thanking him for saving his life.

"I agree with his actions 100 percent," said Gilfeather, a second year medical student, "he was justified in sending the task force to guarantee our safety and safety in the U.S."

Gilfeather was staying at Cinnamon Hill, a hotel for tourists which also rented rooms to medical students, when trouble broke out.

He also experienced gunfire around him.

"It's a very terrifying feeling. I bunked on the floor, waited for the evening to pass and came to terms with the fact that I might be killed."

After staying at a dormitory on campus, Gilfeather was finally taken aboard a helicopter to freedom.

Students were told to take only what they could fit in their pockets and to run to the helicopter.

"It was the longest 50 yards I've ever run," said Gilfeather.

Both Miss Lall and Gilfeather feared they might be taken hostage, and were all the more grateful to make it safely home.

Family, friends and the media have deluged the two with phone calls and other attention.

"It has brought my family closer together," said Gilfeather. "and shows how many people really care."

Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly wrote to President Reagan to thank him for getting the Quincy residents safely home.

"It's still really hard emotionally," said Miss Lall. "When I hear loud noises, I think of bombing."

"I feel lucky to be able to continue as if nothing has happened," said Gilfeather, "sometimes you have to roll with the punches."

Both are awaiting word from the medical school on when classes will resume, and neither seems hesitant to resume studies outside of this country.

"As long as it's not in Grenada," said Miss Lall

Local Foliage 'Excellent' Says Koch

Richard J. Koch, executive director Quincy Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments reports that excellent foliage prevails throughout the Quincy South Shore areas.

Koch advises those unable to travel any distance to observe the beauty of the color change within the confines of the city or in the general area.

In the vicinity of Quincy, Koch suggests visiting Merrymount Park and Pageant Field where Quincy Bay and Pine Island may be seen from the William F. Ryan Memorial Site.

Faxon Park in South Quincy provides a number of oak trees with a multi-color assortment of leaf changes.

Mount Wollaston Cemetery has a display of brilliance while the Blue Hills, a short distance away, provides hundreds of acres of woodland with a variety of tree and leaf colors.

With the autumn season at its peak and this week's weather conditions excellent, it may be the final opportunity of the year for persons to enjoy the scenic beauty of the fall leaf changes, Koch stated.

Sullivan Sees Self 'Positive Candidate'

John J. Sullivan, seeking re-election to the School Committee, says he is the only candidate to introduce a new educational proposal at every candidates' night during the current campaign.

Sullivan told a coffee hour at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael E. Faherty, 35 Furnace Brook Parkway that this is part of his campaign position as "the positive candidate."

He said he was the first to propose an Alcoholic Awareness educational formula beginning at the elementary level and the first to highlight President Reagan's educational report to the nation.

Sullivan said he forgoes merit pay as an issue that teachers and school committees are going to have to cope with in the not too distant future.

He said he disagrees with the part of the report that recommends longer school years as a solution to problems because families are geared to summer vacations.

However, Sullivan said a longer school day of perhaps one additional hour is a distinct possibility and could well be on the horizon.

Teacher salaries would have to be adjusted accordingly and problems could arise with working mothers' schedules, he said.

Sullivan said he is the only candidate to take a stand in favor of voluntary school prayer if the Congress acts upon the prayer bill in the current session.

McCauley Gets Dollar For 6 Cents Deal

Mayor Francis X. McCauley, who prides himself on being the penny-pinchingest mayor in recent years, has struck again.

The mayor announced Tuesday that his administration has purchased $164,619.24 worth of miscellaneous equipment for $10,767.75, which, he said proudly, is 6.5 cents on the dollar.

This was accomplished, said McCauley, by inducing the State Agency for Surplus Property to put Quincy on a priority list for equipment available from the federal government.

He pointed out to the state agency, he said, that Quincy was hard hit by Proposition 2½ and, in addition to that, had to repay General Dynamics some $20 million for a tax overassessment.

The city made the priority list with ease.

The equipment includes small items such as wrenches, a gas generator, an air compressor, some metal boxes, etc. Most of it is equipment the Public Works Department will find some use for.

McCauley said DPW Commissioner Paul Anderson, his assistant, David Colton, and Highway Supt. Robert E. Federico monitored equipment sales around the state to land the equipment.

Referral Service For Quincy Therapists

Therapists are available in Quincy and neighboring communities as part of the first telephone referral service of private practice social workers in New England.

The referral service, being held by the Massachusetts Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers (NASW), covers the Northeastern and Greater Boston areas.

People who call the referral number (617-720-2828) receive, free of charge, the names of three therapists selected according to the client's special needs and geographic location.

For more information on the Referral Service, contact 720-2828.

Action - Action

Speaks louder than words or billboards!

● Anselmo's record of Action:

Actively and successfully supported all that would help the education of the children of Quincy. He fought for the renovation of the Squantum School, the Merrymount School, the building of the Vocational-Technical School and the renovation of the North Quincy High School.

Anselmo moved for the introduction of the R.O.T.C. into the School System.

Anselmo supported, long before 766 (law) special classes for special needs students and special classes for talented students.

Anselmo fought to save the nursing program that was being closed at City Hospital, thereby saving the City $560,000 per year by incorporating the program into Quincy Junior College.

Anselmo also moved to introduce Computer Science in the Quincy Vocational-Technical School; being one of the first in the state to do so.

Anselmo successfully fought a long battle to kill the construction of a new High School in the Squantum marshes, thereby saving Quincy taxpayers more millions of dollars than that involved in the General Dynamics tax issue.

Santoro Lauds School Hotline

Frank Santoro, a candidate for School Committee, has praised elementary school parents for their initiative in establishing a telephone hotline to report student absences.

Santoro said parents in some of the elementary schools have come together in a volunteer effort to institute a telephone call-in system to notify the school of a child's absence.

Parents have developed the call-in system because of their concern for the safety of elementary school youngsters on their way to school, he said.

But he cautioned that there is no immediate cause for alarm.

"So far we have never had an incident where a child's safety has been jeopardized while they were on route to school," said Santoro.

"However, the recent need to lock school doors and install door bells should alert us to take seriously the issue of child safety and to set up systems that will both prevent and deter tragic situations from occurring.

"Since there is no school policy at the elementary level, a parent would not be aware that his or her child never showed up for school in the morning until the child failed to return home at the end of the school day.

"That frightens me. As a parent, I believe that the safety of all our school children is equal to our responsibility of providing quality education."

Retired Armed Forces Assn To Meet Nov. 6

O'Donnell Seeks Re-election As Democratic Committeewoman

Kathleen O'Donnell announces she is a candidate for re-election for a third four-year term as Democratic State Committeewoman from Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook and Avon.

The election will be held March 13 in conjunction with the Massachusetts presidential primary.

O'Donnell currently serves as a member of the Financial Assistance Committee for the 1984 Presidential Nominating Convention in San Francisco. She was named by Sen. Chester Atkins, the state chairman.

Last September, she organized the first fundraiser to be held in Massachusetts by the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee and raised more than $100,000 for Democratic Congressional candidates.

A lifelong resident of Quincy and a graduate of Quincy schools, she has a degree in government from UMass-Amherst and a master's degree in public administration from Harvard.

She was a delegate from the 11th Congressional District to the Mid-Term Democratic Convention in Memphis, Tenn., and also a delegate to the party's state issues, charter and nominating conventions.

She was chairman of the Delegate Compliance and Review Commission for the 1980 Democratic Presidential Convention in New York and was named a Democratic presidential elector the same year.

Prior to the 1983 Issues Convention, she traveled the state to take public testimony on proposed changes to the party platform and charter.

In this role, she worked for party charter changes that were designed to strengthen local party committees and has sought to include more women and rank and file members in committees and conventions.

She has been named to "Who's Who in American Politics" since 1974 and is recognized in Marquis' "Who's Who of American Women" and "Outstanding Young Women of America."

Commenting on her appointment to the Financial Assistance Committee, O'Donnell said:

"I am particularly pleased because I have for the past seven years advocated the need for the State Committee to raise money to assist low and moderate income delegates with their expenses relating to the costs of attending conventions.

"I am appalled by the number of people who are consistently eliminated from the Democratic process because they don't have enough money to pay the extraordinary costs of convention registration, transportation and hotel fees.

"For our state conventions I have already been successful in getting the committee to waive or reduce these fees when they present a hardship for delegates.

"Now I am looking forward to working with both the State Committee and the local committees to determine how we can raise money to send delegates to the presidential convention in San Francisco next summer."

Durkin Proposes School Forums For Parent Concerns

Stephen J. Durkin, a candidate for School Committee, has proposed that the Committee "offer periodic forums in which parents from around the city can express their concerns as a whole."

"This would facilitate the School Committee's responsibility to gather community input," he told a gathering of supporters at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Durkin of 5 Cushing St., Wollaston.

"This would also eliminate the problem of parents and students being unable to get on the School Committee agenda until after a particular issue has become moot.

"Community support for our public schools, particularly the involvement of parents, is an essential ingredient of an effective school system.

At the very least, I would support a proposal to hold School Committee meetings at several locations in the city to encourage parents from particularly areas to become more involved."

Durkin said he feels members of the School Committee must be more accessible and responsive to the complaints of those who are concerned with the schools.

"Altogether too much time is wasted at School Committee meetings bickering over irrelevant and insignificant issues at the expense of vital issues that are crying for attention," he said.

"The budget restraints under which the schools are operating demand that School Committee members work tirelessly toward ensuring that resources are used wisely, emphasizing students' needs in the classroom with the ultimate goal of achieving maximum educational effectiveness.

Park Board Urges Retain Wollaston Recreational Facility

The Quincy Park and Recreation Board has reaffirmed informally its longstanding position of retaining the Wollaston Recreational Facility as open space and recreation land.

The Board unanimously endorsed a "No" vote on Question 1 next Tuesday's ballot, a non-binding referendum on whether or not to sell the county-owned facility.

Richard J. Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments, said nine members of the board urge all registered voters to support retention of the facility.

Purse Falls, Starts Chain Auto Accident

A pocketbook fell from the seat of a car in the parking lot of the Stop and Shop supermarket on Newport Ave. Monday, touching off a chain reaction accident that involved seven automobiles.

No one was reported injured.

Mrs. Carolyn B. Swallow,

79, of Mattapan told police her purse fell off the seat and got caught under the brake pedal as she was pulling her 1973 Oldsmobile out into traffic.

The car went out of control and struck a parked car owned by Judith Manning, 30, of 51 Berlin St. Wollaston.

The chain reaction also involved cars owned by Rita M. Henderson, 61, of 34 Sunnyside Rd., West Quincy; Catherine A. Kelly, 71, of 540 Hancock St., Wollaston; Melvin Berry, 32 of Roxbury; William J. Reardon, 71 of 66 Ardell St., North Quincy; Philip R. Werth of 186 Wollaston.

"I want to congratulate Eastern Nazarene College for its initiative and concern in saving energy and applying for these funds," Harold said.

The funds are awarded as part of the Institutional Conservation Program which is intended to make schools, hospitals, local government buildings and public care institutions energy efficient.

A Message From Leo J. Kelly WARD 1 Councillor

I may not be a golfer, or even know the difference between an iron or a wood, but I do know how important it is that the Wollaston Golf Course be saved.

In Ward 1, we've worked hard to preserve acres of park and recreation land, marshland and open space. Open space is an invaluable resource. It is aesthetically pleasing and enhances all of our property values.

If it isn't preserved, but instead, developed, it places additional burdens upon all of our city services. The burden upon our sewerage system, and the Nut Island treatment plant, for instance, will be significantly increased. We all know that Nut Island is overloaded now, and a major residential development would only further increase our problems there.

To preserve the Wollaston Golf Course and assist our efforts to improve city services, VOTE NO ON QUESTION # 1

At the same time, I would appreciate your consideration for Re-election. In the past we have worked together on many issues to help Ward 1, and I seek your support to continue in my capacity as your Ward 1 City Councillor

Chamber Urges Federal Funding For More Commuter Boats

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce urges the state to seek federal funding to finance ferry boats to run between the South Shore and Boston.

In a letter to Frederick P. Salvucci, secretary of transportation and construction, chamber president John C. Doody of the Arthur L. Doody Insurance Agency, Inc. of Randolph, asked Salvucci to press for funds through the Urban Mass Transportation Administration.

"While operations of modern high-speed ferries can be financed by the private sector out of the fare box, it has been found here and in San Francisco and Seattle. "that the initial capital investment for boats and facilities requires outside capital assistance," Doody said.

Doody pointed out that the South Shore Chamber is deeply concerned about the upcoming reconstruction of the 8.3 miles of the Southeast Expressway starting in March 1984.

"We feel that action should be taken now so that additional ferry boats will be available for commuters," he said.

The chamber is currently establishing a Southeast Expressway Task Force to work with the state's department of public works to make certain the expressway reconstruction has as little negative impact as possible on South Shore businesses and residents.

Robert Snober, a transportation consultant, has been appointed to head the task force. David Knight, the chamber's manager of business and transportation is coordinating the group.

The South Shore Chamber's commitment to seek viable water transportation to Boston resulted in Mass Bay Commuter Services, Inc. putting the "Gracious Lady" commuter boat into service earlier this year.

"The success of this boat indicates that South Shore commuters will use this type of service if it is offered," Doody said. "What we need now is action to increase the capacity."

McGrath Holds Meeting On Mass Fields School

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath will hold a meeting today (Thursday) at 8:30 a.m. in the Council office at City Hall to discuss proposals for the re-use of Massachusetts Fields School.

Four proposals have been received from developers to purchase the school in Wollaston and convert it to condominiums and McGrath is interested in obtaining input from neighborhood residents.

"It is very important that we make certain that the Mass Fields School is developed in a fashion which will most enhance the neighborhood," said McGrath.

"We must be sure that landscaping is appropriate and adequate, that there is sufficient parking, and that the number of condominium units is not excessive."

"This is a major neighborhood development and we must take the necessary time to review all the alternative development packages."

Smoke Detectors Alert Occupants In Wollaston Fire

Smoke detectors alerted the four occupants who escaped without injury as fire swept the attic and second floor hallway of a house at 59 Waterston Ave., Wollaston about 5:30 a.m. Friday.

Deputy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman estimated damage at $35,000 and said the blaze apparently started when a quartz heater was placed too close to the bed in the attic.

The house was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Daisy, who rented rooms to two young women, Jan Grimmer and Kim More.

Gorman said Miss Grimmer, 19, got up early in the morning to go to school and turned on the quartz heater to warm her room while she went to take a shower.

She heard the alarm, Gorman said, and rushed back to find the area around the bed consumed in flame.

Gorman said there was heavy fire damage to the attic and roof and extensive smoke and water damage to the rest of the house. The Daisys, Misses Grimmer and More escaped unharmed.

Raiders Go To Somerville With New Punch

By TOM SULLIVAN
After tough losses to Weymouth North and Waltham, North Quincy football coach Ken McPhee was hoping for more offensive punch.

Last Saturday the Raiders not only exploded on offense but turned in a superb two-way performance to roll over highly-regarded Brookline, 40-0, at Veterans Memorial Stadium to improve their record to 3-4.

McPhee hopes for a repeat Saturday when North goes to Somerville for a 2 p.m. non-league game. Somerville, a Greater Boston League team, topped the Raiders, 25-21, last year.

Somerville comes into the game with a 3-4 record, having defeated Chelsea, Everett and Malden while losing to Winchester, Peabody, Medford and Waltham.

"I've been looking for our offense to break out and today everything went right," said McPhee. "The offensive line was outstanding and our backs ran well. Scott Messina (97 yards) did a great job and the other backs ran well. And again the defense was superb."

"I have three fine quarterbacks and all played today. Steve Hogan started and played a fine game and when Dave Zuroms and Rich Brooks were in there I didn't call a single play. I let them call their own. I had a chance to use everyone and the reserves, who haven't had much chance to play, all played well. This was just and outstanding two-way game for us."

Six different players scored touchdowns. Giving Messina good support running the ball were Jim McNamara (another great two-way game), Mike Gill, Hogan, Bill Doherty, Bryan Ellis and Steve Kelly. Hogan threw only three early passes, completing one for 15 yards to McNamara as the Raiders stuck to the ground and moved almost at will.

Defensive coordinator Jack Raymer was delighted with the Raiders' first shutout. He heaped praise upon the starters but also had good words for several reserves, who got a chance to play and did well.

Among them were John Delappe, Steve Kearns, Paul Cahill, Mark Wilkins, Joe Morrissey, Steve Dever, Paul Ceurvels, Dave Cooke, Pat Bull, Pete Farren, John Maguire and Ben Klingenstein.

"Tony Befera returned today after missing several games and he really bolstered the defense," Raymer said.

The offensive line was at its best. Assistant Coach Mark Mulvaney had good words for Jack Burke, Nick Gelsomini, Bob Flynn, Jack Hannan, Jerry Martin, Gerry Coughlin, Brian Gibbons and Dan Baker.

"These boys really worked together and this was a fine team effort," Mulvaney said. The statistics show North's complete domination of the game. The Raiders netted 274 yards on the ground and added 15 through the air, while grounding out 16 first downs. Brookline had just 30 yards net offense, all on the ground, as Eric Dasen completed one of five passes

New Look For North

There was a new look to the North Quincy football squad Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Football Boosters Club presented the team with new uniforms and the players' names were on the back of the jerseys.

At the end of the season the seniors will keep their jerseys and next fall the Boosters' Club will give the new players new uniforms.

for no gain. Brookline had four first downs.

North Quincy took an early lead. The Raiders took the opening kickoff and, sparked by Messina's 31 yard run, reached Brookline's 11 but a fumble was recovered by Brookline's Edgar Howe. But on the first play quarterback Doran was tackled in the end zone, fumbled and North's John Comeau recovered for the touchdown. Gelsomini kicked the first of his four extra points.

North drove 66 yards in eight plays following a punt and Hogan, on a keeper, swept right end for 12 yards and the second TD.

In the second quarter, following a short Brookline punt into the wind, North went 35 yards in five plays and Kelly scored his fifth touchdown of the year from the nine.

Just before the half Brookline's Paul O'Leary fumbled the pass from center in punting situation and North had the ball on Brookline's 19. Four plays later Gill scored from the one and Gelsomini kicked the point to give North a 26-0 halftime lead.

The Raider starters saw limited second half action as McPhee got all his players into action.

Jim Kennedy returned a Brookline punt 51 yards for an apparent score but a clipping penalty nullified it. North drove from its 35 and Messina capped the drive with a one-yard plunge. Gelsomini again kicked the point.

North, which lost the ball four times on fumbles and fumbled two other times but recovered, twice turned the ball over on fumbles early in the fourth quarter, once on its 32 and again on the 29, but Brookline was unable to move.

Late in the game the North reserves scored the final touchdown.

The Raiders started on Brookline's 47. John Powers broke away for 19 yards, Jim Cataldo added eight and Kevin Sullivan nine. Powers went for seven, Cataldo added one as did Powers and Sullivan scored from the two. Gelsomini kicked the 40th and last point of the game.

North Shuts Out Quincy, Bishop Stang

The North Quincy boys' soccer team moved closer to its first Eastern Mass. tournament berth since 1976 when it won two shut-outs last week, 7-0 over Quincy in a Suburban League game and 4-0 over Bishop Stang of the South-eastern Conference.

Going into last Tuesday's league game with Waltham, Paul Bregoli's Raiders needed just three points in three games to make the tournament. They played non-league rival Oliver Ames yesterday (Wednesday) and finish the regular season today (Thursday) against Brookline at 3 o'clock at the Veterans Stadium soccer field.

Friday's game against Bp. Stang at New Bedford was played in near-gale force winds. North had the wind at its back in the first quarter and nearly scored three goals in the first five minutes. Terry Stark broke through the middle with a pass from Mark Scanlan but the Stang goalie made a great save. Minutes later Steve Golden's 45-yard shot barely missed going in and Chris Archer missed from in close.

The Raiders finally broke through with a minute left in the quarter as Golden sent Scanlan in and the sophomore's turn around shot found the lower right corner of the net.

North came out fired up in the third quarter and this time took full advantage of the wind to score three goals.

Again Scanlan found the net, this time taking a feed from Andy Curtis and scored his sixth goal of the year from 20 yards out. Five minutes later Scanlan stole the ball from the Stang goalie and fed Curtis, whose shot from 15 yards out gave North a 3-0 lead. North's final goal came when Nunzio Carbone's corner kick found Brown in front of the net and he deflected the ball in for his fifth goal.

Earlier in the week Carbone, North's leading scorer, added three more goals to pace the Raiders to their second win over Quincy.

He scored his first goal of the game six minutes into the game, beating goalie Louis Sandomato after taking a pass from Scanlan. Earlier Brown had missed two great chances on head shots off corner kicks.

Archer, the Raiders' leading goal scorer, notched his eighth of the season, taking a pass from Brown and one minute later Dave Blaton scored his first goal of the year after receiving a fine pass from Archer. Carbone scored his second goal and North's fourth of the opening quarter on a penalty kick after Quincy's Jim Norton was called for a hand ball.

The second quarter saw North make it 5-0 as Archer laid a perfect ball on Scanlan's head off a corner kick and Scanlan drilled the ball into the top corner of the goal.

Mike Walsh, a scoring threat all day, broke in alone only to have Sandomato make a sprawling save. Brian Bresnahan was awarded a penalty kick but Sandomato was able to knock down the hard shot. Golden saw his head shot hit the post late in the quarter.

Carbone, the No. 6 scorer in the league, scored his third goal of the game after Walsh stole the ball from behind Sandomato and fed Carbone, who rammed it home from 18 yards out.

North closed out the scoring late in the fourth quarter as Craig Orrock scored his first goal of the year, diving and scoring on a great pass from Walsh.

Mark Hubbard and Jim Sheets shared the goal-keeping duties and had seven saves. Playing well for North were halfbacks John Joseph and Jim Cahill and fullbacks Eric Roukey, Joe LaPierre and Jaime Paz.

The two shutouts gave Hubbard seven for the year. He is one of the top goalies in the league allowing only 10 goals in 14 games for a 0.71 goals against average. In addition, the defense has given up just three goals since Sept. 27, led by Stark, Paz, Roukey, Mike Cocce, Golden, Joseph, Pat Marcham and LaPierre.

More Trouble For Presidents: Brockton

It was the same old story last week for the Quincy football team as the defense again turned in an outstanding performance but the offense sputtered and the Presidents lost to undefeated Fitchburg, the No. 1 team in Central Massachusetts, 12-6, at Fitchburg, dropping their record to 2-5.

And Bill Maver's Quincy club gets no rest this week as it must face the second-ranked Div. 1 team in Eastern Mass., Brockton, Saturday at 2 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Boxers, who for the second straight year were upset last week by another Central Mass. power, Leominster, 7-0, has rolled over all Eastern Mass. opposition and is ranked second to Natick. Brockton rolled over New Bedford, North Quincy, Newton North, Brookline, Cambridge Rindge and Latin and Nashua, N.H., averaging nearly 40 points a game. Last year Brockton topped Quincy, 26-5.

"Our defense played another outstanding game at Fitchburg and we moved the ball well in the second half but penalties killed us," said Maver.

"You know me, I never complain about the officials, but today they called 15 penalties on us and just one on them. Everytime we began to march, they hit us with a penalty.

"Joe Cullen, Mike Notarangelo and Billy Shaughnessy ran the ball well and Shaughnessy also passed well. Joe Conti and Daron Tucker each had two pass receptions to help the offense but, as I said, we were devastated by penalties."

John Cacciatore, rated by Maver as one of the best defensive players around, again sparked the defense and Chris Conner, Walter Rollins, Cullen, Austin O'Malley, Greg Keefe, Bob Zupkowski, Tucker, Chris Shaughnessy, Notarangelo and Conti also were hailed for their defensive efforts.

"Paul Kenney, starting his first game at linebacker, also played an outstanding game," Maver said.

In the offensive line Mark Walsh played an excellent game as did Pat Calabro, Steve Perfetuo, Rich Pettinelli, Gary Minassian and Eric Jolley.

Fitchburg took a 6-0 lead in the opening quarter. Quincy had the ball carrier stopped but he pitched out to quarterback Paul DiGeronimo, who raced 40 yards for the touchdown.

In the second quarter Quintin Tigs scored from the five to make it 12-0 at halftime.

Quincy reached the Fitchburg two-yard line in the third quarter but was hit with one of its many penalties.

Billy Shaughnessy scored the lone Presidents' touchdown in the fourth session from the six-yard line.

Quincy marched again with time running out but when it reached Fitchburg's 20, another penalty killed its hopes.

Quincy, North 'Look' At Plymouth State

The Plymouth State College football team, again stocked with several Quincy and North Quincy players, is clicking after a slow start.

The Panthers have a 6-2 record after last week's 34-0 romp over Western New England.

Plymouth State, 10-0 last fall, is going for its third straight New England Conference title. Last fall it won the Lambert Bowl as the top Div. 3 team in the East.

Joe Dudek (6 - 1, 175), former North Quincy High standout, is again sparking the Plymouth State offense. He has rushed for 926 yards, has scored ten touchdowns and is averaging six yards a carry. Last week he became the school's career leading rusher with 2020 yards.

Last season he was selected to the COSIDA second team All-America Div. 3 team and was also the ECAC 3 Rookie of the Year when he rushed for 1094 yards and 17 touchdowns. He set an NCAA Div. 3 rushing record for a freshman and was selected as the College Division Gold Helmet Award winner. Dudek has rushed for over 100 yards six times this fall.

Neil Fisher, another former North Quincy star, is a 6 - 1, 205-pound backup defensive end who has seen plenty of action in a reserve role behind senior Mike Cuomo. He has more than 20 tackles.

Former Quincy standout Ed Iodice (6 - 0, 170) is a starting cornerback who was an all-New England Conference selection a year ago. He is off to another great start with 20 tackles, two interceptions and several tipped passes despite being avoided by opposing receivers because of his outstanding defensive ability.

Former North Quincy stickout Steve Lee is a 6 - 3, 215-pound backup offensive guard who has seen action in several varsity games this season and also has played on the junior varsity team.

Bob Mudge, a former Quincy star, is a 6 - 0, 185-pound backup defensive back who has seen limited service on the varsity but has played extensively on the junior varsity.

Mark Righini, another former Quincy player, is a 5-10, 180-pound backup defensive back who has seen limited action on the varsity but is a regular on the junior varsity and is an excellent prospect for the future.

Another former North Quincy starter, Glenn Segalla, is a 6 - 1, 210-pound starting linebacker who is the leading tackler for the Panthers with more than 70 tackles and an 11 per game average. He recorded a season-high 18 tackles in a 22 - 19 loss at Mass. Maritime Academy and he is an All-American linebacker candidate.

Scott Anson, an outstanding end at Quincy, is a 6 - 4, 215-pound starting tight end who leads the Panthers in receptions. He set a team single season record last season with 37 receptions and caught a record 11 passes against Mass. Maritime. Scott broke Dan Owens' career record of 59 receptions with four catches against Framingham State two weeks ago.

In last week's 34 - 0 win over Western New England, Dudek scored two touchdowns and rushed for 78 yards. Segalla forced three WNEC fumbles to scores and Anson caught a 40-yard touchdown pass.

The Panthers are tied for first place with Mass. Maritime in the N.E. Conference with a 6 - 1 record and hope for an ECAC Div. 3 playoff berth.

Developed Wrestling

Mariano Moves Up, Steps Down As Quincy Coach

Things won't seem the same when Quincy High wrestling gets under way after Thanksgiving.

Carmen Mariano, who developed the Quincy wrestling program into one of the most successful and most-respected in New England, has resigned as head coach, but he intends to remain heavily involved with the program.

Mariano, 36, has been named Director of Personnel for Quincy schools and his new hours are responsible for his decision to step down as coach.

"There was a real conflict," said Mariano. "I just didn't see any way I could make practice hours with my new job. Actually, it might all work out for the best. I'd like to work something out so that I'll still work with the program. There are things I wanted to do, like setting up a better system of contacting colleges and doing more with our alumni, that can't be done when you are tied down to practice."

Mariano, Quincy's only coach since the sport was revived nine years ago, led the Presidents to five straight Suburban League championships and five South Sectional Div. 1 titles in six years, and has compiled an enviable won-lost record.

He got off to a slow start the first year as wrestling was new to the boys, but his record since 1975 is 144-29-1 and since 1976 it is an amazing 129-10-1.

Last winter Quincy had its first unbeaten season (19-0), the team won its fifth league crown and fifth sectional title in six years.

The Presidents made their best showing in the state championships, finishing second to Billerica. Two years ago Quincy was 18-2, losing only to the two top teams in the state, Norwood and Lowell.

"A great deal of credit for our fine record must go to the fine junior high program we had until last year," Mariano said. "Our first-year wrestlers came to us with a lot of good experience in junior high. We had an excellent junior high program and some very fine, dedicated coaches."

The new coach will not have the benefit of such a program, with junior high sports being eliminated.

Mariano was one of those largely responsible for the junior high program and he kept his eyes on the boys' progress.

Carmen also gave a lot of credit to his assistant coaches.

"Developing so many wrestlers in a sport so technically demanding as ours is not easy, but I had plenty of quality help," he said. "Joe Streadwick, Tim Cahill and Rich Schiarizzi were valuable assistant coaches and last year Gerry Quintiliani joined us after supporting us in many other ways and he was a big asset."

The 80-year-old Streadwick, a former wrestler himself and coach of the Quincy YMCA teams for many years, is still in top shape and keeps involved with the sport.

"The wrestlers themselves should get most of the credit for our success, as they worked themselves into top condition. I put them through a rigorous training program and they took to it without complaining. All of my wrestlers through the years were real workers, dedicated and conscientious. They were just great."

Mariano will submit his recommendations at the Nov. 16 school committee meeting and it is expected a new coach will be named shortly thereafter, as practice starts right after Thanksgiving.

YOUR OWN FIRE HOSE

The best piece of fire-fighting equipment you can have in your house is so common and cheap you may have overlooked it - a garden hose. Experts estimate that if a hose was readily available in the early stages of fire, about half of all home fires could be squelched before the fire engines arrive.

To be effective, one hose should be installed on each floor of the house, under a bathroom sink or in a utility room where it can be unrolled quickly to reach all rooms - especially the bedrooms. A hose lying in the yard or piled on a shelf in the garage isn't going to do much good by the time you drag it inside and hook it up. And spraying a hose from ground to second story doesn't do much more than wash the windows.

If you hook up a fire hose yourself it should cost only about $10 (that's for parts). If you feel more confident with a plumber, it's still not too expensive. The job shouldn't take more than an hour of his time. All that's involved is breaking into your cold water line.

Squirt A's Breeze By Belmont

Quincy's Squirt A team, sponsored by South Boston Savings Bank, rolled over Belmont, 9-2, in its opening game of the season.

Quincy, the defending state champion, fell behind, 2-0, but roared back as Billy Lydon had a hat trick and an assist, Joey Bevilacqua had two goals and two assists, Jason Radzevich two goals and

Mark Kelleher and Timmy Collins a goal each. Collins had two assists and Steve Carroll, Scotty McClory and John Witham one each.

Coach Bob Carroll praised Matt Kelley, Mike Lally and Ronnie Last for their play on defense and Dennis Ruggere and Richie Brooks for their performance in goal.

● Youth Football

Panthers, Apaches Battle To Scoreless Tie

The league-leading Quincy Point Panthers (6-0-1) and runnerup North Quincy Apaches (5-1-1) battled to a scoreless tie last Sunday in Quincy Youth Football League action at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The outstanding defensive battle was marred by many penalties, which hurt both teams.

The Panthers kicked off and the Apaches drove to the Panther 32 but fumbled. The Panthers took over but had to punt. The Apaches, starting on their own 39, brought the ball into Panther territory as the first quarter ended.

On the third play of the second quarter the Panthers scored but the touchdown was nullified by an illegal motion penalty. Following another Apaches penalty, on first and 20, Stu Coull and Brian Durgin ran the ball to the Panthers' 13. On third and three, Coull gained two yards and on fourth and one Durgin carried for another first down on the nine. The Panthers defense, led by Tony Pecce and Shaun O'Neill, stopped the Apaches on the five and took over. The Panthers drove to midfield but were stopped. The Apaches took over but were pushed back 21 yards by E. J. Hartnett and Bobby Roche.

Billy Roche took the second half kickoff for the Panthers on the 35 and ran it back to the 42. On first down, on a pitch from Dan Overby, Roche carried to the Apaches' 25. Bobby Roche went to the 15 but on the next play the ball was fumbled and recovered by the Apaches' Jack Mullen. Again the Panther defense held. The Panthers set up and on the first play Overby's pass was intercepted by Durgin.

In the fourth quarter the Apaches were stopped and the Panthers drove to the Apaches' 35. Overby was hit behind the line of scrimmage by Mike Ainsley and two plays later, on a half-back pass, the ball was intercepted. The Apaches again were stopped and the Panthers drove to midfield as time ran out.

The Panthers have scored 154 points this season and given up only 22.

Ainsley, Mullen, Coull, Tom Walsh, Paul Moody, Durgin, Rocky Ranaahan, Richie Connolly, Bill Dineen, Sean Gately, Scott

Crowley and B. J. Silva all played outstanding games for the Apaches.

The Apaches junior varsity rolled over the Panthers, 30-6, to improve its record to 7-0. This is the jayvees best season in five years.

Matt Furtado intercepted a pass and raced 80 yards for the first touchdown and John Gallagher intercepted another pass and returned it 60 yards for the second TD. Furtado and Gallagher each scored again and Keith Gott added a touchdown on a 35-yard run.

Outstanding players for the Apaches, coached by Rick Higgins, were Joe Foley, Jim Bryan, Brett Carter, Paul Brown, Chris Burke, Matt Norton, Ed Herman, Bob Herman, Gott, Furtado, Gallagher, Brian Mahoney and David Skutl.

The Panthers have a bye Sunday while the Apaches meet the third-place West Quincy Elks at 2:30 and the Houghs Neck Manets meet the Squantum Sailors at 1. The championship game will be played Nov. 20 at 1 o'clock at the stadium.

The standings: Panthers, 6-0-1; Apaches, 5-1-1; Elks, 3-3; Sailors, 1-5; Manets, 0-6.

North Girls Easily Outswim Quincy

The North Quincy girls' swim team finished its season last Friday night with a 121-36 runaway over Quincy, finishing the season with a 5-6 record.

North Quincy has never lost a meet, boys or girls, to Quincy, and last week's result was no surprise as North used 31 of its 39 swimmers, while winless Quincy had just seven girls swimming.

Quincy coach Wayne Deschamps, whose team finished 0-11, was not surprised or disappointed.

"I'm just glad it's over," he said. "We had a tough season and even if we had the top four swimmers in the world, they couldn't carry a meet by themselves."

"We did very well time-wise," said North coach Bill Walker. "It's always nice to end the season with a win."

The Raiderettes won nine of the 11 events. Quincy winning only the 200-yard medley relay and the 100-yard breaststroke. Chris Lombard won the 100 breaststroke in 1:35.16.

North freshman Julie Killion won the diving with 178.55 points, well ahead of Lombard with 144.15.

Georgia Traficante sparked the Raiderettes winning the 200 individual medley (2:53.66) and the 100 freestyle (1:05.03). Senior captain Joanne Burke won the 200 freestyle in 2:23.59.

Other North winners were Julie Nee, 50 freestyle Donna King, 100 butterfly; Stacey Quintillani, 500 freestyle, and Caroline Krantz, 100 backstroke.

North won the 400 freestyle relay in 4:57.64, with Stephanie Frances, Amy Maginnis, Killion and King.

Quincy's Colleen Craig, Maureen Doherty, Lombard and Nancy Mellyn won the 200 medley relay in 2:32.80.

● Volleyball

Quincy Girls Keep Streak Going

The Quincy girls' volleyball team, the defending state champion, has an amazing record this year and extended it last week with two more victories.

The First Ladies are 14-0 and haven't lost a single game (28-0).

Yesterday (Wednesday) they attempted to end an undefeated season when they faced Newton South.

A year ago Quincy was 13-3 during the regular season and went on to win the South Sectionals and then the state championship.

Last Friday Quincy defeated Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 2-0 (15-3, 15-4), with Susan Beven and Christine Gallery leading the offense and Kathy Mc-Gregor sparking the defense.

Earlier in the week Quincy defeated Newton North, 2-0 (15-1, 15-5). Karen Marnell was the key at serving, Terry McLoughlin at setting and Carolyn Leonard turned in a fine all-around effort.

Quincy Man's Song 'Harvey' In Curtain Call Production

By KATHY McDERMOTT

The Curtain Call Theatre will present "Harvey" at 8 p.m. Nov. 10, 11, and 12 at Thayer Academy, Braintree.

When Quincy resident Ben Turnquist heard about the Theatre's production, he decided to offer an old song he had written to the group.

Mr. Turnquist, a shipyard worker for 30 years, was exposed to music at an early age and although he had no formal training, he began writing tunes as early as 1933. Over the years, he learned about music through various musical endeavors including participation in the Finnish Singers, the Fore River Victory Chorus, the Wollaston Glee Club and the Faith Lutheran Church Choir.

Since 1933, Turnquist has written over 1,000 compositions including a song entitled, "Harvey." In 1949, Turnquist sent his song to Frank Fay, who was the original Elwood P. Dowd in Mary Chase's comedy about an invisible rabbit who works his special kind of magic on even the most stalwart skeptics. Fay was unable to use it, thanked Turnquist and returned the song.

BEN TURNQUIST looks over his copy of song 'Harvey' he wrote and will be heard in Curtain Call Theatre Production of 'Harvey'.

Thirty-four years later, the song "Harvey" will finally be heard by an audience. Turnquist will be present on opening night to hear the premier of his 34-year-old song. Tickets for Curtain Call Theatre's production of "Harvey" are available from any Curtain Call member or by calling 963-2436.

2 Woman's Caucus Members On Cable Talk

Two members of the Woman's Caucus of the Massachusetts state legislature will be the featured guests on Cable Talk, the weekly public affairs program, to be aired on Ch. 3 Thursday, Nov. 10 at 9 p.m. and repeated Sunday, Nov. 13 at 9:30 p.m.

Rep. Elizabeth Matayer of Braintree who represents the 5th Norfolk district and Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray of Cohasset, representing the 3rd Plymouth district, will be the guests.

Matayer is House vice-chairman of the Committee on Health Care and a member of the Rules and Transportation Committees.

Murray is a member of the Counties and Local Affairs Committees of the legislature. She is also chairman of the women legislators committee, a national organization.

The two legislators discuss the commuter problems that are being predicted when the reconstruction of the Southeast Expressway between East Milton and the South Station tunnel gets underway next March. They also discuss legislative reforms, health care issues and pending legislation of interest to Quincy area residents.

Cable Talk is produced by an all volunteer workshop crew of Quincy residents as part of the public access program of Quincy Community Television.

Live Election Coverage On Ch. 3

Quincy Cable viewers will get an inside look at the local political process on election night, Tuesday, Nov. 8 at 7:30 p.m., as Quincy Community Television, cable Ch. 3, programs live election coverage to the city.

An unusual feature of this local election programming will be computer forecasting of election results, the first time a local cable station will use computer analysis in its election coverage.

Steve Marx, program director at Quincy Cable-systems said: "The broadcast stations always use computers in their election reporting. Viewers have become more sophisticated in their expectations. Quincy Community Television is excited about linking the new technologies of computer and cable to serve the community better during this election."

Crimson Consulting, a Quincy-based data processing organization specializing in political analysis, will work with Quincy Community Television to provide the computer analysis. Edward Kane, a Quincy resident and partner in Crimson Consulting, sees this coverage as "a service to the community as a whole." Crimson Consulting's computer, an IBM PC, permits the group to make accurate predictions soon after the polls close, he said.

Durkin Wins, Koch Tops Council

By TOM HENSHAW

Stephen Durkin, a 27-year-old law school graduate from Wollaston, was the big winner in Tuesday's election, capturing a seat on the School Committee in his first try for public office.

Durkin's victory eliminated the veteran John J. Sullivan, who was seeking his third four-year term.

Only 36.4 per cent - or 17,082 of the city's 47,226 registered voters went to the polls, despite ideal weather. A 40 per cent turnout had been forecast.

Another newcomer, Ronald P. Iacobucci, failed in his bid for an at large seat on the City Council but he came within 1,039 votes of ousting Patricia Toland, who won a second term.

Durkin attributed his victory to "hard work and an early start."

"We ran a positive campaign," he said. "We were not overly critical of others and we came up with some solutions. We got our name out there and people paid attention."

"I see myself working with a couple of other committeemen to turn the schools around. I plan to rock the boat a little bit. I'm not the kind to sit back."

Durkin, a graduate of UMass-Boston and the New England School of Law, is currently awaiting the results of his bar exam. A Quincy native, he and his wife, Maureen, have been married seven months.

Another first time candidate, Frank C. Santoro, 34, a Wollaston school teacher, failed election to the School Committee by a margin of only 118 votes. He was undecided on asking for a recount.

Christopher F. Kennedy topped the School Committee voting with 8,476 in winning a third term on the board. Durkin was second with 7,433 and Frank Anselmo, securing a sixth four-year term, third with 7,014.

Santoro had 6,896, Sullivan 6,472 and William Arienti 5,218.

Richard J. Koch Jr. was the big vote-getter among the four candidates for three at-large Council seats with 11,081 to 10,533 for Joseph J. LaRaia and 9,476 for Toland.

Iacobucci finished just out of the money with 8,437.

"We didn't win but I don't feel that we lost anything," said Iacobucci. "We're building for the

Iacobucci Top Spender In City Election Races

For a dull political campaign with not much competition outside of the School Committee race, candidates in the 1983 city election are spending some pretty good money.

Tops in the latest declaration of receipts and expenditures is Ronald Iacobucci, candidate for one of the three at-large seats on the City Council, who reported spending $5,031.79 between Sept. 5 and Oct. 31.

The figures reported by the various candidates on Oct. 31, eight days before the final election, were these:

Ronald Iacobucci, City Council at large, $5,244.02 raised; $5,031.79 spent.

Richard J. Koch Jr., City Council at large, $4,385 raised; $4,456.45 spent.

Frank Santoro, School Committee, $2,760 raised; $2,183.76 spent.

Stephen J. McGrath, City Council Ward 5, nothing raised; $574.88 spent.

Stephen Durkin, School Committee, $2,170.92 raised; $1,891.26 spent.

Francis X. McCauley, Mayor, $355.62 (all in bank interest); $1,866.68 spent.

Christopher Kennedy, School Committee, $695 raised; $769.79 spent.

Patricia Toland, City Council at large, $2,190 raised; $1,663.16 spent.

Joseph J. LaRaia, City Council at large, $2,270 raised; $2,396.12 spent. LaRaia also reported at liability of $418.43.

Theodore P. DeCristofaro, City Council Ward 2,

$60 raised; $285 spent.

John J. Sullivan, School Committee, $975 raised; $402 spent.

Frank Anselmo, School Committee, $100 raised; $1,643.60 spent.

Joanne Condon, City Council Ward 6, $2,740 raised; $3,079.59 spent.

John J. Lydon Jr., City Council Ward 3, filed a report that said only "no change." City Clerk John Gillis said the report would be returned to Lydon for more detailed information.

Those not filing reports by Tuesday afternoon were Leo J. Kelly, City Council Ward 1; James A. Sheets, City Council Ward 4; John M. Dunlea, City Council Ward 5; Mary Collins, City Council Ward 6; William Arienti, School Committee.

Assessors See $22 Tax Rate For 1984

The Board of Assessors has estimated a residential tax rate of $22 per thousand and a commercial and industrial rate of $32 per thousand for fiscal 1984.

The estimates were disclosed Tuesday by Mayor Francis X. McCauley, who warned that the assessors used a classification formula not yet approved for the city.

"To determine total taxes due for fiscal 1984," said the mayor, "the taxpayer should divide the assessment, as shown on his impact notice, by 1,000 and multiply the result by $22 residential or $32 commercial."

McCauley said impact notices will be in the mail this weekend to residential property owners and next week to commercial and industrial property tax payers.

He cautioned that the figures are only an estimate since the actual tax rates will be based on a classification plan yet to be adopted by the mayor and City Council.

Public hearings also will be held before a classification plan goes into effect, he said.

Persons who wish to appeal their valuations may make an appointment on or before Dec. 2 by calling the special number listed on the impact notice.

Hearings will begin Monday, Nov. 21, at City Hall and will be held Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. and on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Hearings for commercial and industrial property will begin Monday, Dec. 12.

Council Appropriates $264,000 For Pay Raises

The City Council Monday night appropriated $264,875 to fund raises for policemen, nurses and employees of the Public Works and Park and Forestry Departments. But the raises won't be forthcoming for a while because the Council sent the ordinance amendments authorizing the raises to its Ordinance Committee for consideration.

Under the ordinances, the starting rate of patrolmen's pay, effective April 1, 1984, will be $20,604.

personnel starting with the current fiscal year.

School Raises Approved

Validated Parking Out For Christmas

Validated parking in downtown Quincy has been ruled out for the Christmas shopping season after the City Council Monday night moved a key appropriation order into committee for at least two weeks.

"I'm hoping it will be a reality after the first of the year," said Mayor Francis McCauley. "It's not feasible to try to get anything done in time for the season's opening in 2 1/2 weeks."

The question before the City Council Monday night was an appropriation order for $100,000 for validated parking equipment and its installation in the John Hancock and Ross Parking areas.

The order was sent to the Downtown and Economic Development Committee after its chairman, Leo J. Kelly, had headed off a move to send it to the Finance Committee.

Finance Committee Chairman Stephen J. McGrath is an avowed opponent of validated parking plans.

Council President John J. Lydon Jr. also advocated placing the order in committee, noting that the request for $100,000 for equipment was something new to the Council.

"I'm not prepared to vote for it," he said. "If it comes up for a vote tonight I will vote against it. Perhaps the fairest thing to do is to rebid the whole proposal."

posals."

The contract to furnish equipment and installation was won by Cincinnati Time, Inc., of Norwood, whose bid for equipment was $203,450 and installation was $69,985, a total of $273,435.

The problem was that the city had only $175,000 on hand to finance the project, $100,000 in state grants from the King Administration and $75,000 in state funds from the Dukakis Administration.

The $100,000 requested from the City Council would come from the remains of an old bond issue floated in 1980 to take property at the corner of Hancock and Granite Sts. for Quincy Center Plaza.

City Auditor Robert E. Foy III said there is $172,000 left in the bond issue and its use is restricted to projects related to urban renewal.

The entire bond issue was not used, he said, because the costs of relocating business firms in the area was lower than anticipated. Many of those firms left the area.

Arthur Foley, the mayor's administration assistant, told the Council that when the city obtained the $175,000 in state grants it had no idea what the costs of preparing the lot for validated parking would be.

He urged the Council to pass the appropriation on the spot, saying "we'd like to have this in place before the Christmas season. It will take three or four weeks to have it in place."

McGrath, who conceded that "I have never been a supporter of validated parking," objected to the use by the Patriot Ledger of the term "free parking."

"It really is not free," he said. "It will cost parkers 25 cents an hour if the merchants will agree to validation."

One of those merchants, Robert Colman of Colman's Sporting Goods, assailed the delay in passage of the appropriation order.

He accused Purchasing Agent Robert Denvir, who also is the city's parking ticket clerk, and McGrath of "teaming up to slow it down."

"I don't know what reason they have for not wanting Quincy to have a parking system that is working well in all 50 states," said Colman. "If nothing is done the parking system will stay the same."

McGrath called Colman's charges of a "team up" with Denvir "ridiculous."

"I spoke to Bob after the meeting Monday night and that's the only conversation I've had with him about validated parking," said McGrath.

"I have consistently opposed validated parking because I don't think it is going to bring business into downtown Quincy, rather I think the confusion will discourage shoppers."

Denvir was not available for comment.

Condon Seeks Enforcement Of House Number Law

City Councillor Joanne Condon wants to see better enforcement of a law that requires that street numbers be affixed to all residences and multi-family dwellings in the city.

Many times, Condon said, police, fire or ambulances have been summoned in emergencies and the drivers cannot find the house because buildings lack numbers.

Condon's request was forwarded to Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson, who has the authority to affix numbers to buildings at the expense of the owners.

Readers Forum Mail Order Murder

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On Nov. 22, we mark the 20th anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. More than 400,000 Americans have been killed in gunfire since his death. Ironically, on this anniversary, Congress is considering legislation which would weaken, not strengthen, America's feeble gun laws.

In 1968, when Congress passed the Gun Control Act, our legislators specifically prohibited mail-order gun sales because President Kennedy's assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald, used a cheap rifle purchased from a Chicago mail-order house. The weapon was fitted with a telescopic gun-sight, also acquired through the mail. Less than an hour after killing the President, Oswald killed police officer J. D. Tippit with a .38 caliber handgun acquired from yet another mail-order house.

Now, the National Rifle Association wants to put the 1968 Act through passage of the McClure-Volkmer Gun Decontrol Bill (S. 914 and H.R. 2420). This bill would lift the prohibition on mail-order sales and again allow easy access to firearms by criminals and would-be assassins.

This bill must be stopped. Our Congress should not enact legislation which only invites mail-order murder.

Urges Support For Tuition Tax Credit Legislation

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Presently there is before the House and Senate in Washington, "The Educational Opportunity and Equality Act of 1983". This is known in the House as (HR1730) and in the Senate as (S.528).

This bill offers long overdue tax relief to low and middle income parents who choose to send their children to non-public schools, but must also support the public school system through their taxes.

When fully implemented HR1730 S.528 would mean a tax revenue reduction of less than $800 million. BUT non public school parents save taxpayers more than $13 billion a year. Now is the time to recognize and provide relief for these families.

It is essential that every constituent contact his/her Senator and representative and urge them to pass this most important bill. It is only just and right for millions of American citizens.

Fond Memories Of 'Miss' Lillian

The death of Lillian Carter brought back fond memories of her for State Senator Paul Harold.

Harold accompanied former President Jimmy Carter's mother for a while when she was in Massachusetts in November, 1978 campaigning for Paul Tsongas who was then running for the U.S. Senate.

She indicated that as far as she was concerned, the White House was a nice place to visit but she wouldn't want to live there.

"It's boring place," she confided. "I stay in Plains. Living at the White House is like living in a museum. There's no one around. Jimmy and Rosalyn are working and Amy's at school."

Asked who she would place on her list of 10 best Presidents, she replied:

"I really can't pick 10 best. I would include Truman, Kennedy, Lincoln, Washington and Teddy Roosevelt."

And, to that, of course she added Jimmy Carter. She passed over Franklin Roosevelt who used to spend time at Warm Springs, Ga. and died there.

She got off a few other candid observations:

RICHARD NIXON: Noting polls were showing 38 per cent of the American people supported him: "That man upsets me."

FRANK BELLOTTI: She played penny poker with the attorney general on the plane ride back from Pope John Paul's funeral and according to reports (though she didn't confirm them), she took his money. "He's such a nice fellow, say hello for me when you see him."

CAMP DAVID SUMMIT: "Jimmy called me in Little Rock where I was campaigning for a Democratic nominee. He called me in the middle of the night and said he wanted me to be the first to know. It was very emotional we both cried."

HER CORRESPONDENCE: "I used to have a secretary help me answer my mail, but now I do it myself. I receive 30-40 letters a day, most of them invitations for speaking engagements. I receive about one hate letter a month. I can usually tell before I open it because it has no return address."

JIMMY AND ROSALYN: She was particularly proud of her son and daughter-in-law because she felt "they have the closest marriage of any couple that ever lived in the White House."

At the end of the trip, she was asked what title she preferred when being introduced. She smiled, and said: "Amy Carter's grandmother."

SPEAKING OF SENATOR Harold, he's got one foot in the doghouse of the Mayor's Commission on the

HAROLD

Status of Women.

Commission Chairwoman Harriet Goldman is a little peeved because Harold inadvertently gave credit to the Election Commission for helping City Clerk John Gillis register 100 voters at both Shaw's and Star Markets. And, it was her idea to go out into the marketplace to ferret out unregistered voters.

"Watch out, Senator Harold," says she. "Women at work."

Harold says he's sorry if he mixed up the credit and commends Harriet and her colleagues for their interest and work.

"The important thing," he says, "is that we have some new registered voters."

TWO FAMILIAR FACES have been on display at the Quincy Art Association exhibit at the South Shore Plaza: Portraits of City Clerk John Gillis by his wife, Vi, and Quincy yachtsman Bernie McCourt by Marilyn Reisberg. Nice display, but when's it coming to Quincy?

THE BIG BAND era may be gone, but it certainly isn't forgotten. The Weymouth Rotary Club's Big Band Night at the Lantana, featuring clarinetist Dick Johnson and a 16-piece band, packed the place for a nice night of musical nostalgia.

MORE GOOD NEWS: Earl Hannafin announced that Johnson, who hails from Brockton, will soon be leading the Artie Shaw band. The latter hadn't let anyone take a band out under his name until he heard Johnson.

And, do you wanna feel a little older? Shaw, who was quite a man around town and romanced some of Hollywood's top beauties during his and their heyday is now 73.

INCIDENTALLY, among those enjoying the big band night was Frank Perdue, the chicken king, who looks taller and younger than in his TV commercials. The young lady with him was Susan DeCristofaro, executive secretary to the Weymouth selectmen, a former employee at WJDA.

Which also reminds us that WJDA's Roy Lind was really dancing up a storm. He likes to dance close. But that's o.k. The girl in his arms was his pretty wife, Joan.

MAYOR Frank McCauley is running the risk of ruining his reputation as a penny pincher. At the Quincy Jewish War Veterans breakfast Sunday honoring Senator Harold as its "Citizen of the Year", McCauley made keynote speaker Lt. John Kerry an Honorary Citizen of Quincy.

And he actually had the citation framed.

Late Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa who pinched pennies until Abe Lincoln turned blue, would have frowned on that. He always made the recipients buy their own frames.

But, McCauley may have redeemed himself. He told Kerry that with the Honorary Citizenship goes an excise tax bill.

Council Honors Meade, Legion Founder

William J. Meade, 86, of Houghs Neck one of the founders of the American Legion in Paris, France, in 1919, was honored by the City Council Monday night.

Meade recently was elected president of the Society of American Legion Founders.

Meade explained to the Council that there are only 50 members remaining of the original society and they are trying to get the names of 1,500 more who are eligible to join if they are still alive.

He told the Council that he happened to be in Paris in 1919 because there were two million American soldiers in France at the end of World War I and no way to get them home quickly.

"So they decided to send them to school," he said. "I stayed for five months going to school. When I heard about the founding of the Legion I went to it."

Meade said member of the society attend all functions of the American Legion as its guests, but, he added, they pay all their own expenses.

He was one of the delegates to the first American Legion convention in Massachusetts in Springfield in 1920.

Harold Honored As JWV 'Citizen Of The Year'

Sen. Paul D. Harold was honored Sunday as the Quincy Jewish War Veterans "Citizen of the Year" at Beth Israel Synagogue.

The award, said Irving Isaacson, of the JWV, was given to Harold for his "devotion and concern for the elderly, children, veterans and to the community. He is a man well versed to help anyone."

Harold was hailed by the Rev. John J. Berube of St. Francis of Assisi Church, South Braintree, as a successful politician "who never lost the common touch."

"In my father's time," said Fr. Berube, "politics was a dirty word. If you were connected with politicians you were tainted."

"I have lived to see the word politician become something respected, almost envied, because of the type of people, men and women dedicated to high principal."

"Paul Harold is dedicated to public life. He understands the needs of the community and the people he serves. His strong moral code and standards and his deep religious convictions make him a full person."

Mayor Francis X. McCauley, Harold's long-time friend despite the fact that one is Republican, the other Democratic, cited Harold's "ability to separate his personal gain and ambition from his position as a representative of his constituents."

"From time to time as we all face making unpopular decisions," said McCauley, "It may be in the best interests of our constituents but not in the best interests of ourselves politically."

"Paul has done that on any number of occasions and has done it extremely well. That's what makes Paul Harold so successful. He puts politics aside and makes the right decision for his constituents."

Harold said he felt the award "indirectly" honors his father, Joseph Harold, longtime legislative agent for the Disabled American Veterans.

"He has guided me and served as a model for my public service," he said. "For the most part, I've followed his advice and suggestions."

"His first suggestion was don't get involved in politics." I've listened to almost every word of his advice, except political advice.

Other speakers on the program included Lt. Gov. John Kerry, Dist. Atty. William Delahunt and Rabbi Jacob Mann.

Giant Armory Dinner Kicks Off Community Fund

Quincy's first Community Fund campaign kicked off with a mammoth dinner for 839 officials and workers in the Quincy Armory, said to be the biggest such dinner ever held in the city.

In addition, more than 100 Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls who waited on tables also partook of the meal.

The diners consumed a half ton of lamb, 500 pounds of potatoes, 50 gallons of ice cream, 1,500 rolls, eight cases of beans, four gallons of pickles, four gallons of olives, and 65 gallons of coffee.

The aim of the 10-day fund-raising drive for 1937 was $83,500. It was recommended that those who earned less than $15 a week pledge a 10-cent contribution and those in the $75 to $100 a week class give $2.

By Edward David R. Ph.

Short-term "dynamic psychotherapy" has been developed by a Montreal psychiatrist. The doctor takes an active role in treatment, and uses videotape to let patients view their own progress.

Animals on a soft-food diet are likely to have rotated and displaced teeth. People, too. Preventive orthodontics starts with diet, dentists say.

Reconstructive plastic surgery is permitting patients with facial nerve damage to smile and blink again. Doctors at Eye and Ear Infirmary and at Presbyterian Hospital, both in New York, have developed the procedure.

New serum will facilitate large-scale screening for children at risk of rheumatic fever in areas where this is common. Those identified could be protected with antibiotics in case of strep infection.

Treatment with zinc sulfate has been successful for older patients with tinnitus (ringing in the ears) and hearing loss due to degeneration of the inner ear. Full recovery reported by doctor at Northwestern University School of Medicine.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Veteran's Day is set aside each year to honor those who served their country in armed services. We honor them all; those who wore a uniform in days past and those who wear it today. We honor them with recognition of a debt that can never be repaid. It is beyond price.

It is a tragic fact of life that the best of the young men have always had to carry the burden of war. It has always been that way and probably will always be that way - as long as wars divide nations and people.

As we honor all those who so rightfully deserve thankful remembrance, we all hope there will be no more wars. Wars accomplish nothing. They create more problems than they solve. For those who wear a uniform and those who don't, it is far better to give their energies to the purpose of peace, instead of their lives in destructive purposes. Will it ever be realized this is the only way to build a better future for all mankind?

Council To Celebrate Martin Luther Anniversary

The Interchurch Council of Wollaston and North Quincy will hold a gala celebration today (Thursday) on the 500th anniversary of Martin Luther.

The celebration will take place at the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, West Squantum and Harvard Sts., North Quincy.

The Interchurch Council consists of representatives and clergy from the following churches; First Squantum, Quincy Community United Methodist, Sacred Heart Roman Catholic, Union and Memorial Church of Christ, First Baptist of Wollaston, St. Chrysostom's Episcopal, Good Shepard and Wollaston Lutheran, and Wollaston Nazarene.

The "Luther Fest", as the council is calling it, celebration, will have a three part program. Beginning at 6 p.m. the celebration will offer a German supper of sauerbraten and German music by Nils Lundeen to honor Luther's German background. Reservations for the supper must be made prior to Thursday.

Following the dinner, the Rev. Dr. Henry Horn, Resident Lecturer of Christian Worship at the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Philadelphia and Pastor Emeritus at University Lutheran Church, Cambridge, will lead a discussion at 7 p.m. on Lutheran and Roman Catholic relationships in light of Martin Luther.

The council and discussion audience will gather at 8 p.m. in Good Shepherd's sanctuary to hold an ecumenical worship service of Luther's hymns. The Rev. Dr. Krister Stendhal, the Andrew W. Mellon Professor of Divinity, Harvard University Divinity School, will be guest preacher.

Choir members from the council's member churches will sing Luther's hymn "A Mighty Fortress". The public is invited to the discussion and ecumenical service.

Martin Luther was born Nov. 10, 1483 in the city of Eisleben, now in East Germany. He also died in Eisleben.

Luther believed that faith alone engendered God's grace, whereas the church believed faith is judged in the context of traditional Church practices and the works of the individual.

This birthday celebration of Martin Luther's 500th anniversary of his birthday by the Interchurch Council is even a more significant ecumenical gathering since Pope John Paul has announced that he will preach in a Lutheran church honoring Martin Luther.

Zimbabwe Speaker Sunday At St. Chrysostom's

Rose Siyachitema, wife of an Anglican Bishop of Zimbabwe, will be guest speaker at 10 a.m. Sunday, Nov. 13, at St. Chrysostom's Church, Wollaston.

She and her husband are on an extended visit to Massachusetts in connection with the partner relationship newly established between the Episcopal Diocese of Mass and three Anglican Dioceses in Zimbabwe.

This companion Dioceses relationship was finalized last Saturday in Boston. It involves equal sharing in Christian ministry among the American and African partners.

The Rt. Rev. Jonathan Siyachitema is one of the first black Bishops in Zimbabwe, having been named to that ministry following the revolution.

So that Mass. Episcopalians may become more familiar with this new venture, Bp. Siyachitema and his wife are speaking to church groups throughout the Diocese.

The public is welcome to attend this service and the discussion opportunity that follows.

Mrs. Siyachitema, who taught for 13 years, trained as a church worker for the Mothers' Union during her year in England with her husband.

Upon returning to Zimbabwe, she worked for the Mothers' Union in Matabeleland and became president after eight years.

When Bp. Siyachitema was consecrated, she was asked to become president of the Mother's Union in their new diocese. She carries on an active ministry and is concerned with home and family life as affected by social issues.

Thanksgiving Sermons At First Squantum Church

Members of the First Church of Squantum heard the first of three Thanksgiving sermons Sunday during the two morning services.

Entitled "Taking a Stand for God", Sunday's sermon was based on the life of Pilgrim leader William Brewster. In it, church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, traced the intellectual and spiritual growth of Brewster. He discussed Brewster's early days in Scrooby, England, through his college years at Cambridge University, his work as a diplomat in Holland, his years as a postmaster again in Scrooby.

Also, his leadership of the Separatist congregation in Scrooby and then later in Amsterdam and Leyden in Holland, aboard the Mayflower, and in Plymouth, Massachusetts. Brewster died at his home in Duxbury in 1644.

Text for the morning was "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him who brings good tidings, who publishes peace, who brings good tidings of good, who publishes salvation, who says to Zion, 'Your God reigns.'" (Isaiah 52:7)

As an offertory, the Chancel Choir sang two selections from the oratorio "Elijah" by Mendelssohn-Bartholdy including the recitative and air, "Draw Near, All Ye People", sung by Robert Frazer, and the chorus, "Cast Thy Burden Upon the Lord". Mary Ruth Scott directed.

The manager of Finian's Pub Ltd. in Quincy Sq. would like to expand his business, but the health commissioner would like to rectify a disposal problem before that happens.

The expansion request was continued for one week at the request of Health Comm. Dr. M. Grace Hussey who said that she has received complaints since August about a back alley way that is slippery from water and grease.

James A. Hession, president and manager of Finian's at 1657 Hancock St., said that water is used to clean the alley way of refuse and grease left behind when they are removed from the restaurant.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald suggested that Hession consult the sewer department about installing a storm drain.

Hession indicated he would rectify the situation.

MacDonald also praised the work Hession has done with the restaurant, and said he has no problem with the expansion plans.

According to Atty. Robert Fleming, who represented Hession, the restaurant plans to expand next door to a joke shop, and to add 26 more seats.

Rep. Manning To Support $28 M GD Bond Bid

Rep. M. Joseph Manning of Milton says he will support Quincy's bid for legislative approval for a $28 million bond issue to repay General Dynamics for an overassessment when it is passed by the City Council.

"I generally support these measures and I will support this one," he told interviewers on the Quincy Cablesystems program "Newsmakers" on Channel 3.

Manning also said he probably would be willing to join Quincy in trying to secure safer exits in West Quincy and Milton during the planned reconstruction of the Southeast Expressway.

"Anything that would improve safety conditions I would join in with," he said.

"Long have I called for the closing of Exit 21 northbound between the hours of 6:30 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. just because a thousand school children are going through East Milton Square."

On other matters, Manning said:

— "The greatest success of the Southeast Expressway project will be the performance of the MBTA out of Braintree. If there is anything lacking and the Legislature can assist, the Legislature will respond."

— He was against Proposition 2½ before it was voted in by referendum but "I have always supported it after it was put in place."

"It was put on the statute books by the citizens and I have opposed those measures that would change it. That should be the prerogative of the voters who put it there."

"I know some communities have had problems with it. But those communities had problems long before the advent of Proposition 2½. Local aid has been of great assistance."

Manning was interviewed on the program by John Noonan of The Quincy Sun, Herb Fontaine of WJDA and Ray McEachern of the Patriot Ledger.

Board Grants License To New Firm For Goldie's Yard

The License Board granted a temporary, one year junk license Tuesday to the Salvage Liquidation Co., 859 Willard St., West Quincy.

The license was formerly held by Goldie's, Inc.

The board granted the license with the stipulation that cars be removed from the front of the building within one month.

Applicant Robert Potheau of Wellesley told the board that Goldie's owner William Goldie died earlier this year and salvage material is being liquidated.

Potheau said it would be a "monumental project" to clear the land of '60 years accumulation of junk.

He estimated the job would take four to six months, and told the board that next year, the property would be put to another use.

New Drain, Fill Plan For Swingle's Quarry

The city is preparing to make one more effort to find the body of Paul Gooch, 17, of Brockton in Swingle's Quarry and then fill in the more than 300-foot deep hole in the West Quincy hills.

Private contractors have been invited to bid on the drainage and filling job with the bids opened Nov. 28 at 10 a.m. in the Public Works office on Sea St.

"We would like to go in and get the boy's body and finish the job by the end of the year," said Mayor Francis X. McCauley. "And we'd like to make it a permanent solution to the problem."

McCauley said contractors have a lot of fill from their other projects and some sort of deal might be struck where a contractor would drain the quarry for free and then use it to dump solid fill.

"They might even pay us for it," he said.

Young Gooch drowned June 20 when he jumped from a 50-foot ledge into the quarry water. An earlier attempt to drain the hole ended Sept. 9 when a part of the granite wall collapsed into the water.

Presidents In 'Must' Game At Brookline

By TOM SULLIVAN

Brockton's high-powered football team, beaten only by Central Mass. power Leominster the previous week and averaging 40 points a game breezing by seven other opponents, took out its wrath on a much smaller Quincy team last week, rolling to a 34-0 victory in the rain at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The loss dropped Quincy's record to 2-6.

The Presidents will face Brookline Sunday at 1:30 p.m. at Northeastern University's Parsons Field and Quincy coach Bill Maver sees a win as a must in order to have some momentum going into the Thanksgiving Day game with North Quincy.

Brookline takes a 4-4 record into the game and will be trying to rebound from two one-sided losses, 33-0 to Arlington last week and 40-0 to North Quincy two weeks ago. Quincy won, 35-6 last season.

"We have to win at Brookline in order to go against North with a little momentum," Maver said. "If we lose this one I'm afraid we might be a little bit down for North, although the boys don't have any trouble getting up for that game.

"Brockton was just too big for us. They have a huge line (averaging nearly 230) and they outweighed us by a large margin.

"Their backs are also big and quick and, although we have some quickness, we just couldn't do anything against such a huge line. Our boys played their hearts out and never gave up but it was a lost cause. Despite the score the defense did very well at times. Many people thought Brockton would be slowed down by the wet field but I think it actually helped them."

The Boxers' Mike Hoadley (6-2, 215 pounds), who has been having an outstanding year, ran for 130 yards, playing only a few minutes in the second half, and Odell Wilson had 69 yards, sitting out the entire second half. While Brockton had 216 net yards on the ground, and 14 first downs, the Presidents were held to 52 yards and just three first downs.

Neither team had much luck passing in the steady rain. Brockton's Tom Colombo was two for six for 63 yards and one interception, while Quincy's Billy Shaughnessy was only three for 13 (one coming on a pass interference call) for 37 yards and had three passes intercepted.

In order to beat a team like Brockton you have to play a perfect game and last week Quincy was hurt by fumbles, penalties and the three interceptions.

"Despite having trouble passing, I thought Billy Shaughnessy did a good job at quarterback under the conditions," Maver said. "John Cacciatore had another outstanding day, Bob Zupkowsky played well as a linebacker and Mike Notarangelo and Chris Shaughnessy did a good job in the secondary. Everyone gave a good effort but it just wasn't enough."

Quincy's defense sparked at the start as it stopped Brockton cold on its first possession but a roughing the kicker penalty on fourth down gave the

Sun Sports

Boxers another chance. Again Quincy held fast and Brockton punted.

Two passes were incomplete and the third was intercepted by Brockton's Greg McMurtry, who returned the ball to Quincy's 38. Notarangelo (only 5-6) made a great defensive play on Colombo's long pass to 6-2 Rich Reagan, knocking the pass down at the goal line. Brockton then drove to its first score, a nine-yard run by Wilson. Chris Sarantos kicked the point.

Brockton added three touchdowns in the second quarter to make the game a route.

On the first play of the quarter Hoadley found a big hole up the middle and raced 50 yards for a touchdown and Sarantos again kicked the extra point.

A few minutes later Quincy left Reagan (6-2, 210 pounds) all alone and he took a pass from Colombo and raced 40 yards untouched for a touchdown, completing a 48-yard play. Sarantos kicked his third PAT.

Chris Shaughnessy intercepted a pass on the Quincy one-yard line, but three plays later Keith Kruskall intercepted a Billy Shaughnessy pass on the 20 to set up the fourth touchdown. Hoadley scored his second touchdown on a 13-yard run and Sarantos' kick made it 28-0 at halftime.

After stopping Quincy cold following the second half kickoff, Brockton drove 75 yards for its final score. Colombo scored from the two and this time the try for point was blocked.

Brockton coach Armand Colombo then pulled his starters and the reserved played the rest of the way. Maver also used his reserves for much of the second half.

Quincy, North Games On WJDA

North Lands First Tourney Berth In 7 Years

The North Quincy boys' soccer team last week qualified for the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the first time since 1976 and opened tournament play Tuesday at Falmouth.

If they won, the Raiders will play at Diman Voke Friday morning at 11.

Needing three points in their last three games to qualify, the Raiders took four points in tying Waltham, 1 - 1, defeating Oliver 5 - 2, and playing to a scoreless tie with Brookline. Waltham came to Quincy needing to win to assure a tournament berth. The Hawks had the two leading scorers and the leading goalie in the Suburban League.

Waltham came out fired up and dominated play but North's fullback line responded to the intense pressure as they have all year. Eric Roukey and Mike Cocce were particularly impressive. Waltham's best chance came when Andy Kramer threw a ball from the sidelines into the area and a Waltham player skimmed the ball toward the goal. But Mark Hubbard tipped the ball over the crossbar.

North's offense began clicking in the second quarter as Andy Curtis and Nunzio Carbone had testing shots on goal. Hubbard kept the Hawks off the board with a diving save off a low drive by Gino DiStefano and then made another fine save but left a dangerous rebound which halfback Steve Golden was able to clear.

With eight minutes left in the quarter a Waltham player was called for a hand ball in the area and Carbone made good on the penalty kick for his ninth goal of the season. Chris Archer nearly added another score on an indirect kick by Carbone. Golden was kicked in the eye trying to head a ball out, getting a cut across his eyelid.

The Hawks continued to press for the equalizer but again the North defense responded. Hubbard slid and kicked out a dangerous loose ball while Jaime Paz, Terry Stark, Cocce and Roukey stopped all the other chances. John Joseph also made a big play with 10 seconds left in the third quarter, clearing a through pass to the sideline.

With 7½ minutes left in the game Joseph was called for a trip in the penalty area. DiStefano was awarded the penalty kick and beat Hubbard to tie the score. Scorekeeper Judy White discovered Waltham had 12 players on the field at the time of the penalty but protests by Coach Paul Bregoli fell on deaf ears.

Stark was taken down at midfield, receiving a gash on the head which required six stitches. He did not tell anyone and continued to play. Hubbard had 15 saves, many of them outstanding.

The next day North went to North Eastern needing to win over Oliver Ames to clinch the tournament berth.

The Raiders struck early as Stark, playing despite the stitches in his head, sent a ball to Curtis and the senior wing beat the goalie at 7:39.

Two minutes later Mark Scanlan sent in David Brown, who rifled a low shot inside the post for a 2-0 Raider lead. It was Brown's sixth goal.

North's fullbacks made a rare mistake in the second quarter, allowing an Oliver Ames player to collect a rebound and put it into the net.

Neither team took control in the third quarter but Mike Welsh began to make things happen as he continually made fine runs with the ball and showed some fine moves for several good scoring chances. North got a bit lucky late in the quarter as Scanlan crossed a ball to Curtis. Curtis' shot from 18 yards out deflected off an Oliver Ames fullback into the net.

North put on tremendous pressure in the fourth quarter as Walsh, Carbone, Cocce and Archer all got good chances to score. Unfortunately, a long ball over the defense saw another mistake by North turn into an Oliver Ames goal.

Leading by only 3-2 with eight minutes left in the game, North dug in and played harder. Cocce took a free kick from the far sideline and his perfect pass found Scanlan in front. He passed to Curtis, who scored his third goal of the game from five yards out. With four minutes left the Oliver Ames goalie came to the far sideline to clear a ball out of bounds. Carbone made a heads-up play, putting the ball into play immediately to Scanlan.

Scanlan again got the ball to Curtis in front and the senior headed in his fourth goal of the game and eighth of the season.

Curtis had four assists giving him 15 points for the season, tying him with Carbone for the team lead.

Playing its third game in three days, North suffered a slight letdown in the scoreless tie with Brookline. Brookline pressed the play early but Cocce and Joe LaPierre were the keys to the defense.

The Raiders slowly took control of the game in the second quarter and then maintained that the rest of the game. Cocce had two excellent chances. Hubbard made a fine punch-out save in the third quarter as he recorded his eighth shutout, while Pat Marcham also played steady at fullback in place of the tired Paz.

"The boys were disappointed they couldn't finish with a win but it was our best season (10 - 2 - 5) and I am delighted they made the tournament," said Bregoli. "They played their hearts out all season and everyone did his job. I think we can make a good showing in the tournament."

North Quincy 14, Somerville 6

Raiders Host 'Jinx' Catholic Memorial

North Quincy's football team, hoping for three straight wins going into the Quincy game Thanksgiving, last Sunday defeated Somerville, 14 - 6, at Somerville's Dilboy Field for its second win in a row to even its record at 4 - 4.

The game had been postponed by Saturday's rain.

This Saturday at Veteran's Memorial Stadium at 1:30 p.m. North hosts its jinx rival, Catholic Memorial, seeking its first win ever over the West Roxbury school. The Raiders are 0 - 5 against Memorial. Last year North lost, 21 - 6.

This year Catholic Memorial is only 2 - 6, having defeated Austin Prep and Don Bosco while losing to Xavierian, Rogers, R.I., St. John's, Malden Catholic, Randolph and New Bedford.

"We are due to beat them but I expect plenty of trouble again from them," said North coach Ken McPhee. "We now have some momentum going for us with wins over Brookline and Somerville and it would be nice to have three in a row going in against Quincy."

Although North didn't explode against Somerville as it did the previous week in rolling over Brookline, it clicked for two first half touchdowns and the defense was again outstanding.

"Somerville was a tough team and I thought we performed well," McPhee said. "We moved the ball well in the first half and, although neither club did much the second half, our defense did another great job."

"Mike Gill and Scott Messina ran well and quarterback Steve Hogan did an excellent job running the club. We did some passing early (one touchdown pass and two others setting up the second score) but we wanted to establish a running game and didn't do much passing in the second half."

McPhee had good words for the offensive line and hailed the play of Jack Burke, Nick Gelsomini, Bob Flynn, Jerry Martin, Jack Hannan, John Panaro, Brian Gibbons, Gerry Coughlin and Dan Baker. Gelsomini was injured in the first half and Panaro filled in for him and played well.

Defensive coordinator Jack Raymer was again extremely pleased with the defense. "We should have had our second straight shutout but they played 12-minute periods instead of 10 and they scored on a pass late in the game when the secondary made its only mistake," Raymer said.

Reports On Ch. 8

Up to the minute progress reports on the North Quincy — Catholic Memorial game will be telecast on The Quincy Sun's Cable TV Ch. 8 Saturday starting at 1:30 p.m.

Mike Vallery threw 32 passes and completed nine for 119 yards but the Raiders intercepted four and sacked him twice.

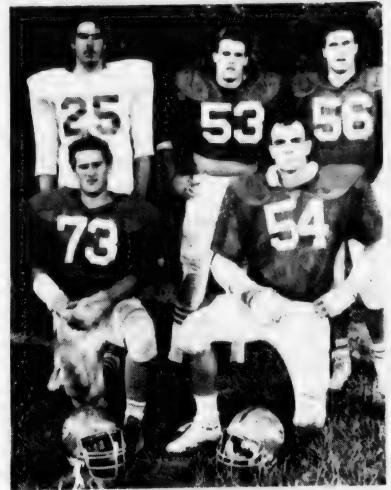

"Al DiBella was especially outstanding as were Tony Befera and Rich DeLuca," Raymer said. Also playing outstanding games were Kevin Kelly, Jim McNamara, Mike Barry, Gill, Steve Kelly, Mark Wilkins, Jim Kennedy, Joe Bangs, John Delappe, Jack Boister and Dave Cooke, who took over when Gelsomini was hurt."

Gill had two pass interceptions and Wilkins and Kennedy had one each. North was again hampered by several penalties, being penalized 10 yards.

In the first quarter Hogan hit Boister with a touchdown pass covering 49 yards. A bad pass from center voided the extra point attempt.

In the second quarter Hogan hit Vic DiGravio for 50 yards and passed to DiGravio again for nine, setting up Bryan Ellis' nine-

The North girls, who have won the Eastern

Mass. Div. 2 title three years in a row, will move up to Div. 1 in the meet Saturday at Franklin Park.

"This was just a tremendous season," said Tozzi, who has only one senior on his squad. "The girls were outstanding, hard workers and their dedication paid off. This is one of my youngest squads and the girls did a brilliant job against more experienced teams."

In the non-league win over Boston Latin, Mary Anne Kelleher finished the season unbeaten with her sixth straight win. Freshman Tricia Barrett was second, giving her a win and six second places.

Phelan Named QJC Coach

Bill Phelan of North Quincy has been named the new head basketball coach at Quincy Junior College and John White and Mike Anderson are his assistants.

Phelan succeeds Brian Buckley, who is the new coach at Curry College following five successful years at QJC.

The Jaguars open their season tonight (Thursday) against Massasoit Community College at 7 o'clock at Quincy Vo-Tech gym.

They open their Greater Boston Small College Conference season next Tuesday night at 7 against Daniel Webster at the Vo-Tech gym. QJC won the conference title a year ago.

Phelan has five players returning from last year's championship team, point guard Paul Gill, shooting guard Steve Belcastro, point guard Fran McEachern, power forward Tom Deegan and guard Mike Jenik. Will Smith, a transfer from Bunker Hill, should prove a valuable addition.

There are five promising freshmen to round out the squad, centers John Furland and Mike Cronin, forward Billy Grey and guards Ralph Mataro and Tom Keenan.

Uhlar Playing Basketball In Scotland

By PETE ZOIA

Many Quincy athletes have gone to foreign lands to compete - mostly runners, boxers, wrestlers and hockey players.

Recently a former Quincy High basketball player left to play in Scotland, Jack Uhlar, played at Quincy, 1975-1977, under Coach Joe Amorsino, newly appointed assistant coach at Boston University.

Uhlar was on the Tech Tourney teams of 1976 and 1977, losing out to Framingham South in the South Sectional semi-finals in his senior year.

Uhlar attended Boston College for one year and played under the then new Coach Tom Davis. He transferred to Merrimack College in 1978 and was captain in his senior year. The record in '78 was 17-10 under Coach Bert Hammel.

Upon graduation from Merrimack, the former Quincy great worked as an assistant coach with Tom Rysier at Curry College, while substitute teaching at Dorchester High.

Always staying in shape by working out, Uhlar maintained his love for basketball while employed as a car salesman in Norwood.

Here among many contacts he was told of a pro-basketball league in Dalkeith, Scotland. Together with former Merrimack teammate Tom Lavell, who will be Jack's roommate, they will be playing in Scotland for six months.

The Uhlar family has a sound sports background. Jack has seven sisters and two brothers. His dad, Charles, was a boxing champion at West Virginia University. Before settling in Quincy, the Uhlar's lived in Wilkes-Barre, Penn.

Uhlar's older brother Bob played basketball at Quincy Junior College, and Jack credits Bob with getting him started in basketball. Bob coached CYO and taught at Quincy High and is the new Quincy girls' basketball coach.

This venture to Scotland is an exciting part of Jack Uhlar's young career that many other basketball aspirants will follow up upon his return.

Quincy Girls Finish Undefeated

The Quincy girls' volleyball team finished an undefeated season (16-0 and 32-0 in games) last week and is seeded No. 1 in the state tournament which starts Friday morning at Eastern Nazarene College.

The First Ladies wound up their amazing season, not losing a single game all year, with victories over North Quincy and Newton South last week.

The team will face eighth-seeded Case, ninth-seeded Brockton and 16th seeded Somerset Friday morning in the South Sectional Pool A competition at Eastern Nazarene.

If Quincy's suburban

League champions survive pool play they will host the winner of Pool D (Bishop Connolly, Dennis-Yarmouth, Notre Dame of Hingham and Seekonk) Monday night at 7:30 at the Vo-Tech gym in the semi-finals.

Quincy topped North Quincy, 2-0 (15-1, 15-2), as Susan Beven led the offense with Kathy McGregor, while Christine Gallery played a virtually flawless defensive game.

fensive lineman. Both played under Tom Fitzgerald at Quincy High.

The fifth Quincy player is Steve Koski, a 5'9, 185-pound freshman, is an English major and played his high school ball at Boston College High under Coach Jim Cotter.

Last week's Bridgewater State-Plymouth State game saw 13 Quincy and North Quincy players in action, five for Bridgewater and eight for Plymouth. North Quincy's Joe Dudek had his seventh 100-yard game for Plymouth State as he rushed for 108 yards, giving him 1034 yards for the year. He scored his 11th touchdown of the season.

North Girls Swim Team 3rd In Championship Meet

The North Quincy girls' swim team, which finished fifth during the regular Suburban League season, went to Cambridge last Friday hoping to move up at least to fourth in the league championship meet.

Bill Walker's Raiderettes did even better, finishing third behind the league powers, Brockton and Newton North. North Quincy scored 130 points, while Brockton had 382 and Newton 223. Brookline followed North Quincy with 128.5. Cambridge Rindge and Latin had 93, Waltham 70, Weymouth North, 66.5, Weymouth South 54 and Quincy 20.

The North girls set a team record in the last event, the 400 freestyle relay, with Julie Nee, Stacey Quintiliani, Georgia Traficante and Joanne Burke finishing in 4:19.196.

Other North scorers were Julie Killion, winner of the diving and Anne Cooney 12th; Nee, third and Traficante fourth in the 50-yard freestyle; Donna King, sixth in the 100 butterfly; Quintiliani seventh and Burke 10th in the 200 freestyle; Burke seventh, Nee eighth and Traficante ninth in the 100 freestyle; and Killion, Renee Gurry, King and Lynne Byron, seventh in the 200 medley relay.

Also, Quintiliani fifth and Kristen McCready 12th in the 500 freestyle and Michelle Casey ninth in the 100 backstroke.

Quincy Graduates Shine In College Volleyball

Several Quincy High graduates on volleyball scholarships are doing well this season at various New England colleges and universities.

Susan Callahan (class of 1980) is the captain of the Northeastern team and is a starting setter.

Maureen Walsh (class of 1981) is a starting middle blocker for Providence College, an unusual position for a 5-7 player, but due to her vertical jump, she is playing as well as several six-foot players.

Nancy McDonald (class of 1982) starts middle for the University of Rhode Island. Her coach, Bob Schneck, feels she is one of the best middle blockers in New England.

Ellen Deady (class of 1983) is a freshman middle blocker at the University of Mass. - Amherst. She started several matches when an upperclassman was injured and she did a fine job blocking and hitting.

Theresa Munroe (class of 1983) is a freshman at Providence and, although not yet a starter, she is improving her skills and getting valuable court time.

At the recent Rhode Island Invitational Tournament Providence played Rhode Island in the finals. Quincy had the greatest number of players there. Walsh played against McDonald as Providence won the match, 3 - 1.

Currently, all three Quincy High seniors are being watched by several colleges. Carolyn Leonard is sought by the University of Maine - Farmington, Susan Beven by New Hampshire, Bryant and Georgetown and Christine Gallery by Utah State, Louisiana State, Virginia Tech, Rhode Island Providence, Georgetown and others.

'Suffolk Resolves' Historical Society Topic

An audio-visual presentation entitled "The Story of the Suffolk Resolves" will be the subject of the Thursday, Nov. 17 program of the Quincy Historical Society.

William J. Loughran of the Milton Historical Society will present the program at 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy Historical Society building, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center.

Purpose of the program is to promote a better understanding of the importance of the Resolves as a historical event. Generally speaking, the passage of the Resolves is regarded as an obscure, isolated incident of small historical significance. Actually, the Resolves were, in a very real sense, a culmination and summarization of a chain of rebellious acts occurring in Boston during the 1770s.

The writing of the Resolves was commissioned to Dr. Joseph Warren by Samuel Adams who left Boston for Philadelphia, Aug. 10, 1774, to become a delegate to the First Continental Congress. Adams needed a written defense of Boston's rebellious posture to lay before the Congress. Not having time to write it himself, he asked Dr. Warren to compose it for him, and have it endorsed by the Suffolk County towns.

Warren read the Resolves at the Daniel Vose House in Milton Sept. 9, 1774. They were signed by delegates from 19 Suffolk County towns, and dispatched to Philadelphia three days later by Paul Revere. The Resolves were read before the Congress Sept. 17 and unanimously endorsed.

Several passages in the Declaration of Independence echo the language of the Suffolk Resolves.

Cultural Commission Meeting

The Quincy South Shore Commission will hold its second meeting of the season Monday, Nov. 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the New City Hall conference room.

President Joseph J. LaRia urges members to attend.

'The Verdict' Author At QJC Program

Atty. Barry Reed, author of "The Verdict", upon which the movie of the same title is based, will be the final speaker Thursday, Nov. 17, in Quincy Junior College's Distinguished Speakers Series.

The program will begin at 8 p.m. at the Method Center at Quincy High School.

Reed will discuss medical malpractice and the making of the movie.

The public is invited to the free program. Reservations may be made by calling 786-8791.

Reed, a native of San Francisco, is a graduate of Holy Cross College and Boston College Law School.

He heads the Boston law firm of Reed and Mulligan specializing in medical malpractice.

Because he was associated with Quincy Junior College as an instructor in the evening division, he wanted to help the college celebrate its 25th anniversary by participating in the Distinguished Speakers Series.

Puppet Workshop At Library Nov. 16

Puppeteer Bill Glover will conduct a puppet workshop at the Thomas Crane Public Library Wednesday, Nov. 16, at 3:30 p.m. The workshop is for children from age eight through age 12 and registration is required.

Mr. Glover has participated in many library programs including puppet workshops, puppet plays and magic shows. He's also a familiar voice on Dial-A-Story. Under Glover's direction workshop participants will create two different kinds of puppets, a sock puppet and a paper bag puppet. This workshop will be videotaped for cable television.

Paula Sitarz, children's librarian at the Central Library, is coordinating the workshop which occurs during Children's Book Week. Another Book Week event is a sale of children's books on Saturday, Nov. 19, from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m. Books will be on sale at the lower level of the Central Library, Quincy Center.

Christmas Festival Poster Contest

The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee is sponsoring its 1983 Poster Contest for elementary grade children in the Quincy public and parochial schools.

Theme of the 1983 Christmas Parade and Poster Contest is "A Christmas Dream". Any poster larger than 22 by 28 inches will be disqualified.

All entries submitted must include the name, address, telephone number, grade and school on the back on the poster.

All Quincy public and parochial schools have been invited to participate with students in Grades 1 through 6 eligible.

First prize is a $100. U.S. Savings Bond and second prize is a $50. bond. Two sets of winners will be chosen, one in the Grades 1 through 3 category and a second in the Grades 4 through 6 group.

Friday, Nov. 18, is the final date for receiving posters from the schools involved.

It is suggested that teachers in the classrooms participating choose the winning poster of the class or allow the children to vote, in their opinion, the outstanding entry from the classroom.

The poster nominated from each classroom will be submitted for final judging by a Special Committee.

Winners will be announced at the Christmas Lighting Ceremony Friday, Nov. 25, at 7 p.m. at Quincy Center.

Posters may be submitted for final judging at the Park Department Office, Park and Recreation Complex, 100 Southern Artery, Merrymount Park. All posters submitted become the property of the Christmas Festival Committee.

Children's Book Week

"Get into books" is the invitation issued during Children's Book Week which is celebrated nationally from Nov. 14 through 20. "Get into libraries" is the companion invitation issued by the children's department of the Thomas Crane Public Library throughout this special week.

Children from pre-school through age 12 are invited to stop by their local library to browse through new books and exhibits and to meet their children's librarian. There'll be many handouts, as well, including the new publication Book Nook Notes which shares information, book reviews, games and other special features with school age children.

On Saturday, Nov. 19, there will be a sale of children's books at the Central Library in Quincy Square from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Picture books, novels, and informational books are all priced at 25 cents apiece.

Mark Children's Book Week on your calendar and get into libraries so you can get into books!

Durkin Wins, Koch Tops Council

"Running for the first time against three incumbents I think we did extremely well."

Koch described himself as "thrilled" by his ticket-topping victory.

"I feel great, excited," he said. "This is a vote of confidence by the voters for me. My workers told me I was going to top the ticket but I waited to see all the votes counted."

In other contested races, Stephen McGrath, easily won a fourth term on the City Council from Ward 5, whipping newcomer John M. Dunlea 2,353 to 668.

Joanne Condon also captured a fourth term on the Council from Ward 6. Her opponent, School Committee Vice Chairman Mary Collins, withdrew from the race due to ill health Oct. 20 but her name stayed on the ballot.

The final result was Condon 2,241, Collins 860.

On the referendum question on whether or not to sell the Norfolk County Recreation Facility in North Quincy, the "No" vote easily prevailed, 12,889 to 2,127.

The big "No" vote in Quincy easily turned around the countywide vote of the 27 towns which had voted to sell the facility. The final vote was 43,917 not to sell against 39,982 to sell.

The referendum was not binding.

Francis X. McCauley was unopposed for a second term as mayor, the first time that had happened since 1940 and only the second time since Quincy became a city in 1888.

He polled 13,776 votes with 3,294 blanks cast.

In other uncontested races:

City Council Ward 1, Leo J. Kelly, 2,117, blanks, 439; Ward 2, Theodore P. DeCristofaro, 2,522, blanks, 566; Ward 3, John J. Lydon Jr., 2,014, blanks, 938; Ward 4, James A. Sheets, 1,753, blanks, 288.

the matter for two weeks. MacDonald said that O'Brien will install landscaping around the property, similar to that of neighboring Quincy Savings Bank.

O'Brien said at an earlier meeting the property would be used to clean, prepare and park cars.

Water Mains To Be Tested

During the weeks of Nov. 14, and Nov. 21, the Quincy Sewer, Water and Drain Department will conduct tests on many of its water mains throughout the city.

Although these tests should not leave any one without water, diminished pressure and discoloration of water will occur, said Public Works Comm. Paul N. Anderson. He urged residents to exercise caution before washing clothing, cooking or performing other water related tasks.

Residents living near the General Dynamics Shipyard in Quincy Point, in West Quincy and on and around the northerly side of Hospital Hill are urged to be further cognizant of their water, as more extensive tests are planned in those areas.

This testing is part of a Comprehensive Planning Study initiated by Mayor Francis X. McCauley and conducted by Camp, Dresser and McKee Engineers.

Protests Average

Most Taxpayers Accept Reval Figures Calmly

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy taxpayers were informed of the new 100 per cent values placed on their property this week and their reaction apparently was something less than expected.

"I'd say the number of calls was average or even less," said Jesse Cook of Municipal Appraisals Co. of Fall River, who is making appointments for those who wish to question their new values.

Cook, who has been handling appeals for some three years, said he and his phone battery of four women received 150 calls Monday, the first working day after impact notices went into the mail.

"We expect the peak to be reached on the third day (Wednesday)," he said. "By then people will know where to call."

The special telephone number in the basement office at City Hall is 770-0251. Deadline for making an appointment is Dec. 2 and hearings will start Monday, Nov. 21.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said that he too is not getting much reaction to the impact notices.

"I've had one call about it so far," he said Tuesday afternoon.

One strange reaction to the impact notice came from Rep. Michael W. Morrissey, who had a value of $47,700 placed on his two-family house on Holyoke St., North Quincy.

He thought it should be more than that and he protested the new value to the Board of Assessors.

"Judging by the value placed on my neighbors' homes," he said, "I should be in the $60,000 to $70,000 range."

"There were six houses on the street put up by the same builder 50 or 60 years ago and the value shouldn't be that much different. But there is about a $20,000 difference.

"I talked to the assessor's about it and they're going to come down to take a look. I think it was just an error in figures."

Meanwhile, McCauley said his office is making preliminary moves toward the next step in setting the fiscal 1984 tax rate, classifying property as residential, commercial, etc.

Arthur Foley, the mayor's aide, is looking into what home owners would pay without classification and what they would pay under different types of classification.

"We haven't drawn any conclusions yet," he said. "We can't do anything until they finish the hearings. We're using this time to get some idea of where we want to be."

Gillis Opposes Voter Registration By Post Card

City Clerk John M. Gillis, who is also clerk of the Board of Registrars of Voters, says he is opposed to the post card registration of new voters, citing the problems experienced in Boston.

"As a recent example, look at the voter fraud in the city of Boston," he said, "through no fault of their election officials."

"Individuals were able to register, making checks on the address given almost impossible."

Gillis said his reasons for opposing post card registration are these:

There is no check on the individual voter to see if he or she is registered in another location.

There could be massive fraud, impossible to run down the voters previous voting status on short notice.

Cities and towns are undermanned in election departments throughout the state.

"The only way to bring post card registration into effect is to have a central computer in the election department of the Secretary of State with a master list of each voter in the Commonwealth," said Gillis.

"The cities and towns would have to have some type of feeder to the central computer at the State House each and every day."

Gillis said the Quincy registrars have tried to encourage everyone to vote by conducting night and weekend registration and visiting senior citizen complexes, supermarkets and nursing homes to register.

"Further," he said, "we urge that any disabled person who cannot register at any of those places call the clerk's office and we will be more than happy to go to any location to register an individual."

As Council President:

Sheets Wants Closer Mayor Communication

City Councillor James A. Sheets, assured of the Council presidency in 1984, says he intends to use the position to expand communication with the Mayor on a regular basis.

"I am somewhat concerned that members of the City Council are reading about major mayoral decisions in the newspapers," he said.

"I see the job of the City Council president as facilitating the decision-making by keeping the channels of communication open to the mayor's offices so that the Council will be informed."

Sheets said last week that he has been assured of the votes of five councillors in his bid for the presidency.

JAMES A. SHEETS

Sheets said he has been assured the votes of Councillors Joseph J. LaRaia, Richard J. Koch, Jr., Patricia Toland and Theodore P. DeCristofaro. With his vote, that's five of the nine councillors.

Sheets, who was elected to a sixth two-year term on the council last Tuesday, will succeed Councillor John J. Lydon, Jr., who is forbidden by Council rules from succeeding himself.

Councillor Stephen J. McGrath, who also expressed interest in the presidency, conceded that Sheets had the votes to nail down the job.

Children's Fingerprinting Cancelled

The Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St., will be unable to conduct fingerprinting for Houghs Neck youngsters Saturday, Nov. 19.

The center will try to schedule it for January or February of 1984.

Money Stolen

A small sum of money was reported stolen Monday from the South Shore Mental Health office at 67 Parkingway

Santoro To Get Recount

Frank C. Santoro will get a recount of his 88-vote loss for a School Committee seat in last week's election.

Santoro filed papers for the recount Monday and City Clerk John M. Gillis said he will set a date for the recount as soon as the filing deadline passes Friday at 4:30 p.m.

Santoro finished fourth in the six-man race for three School Committee posts with 6,896. The third and final seat was won by Frank Anselmo with 6,984.

At first, it was announced that Anselmo had beaten Santoro by 118 votes but a later check of the figures trimmed 30 votes from his total.

In asking for the recount, Santoro obtained 10 signatures from voters in each ward on his petition.

Developer Takes Option On Elks Building

New York developer Antony Herrey has taken an option to purchase the Elks Home on Hancock St. for development into office space on the fringe of the downtown area.

Planning Director James Lydon said an attempt will be made to have the building placed on the National Register of Historic Places so its identity will be preserved in renovation.

The developer of buildings on the Register also is allowed an accelerated depreciation. The development probably will be done with commercial revenue bonds, said Lydon.

The Elks have been using the old Miles Standish School in North Quincy on a short term basis and own land on Quarry St. where they plan a permanent home.

A man who feigned seeking employment held up the Old Colony Gas station at 1230 Furnace Brook Parkway Saturday night and fled with $70 in cash taken from the attendant.

White Hen Pantry To Talk With Neighbors On License

The License Board voted Tuesday to continue a license request for White Hen Pantry at 200 Sea St. until the applicants have discussed the proposal with residents of the area.

City Clerk John Gillis said the hearing will be rescheduled after a Dec. 8 meeting of the Merrymount Association at which the applicants are to appear.

Enzo F. Rotatori, manager of franchising and merchandising, requested a common victualer-take out only and Lord's Day licenses for the business.

City Councillor Leo Kelly warned the board that granting the license would "bring disaster" to the area.

"They are talking about being open 24 hours," said Kelly. "That corner already has major problems."

Vietnam Veterans' Contributions Cited At Ceremonies

Veterans' Day keynote speaker John McNiff of Montclair noted the contributions of Vietnam veterans during ceremonies Friday.

"In national surveys, Americans are exceptionally proud of these heroic men and women," said McNiff.

regional office director of the Veterans Administration.

"I am proud of the fact that more than 73 percent of the veterans who work at the Boston VA regional office are Vietnam era veterans."

The ceremonies, moved to Quincy Vocational Technical School because of rain, were coordinated by City Clerk John Gillis, a Marine Corps veteran.

The 215th Army National Guard Band played the National Anthem and the Field Artillery March.

Rev. John J. McMahon, pastor of St. Mary's Church,

West Quincy, offered a prayer; Rabbi Jacob Mann of Congregation Beth Israel delivered the benediction.

Members of the Morrisette Legion Post fired three rifle volleys.

An open house at the Morrisette Post followed the ceremonies.

VETERANS DAY CEREMONIES, moved indoors to Quincy Vocational Technical School because of inclement weather, featured John J. McNiff, (center) regional director of the Veterans Administration, as keynote speaker. He is flanked by Hank Bradley, and Jake Mahoney of the Morrisette Color Guard.

House Passes State Condo Control Bill

"I can't comment until I see the bill," said Mayor Francis X. McCauley, "but I've always felt that some protection should be given to renters."

McCauley was reacting to word that the House had passed a statewide condominium conversion control bill and Senate passage and Gov. Dukakis' signature are expected soon.

Quincy has a home rule petition seeking permission to institute condo conversion controls in the city but it has been on the Legislature's back burner while the statewide bill moved up.

One feature of the bill permits cities and towns to pass stronger condo conversion laws by a two-thirds vote of the City Council.

Councillor Stephen J. McGrath, who chaired the committee that wrote the Quincy bill, said he hopes the city will embrace the statewide version once it is clarified.

The committee that has been handling the disposal of abandoned school buildings has recommended to Mayor Francis X. McCauley that the old Mass Fields, Pollard and Willard Schools be sold the highest bidders.

Planning Director James Lydon said orders for the sale of the three schools will be sent to the City Council Monday, Nov. 21, and to the Planning Board for public hearings by each agency.

It will be recommended that:

The Mass Fields School in Wollaston be sold to Farland Co. of Ashland for $247,000 for development into 25 units of rental housing. In addition, the city will receive a percentage of the next cash flow.

"Farland was the highest bidder on the school," said Lydon. "They plan extensive landscaping and they have agreed to confine most of the parking to underneath the building."

The Pollard School in Quincy Point be sold to Manel Properties Trust, Tony Losordo of 276 Quarry St., West Quincy, for $152,650 for development of about 30 units of rental housing.

"The developer is a local man who has a track record

Mayor's 'Official Family' Safe

Mayor Francis McCauley's "official family" was in a jovial mood election night.

You could not blame them.

The boss was tossing a little party in his office and no one had to worry about what was in the ballot boxes being lugged into the City Clerk's office.

McCauley, with no opposition, was actually already re-elected.

His top aides and department heads partaking of the refreshments were pretty certain of one other matter: their jobs are safe.

McCauley confirms he has no plans to roll any heads when reappointment time arrives in January and February.

"I've got some good people," he says. "There will be no changes in the 'official family'."

He indicates, however, there could be a couple or so changes on various municipal boards.

But, there may be one smiling face missing from McCauley's office at the end of the year.

Since their days at the Shipbuilder's Cooperative Bank, Eleanor Reidy, his secretary, is thinking of retiring. She underwent major surgery earlier this year and although she looks good, feels good and is completely recovered she's getting to that stage where she would like to take things a little easier.

She makes visiting the mayor's office a joy and will be missed if she does go through with her retirement plans.

Although McCauley had no challenger he was watching the returns closely with former Mayor Thomas Burgin's shadow standing over him. The big question for him: how many blanks would he draw?

He was the top vote getter with 13,776 against 3,294 blanks.

"That's 19 per cent blanks," McCauley said with a little quick arithmetic.

He noted that Burgin, the only other Quincy mayor to run unopposed drew 15 per cent blanks in 1940.

"That's not bad," McCauley noted. "It's pretty comparable."

McCauley

ELEANOR

THEY WERE POPPING a few champagne bottles at the election night headquarters of Richard Koch, Jr. and for good reason.

Young Koch, at age 28, had to be pleased with the results that put him on top in the City Council at-large race.

In his first bid for office in 1979, Koch finished fourth — just 197 votes behind former Mayor Joseph La Raia (for the third City Council seat).

La Raia, defeated by Arthur Tobin two years earlier in one of the hardest-hitting mayoral contests in recent years — was making a political comeback via the City Council.

LA RAIA

Observers believe that if Koch had topped La Raia four years ago, it would have been political curtains for La Raia.

In that particular year, Francis McCauley was No. 1 in the council-at-large race (14,931) with John Quinn (12,069) second.

In 1981, with McCauley running for Mayor, La Raia led the at-large field with an impressive 17,460. Koch finished second with 15,273 — 2,187 votes behind. (Patricia Toland took the third seat away from John Quinn 12,261 to 11,879).

Now this year, Koch overtook La Raia to finish on top 11,081 to 10,533 — a 548 margin. But, taking La Raia's 2,187 vote lead in 1981, it means young Koch has picked up 2,735 votes on the veteran La Raia in two years.

The way some observers see it: Koch, is on his way up and La Raia, is on his way down.

RON IACOBucci, who finished a respectable fourth in the four-man race has nothing to be ashamed or discouraged about. Making his first bid, he polled 8,437 votes — just 1,039 behind Toland.

"We're building for the future," Iacobucci said.

Observers see a similarity in Iacobucci's first run for office and that of Koch. And that could be concern for both La Raia and Toland.

IACOBUCCI

McKinnon Urges More Commuter Boats, Buses During XWay Reconstruction

By TOM HENSHAW

Sen Allan R. McKinnon has suggested that South Shore commuters use "ingenuity and creativity" to get to their jobs in Boston when reconstruction of the Southeast Expressway begins next spring.

McKinnon was interviewed on the program "Newsmakers" on Quincy Cablestems.

"I do think that in our democratic society we all are supposed to have some responsibility to join in to help solve the problems as citizens," he said.

"There has got to be some initiative on the part of the public for more carpooling, for more flexible hours by companies in Boston, hopefully more help from the bus companies.

"It's not going to be

easy. It's going to be difficult to live with. It's going to call on a lot of us to use our ingenuity and creativity.

McKinnon said he has been pushing hard with the Dukakis Administration to get more commuter boats and more buses available for the period next March and April when the Expressway project starts up.

"I think there was a late start to begin with," he said. "I don't know that that can all fall on the present administration which has only been in 10 months but it seems to me not enough planning has gone into it."

"It seems to me there are a number of areas where things can be done. No. 1 is better commuter boat service. More commuter busing should be one of the key pieces in the puzzle."

"I believe that in the morning they are going to have four lanes going in as they do now and four lanes coming out in the evening so perhaps the biggest problems are going to be for people going the other way."

McKinnon, who has been rumored in line for the post of director of the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority, said if he is offered "a position that I think would be exciting and interesting, I would consider it."

He said he has no interest in running for Congress.

"If you are referring to the district that goes down to Provincetown, my town of Weymouth is no longer in it," he said, "and if I were in the district I would not be seeking the seat."

McKinnon was interviewed on the program by John Noonan of The Hingham Journal and The Quincy Sun, Herb Fontaine of WJDA and Ray McEachern of the Patriot Ledger.

Workers Reject CIO Union At Shipyard

Workers at the Fore River Shipyard, by a margin of 8,991 to 3,564, rejected the CIO International Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America as bargaining agents apparently ending a more than two year's fight for recognition at the yard.

William H. Norton, president of the Independent Union of Fore River Employees, celebrating the CIO union's defeat at a Houghs Neck hall, announced that his union planned to open immediate negotiations with the shipyard management for a "liberalized" working agreement.

But Ken Kramer, national representative of the Shipbuilding Workers Union, said he was ready for the "second round" in the fight to organize the shipyard.

"The situation today is the same as the situation the day before the election," he said. "There is still no union in the Fore River yard with exclusive bargaining privileges. The memorandum of understanding between our union and Bethlehem Steel still stands."

"Local 5 enters the second round with greatly increased membership, full shop steward representation, and the determination to bring to Fore River the benefits and advantages shipyard workers in union yards enjoy."

DEFENSE UNIT DELAYED

The City Council refused to act on an order that would establish the Defense Council as a city department and E.J. MacEwan, secretary of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, charged that the Council was procrastinating while "we're faced with a national emergency."

The Council refused, by a 5-3 vote, to take the measure out of its Ordinance Committee.

Voting in favor of the act were President William W. Jenness, Frank N. Orcutt and Myron N. Lane. Opposed were Aldo Della Chiesa, Christian A. Burkard, Louis A. George, Laurence J. Curtin and Joseph J. Kendrick. Councillor Neil A. McDonald was absent.

EXAM INTERRUPTED

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin and School Supt. James N. Muir were summoned to the State House to explain why Muir interrupted a Civil Service exam at Quincy High School, where 38 Quincy patrolmen were taking the exam to establish a list for sergeant.

Muir said he went into the room to tell the officer to stop smoking after he found cigarette butts around the building.
